REGISTRATIONS

The following registrations were submitted on the new composite form for the first calendar quarter 1950:

(Note—In order to reduce space, the composite form used for registration is reproduced below. Questions are not repeated, only the answers are printed and are indicated by their respective letter and number.)

File two copies with the Secretary of the Senate and file two copies with the Clerk of the House of Representatives:
"PRELIMINARY" REPORT: To "register," place an "X" below the letter "P" and fill out page 1 only.
"QUARTERLY" REPORT: To indicate which one of the four calendar quarters is covered by this Report, place an "X" below the appropriate figure. Fill out both page 1 and page 2 and as many additional pages as may be required. The first additional page should be numbered as page "3," and the rest of such pages should be "4," "5," "6," etc. Preparation and filing in accordance with instructions will accomplish compliance with all quarterly reporting requirements of the Act.

A. ORGANIZATION OR INDIVIDUAL FILING—State name, business address, and nature of business:

B. EMPLOYER—State name, address, and nature of business. If there is no employer, write "None." (If the work is done in the interest of one person, but payment therefor is made by another, list both persons as employers.)

C. LEGISLATIVE INTERESTS, AND PUBLICATIONS in connection therewith:

1. State approximately how long legislative interests are to continue. If legislative interests have terminated with the current quarter: Please explain, so that this Office will no longer expect to receive Reports.

2. State the general legislative interests of the person filing and set forth the specific legislative interests by reciting: (a) Short titles of statutes and bills; (b) House and Senate numbers of bills, where known; (c) citations of statutes, where known.

3. In the case of each publication which the person filing has issued or caused to be issued in connection with legislative interests, set forth: (a) description, (b) quantity published, (c) date of publication, (d) name of printer.

(Answer items 1, 2, and 3 in the space below. Attach additional pages if more space is needed.)

4. NOTE.—If this is a "Preliminary" Report, in addition to the other data in the space above, state: (a) whether compensation is to be paid by the day, by the month, or by the year; (b) what the rate of compensation is to be; (c) what the approximate period of employment will be; (d) what the nature and amount of anticipated expenses will be.

C. (1) Please be advised that I have no interest in legislation which requires the filing of a report under the Lobbying Act. During the Eightieth Congress I was interested in the enactment of legislation which would prohibit the erection of television and radio-broadcasting towers in residential communities close to schools and recreation facilities. The bill passed the House but failed of enactment in the Senate. No money compensation or anything of value was received or given. All was gratuitous. I am not now interested in that or any other bill before the Congress to the extent that I would be involved under the Lobbying Act. My term of office as delegate from the Manor Park Citizens Association to the Federation of Citizens Associations expires in May 1950.

B. Government of Venezuela, 2445 Massachusetts Avenue NW., Washington, D. C.

C. (1) Indefinite.

C. (2) Interested in oil import problem and its effect on ability of Venezuela to purchase American-made goods and products.

A. Legislative Department of Communist Party, U. S. A., 35 East Twelfth Street, New York City; political organization.

C. (1) Expects to be continuous.

C. (2) Generally concerned with all legislation.

A. Lodge No. 14, American Federation of Government Employees, box 1703, Balboa, C. Z.; a constituent lodge of the American Federation of Government Employees, a labor union.

B. None.

C. (1) Until approximately June 30, 1950.

C. (2) Interested in all legislation affecting Federal employees. This lodge supports any legislation beneficial to employees; is pledged to oppose that which might adversely affect the general interest of Federal employees, particularly those residing on the Canal Zone.

C. (3) None.

C. (4) Lodge 14's legislative representative is paid compensation at the rate of $825 per calendar month. It is in effect generally during the session of Congress. There are no anticipated expenses other than the $825 monthly salary. It is to cover all his expenses, and to reimburse him for absence from his regular employment.

A. E. L. McDonald (see quarterly report listing).

A. Joseph P. McSparron, Machinists' Building, Washington, D. C.; railway labor representative.

B. International Association of Machinists (labor union), Machinists' Building, Washington, D. C.

C. (1) Interested in substantially all legislation affecting the socio-economic and political interests of the American workingman including all pending legislation dealing with railroad matters.

A. David G. Macdonald,[2] 511 Continental Building Washington, D. C., attorney at law.

B. Refriegrated Carriers Association, 1206 Sylvan Road SW., Atlanta, Ga.

C. (1) H. R. 7547. Interest is to continue until passage of bill, which is to amend section 203 (b) (6) of Interstate Commerce Act.

C. (2) Compensation at $400 per month is for services as general counsel of organization and covers all duties performed of which legislative representation is a part.

C. (3) Only publication is mimeographed statement concerning scope and purpose of bill, duplicated by Bates Duplicating Co., Washington, D. C., 100 copies.

A. Winston W. Marsh, 1302 Eighteenth Street NW., Washington, D. C.; general manager of trade association.

B. The National Association of Independent Tire Dealers, Inc., 1302 Eighteenth Street NW., Washington, D. C.; trade association of independent tire dealers.

C. (1) Such legislative interests as I may have are expected to continue indefinitely.

C. (2) I shall have a general legislative interest in statutes or bills which affect the interests of the independent tire dealers. I shall have a specific legislative interest in S. 1008, to define the application of the Federal Trade Commission Act and the Clayton Act to certain pricing practices.

C. (3) The association of which I am general manager neither issues nor causes to be issued any publication solely in connection with legislative interests. The association does publish a weekly printed Dealer News averaging about 8 small-size pages per issue as a part of its regular membership service. The Dealer News discusses subjects of all kinds of interest to members, and in that connection will occasionally mention a statute or bill of Congress of particular concern to independent tire dealers and also will in even fewer instances suggest that members take a position on the matter with their legislative representatives. While it is the association which issues the Dealer News, I, as general manager, will have partial responsibility for its publication and in some instances will write or edit the articles appearing therein. Approximately 1,700 copies of each issue of the Dealer News are printed each week by McArdle Printing Co., 2201 M Street NW., Washington, D. C.

C. (4) My salary as general manager is $10,000 per year, paid in monthly installments of $833.33 each, together with actual expenses incurred in the performance of my duties. I have all the duties customarily assigned to a general manager of a trade association, and I have not been employed specially to perform any duties in connection with "legislative interests" nor are any such duties specified as a part of my regular functions. Consequently, any such activities will be extremely minor and only incidental to my other functions, I estimate that at most not more than 5 percent of my time will be utilized in connection with "legislative interests" no matter how broadly that term may be construed, and therefore not more than 5 percent of my salary could be allocated to such activities. I also estimate that actual expenses to be incurred in such activities will not exceed $25 per calendar quarter.

A. The Medical Society of the District of Columbia (see quarterly report listing.)

A. P. Harvey Middleton,[1] 33 South Dearborn Street, Chicago, Ill. (president of Railway Business Association, a national organization of manufacturers and other concerns engaged in furnishing the railways with material, equipment, and supplies).

civilian pursuits and in civil service; legislation which would eliminate all improper discriminations and be of benefit to the men and women who are still in our armed services; and all other matters included in the mandates and program of the American Legion as adopted and approved by the national convention of the American Legion and/or by its national executive committee which are the ruling and policy-making bodies of the American Legion; (a) due to the nature and extent of the work involved, it is impossible to specify the titles of statutes and bills; (b) the House and Senate numbers of bills, or (c) the citations of statutes.

C. (3) The legislative commission of the American Legion prepares an article on legislation pending before Congress, which is inserted in the American Legion magazine once a month. The American Legion magazine is distributed to all members of the American Legion. The only publication issued by the American Legion legislative commission is the Legislative Bulletin, which is issued once a week while Congress is in session; (a) the American Legion magazine is a magazine of interest to veterans, and as above stated, is sent to all members who have paid dues and is part of the consideration for payment of dues. The Legislative Bulletin is issued to subscribers and also to certain officers of the American Legion who receive same without paying any consideration therefor. Paid subscribers are charged $3 per congressional session; (b) during the past year slightly in excess of 3,000,000 copies of the American Legion magazine were published, and at the present time 3,376 copies of the Legislative Bulletin are issued; (c) the American Legion magazine is issued the early part of each month; the Legislative Bulletin is issued on Tuesday of each week while Congress is in session; (d) the American Legion magazine is printed by C. C. (3) One publication has been issued entitled "Taking a Hand in International Relations" in 1950; it did not deal with legislation; public affairs pamphlets (printed) are issued four times a year; they are not issued to promote specific pieces of legislation but are designed primarily as citizenship education. Occasional news letters are issued. these are mimeographed and at times give information on specific bills; They too, are intended primarily for citizenship education.

C. (4) (a) Compensation is by the month, (b) rate is approximately $160 a month for the person registering and a secretary, (c) legislative work is only a minor part of the work of the public affairs secretary; (d) expenses amount to approximately $120 a month for stenographic help, travel, mimeographing, stationery, postage, telephone, telegraph.

QUARTERLY REPORTS

The following quarterly reports were submitted on the new composite form for the first calendar quarter 1950:

(NOTE.—In order to reduce space, the composite form used for quarterly reports is reproduced below. Questions are not repeated, only the answers are printed and are indicated by their respective letter and number.)

File two copies with the Secretary of the Senate and file two copies with the Clerk of the House of Representatives:
"PRELIMINARY" REPORT: To "register," place an "X" below the letter "P" and fill out page 1 only.

I do not recall having any other material printed bearing on legislation during the first quarter of 1950, other than mimeographed circular letters mailed to approximately 468 persons, and individual letter imparting information about the status of legislation; answering inquiries relating thereto, and perhaps suggesting in response to inquiries that they write their Senators and Congressmen.

D. (5) $1,999.98; (6) $25; (7) $2,024.98; (13) no.

E. (7) $25; (9) $25; (15) $25.

Explanation of item A: I am president of District No. 44, International Association of Machinists, and chief executive of that organization. As a part of my duties I am expected to support or oppose as the case may be legislation of interest to the membership practically all of which consists of employees of the Federal Government and those who have been retired. Among my other duties are service on Government wage boards or making appearances before them. Taking up grievances and discussing conditions of employment with many Government agencies in the executive branch of the Government where our members are employed. Conducting organizing campaigns to keep up our membership. Answering a variety of correspondence; making reports; sending out circular letters; supervising employees of the district office; attending numerous conferences among my associates in the labor movement and with departmental officials; and attending conventions.

Section 307 of the Regulation of Lobbying Act of 1946 seems to hold that lobbying reports must be made out by organizations and individuals "the principal purpose of which person is to aid, in the accomplishment of any of the following purposes: (a) The passage or defeat of any legislation by the Congress of the United States; (b) to influence, directly or indirectly, the passage or defeat of any legislation by the Congress of the United States."

Since lobbying on legislation may conceivably regarded as not the principal purpose for the operation of District Lodge No. 44, International Association of Machinists, because far less than half of my time and that of my associates is spent on these endeavors, perhaps we would not be required to file these reports and thereby incur the penalties which are imposed for statements which are deemed to be not correct, i. e., "false."

Shortly after the passage of the Lobbying Act of 1946, "Judge" Joseph Padway, attorney for the A. F. of L., after examining the act concluded that the A. F. of L. international unions affiliated therewith, and similar bodies of labor, were not required to file reports as organizations because they did not exist solely or even in major part for the purpose of influencing legislation; and that only agents of these associations who were assigned lobbying duties were obliged to file reports.

However, this report is being filed, as have its predecessors, because I aim to be a law-abiding citizen and comply with the law regardless of advice of attorneys to the contrary.

In further explanation of C (2), during the first quarter of 1950, I have opposed the enactment of H. R. 4964, the title of which is "To provide for a fair and equitable allocation of work on naval vessels between Government and privately owned shipyards," and the purpose of which is to assign certain overhaul and repair work for the Navy to private contractors, whereas the current practice is to have most of this work done in the Government's own naval shipyards. I have opposed S. 2862, the purpose of which is to repeal or modify certain sections of the Vinson-Trammell Act of March 27, 1934, so that the Navy Department be not required to perform certain work in its own establishments but that the work may be let to private contractors. I have opposed H. R. 6827, regarded as a companion bill to S. 2862, for the same reasons. I have opposed the Douglas (Senator DOUGLAS, of Illinois) amendment to the deficiency bill, H. R. 7207, the effect of which amendment would have reduced the amount of annual leave to Federal employees who receive it from 26 days per year to 20 and the sick leave from 15 days to 12 days. I am expected to oppose or support as the case may be any other bills or legislative proposals that affect either favorably or unfavorably the working conditions of Government employees; and upon direction from the international president, or the general executive council of the I. A. of M., or with their approval, any legislation affecting organized or unorganized labor in general, such as the repeal of the Taft-Hartley Act, or the enactment of social-security legislation such as that contemplated by H. R. 6000.

Explanation of item D (5): $1,999.98 was the salary due me during the first quarter of 1950 as president of District Lodge No. 44, International Association of Machinists. This is compensation for my services of all kinds, a part of which is looking after legislative matters of interest to our organization, which, during the first quarter of 1950 did not take up more than 20 percent of my time.

Explanation of item D (6): $25 is the amount by which I have been reimbursed during the first quarter of 1950 for expenses which I have incurred in taxi service and for occasional meals and refreshments incident to legislative work.

Comment on item D (14): My entire salary and expenses are paid by one "person," i. e., District No. 44, of the International Association of Machinists.

Explanation of item E (15): See explanation to item D (6).

Explanation of item E (16): Of the sum of $25 noted in item D (6) above, none of it was expended on any one item amounting to $10.

The affidavit attached requires me to swear that my statement to the questions propounded are "complete, as I verily believe." It would be impossible within the limit of time I have at my disposal to make a "complete" statement, if that means covering all details. However, I regard this statement as "complete" in the sense that I have made a statement of my legislative activities sufficiently explicit as well as generalized to indicate the nature of my legislative work.

A. American Cotton Shippers Association and its six affiliated associations—Arkansas Cotton Trade Association, Atlantic Cotton Association, California-Arizona Cotton Association, Oklahoma State Cotton Exchange, Southern Cotton Shippers Association, Texas Cotton Association—318 Cotton Exchange Building, Memphis, Tenn. Article 2 of articles of incorporation: "The purposes for which this corporation is formed are: To organize and maintain a cotton association and to provide and maintain suitable offices and rooms for the conduct of its business, such offices and rooms to be located in such cities and/or towns in the United States and/or in foreign countries as may be deemed necessary or expedient; to adopt rules and regulations governing transactions between its members; to collect, compile, prepare, and disseminate statistical material relative to the cotton trade and other information of interest to its members; to properly lay before legislative bodies the views of the trade as a whole regarding laws existent or laws proposed affecting the cotton industry; to cooperate and treat with cotton exchanges, cotton shippers' associations, cotton buyers' associations, cotton manufacturers' associations, compresses, gins, and individuals in the United States and in any foreign country in evolving rules, regulations, and practices governing the cotton trade which shall be fair to all concerned, thereby increasing confidence and eliminating misunderstandings between buyer and seller, making it possible for cotton to be handled on a narrower margin of profit and expense between the producer and consumers; to maintain offices, agencies, and/or arbitrators in such buying markets of the world as may be deemed expedient from time to time; to act within its legal rights as a reliable clearinghouse for credit and collection information in the trade; to develop, establish, and maintain rules and principles of fair play in trade relations, thus stamping out, insofar as practicable, unfair competition; to engage in cooperative advertising or in the development of the public relations in the various interests concerned with the cotton trade to the end that a better understanding may exist of the services rendered the cotton industry by the cotton merchant or shipper; to cooperate intelligently in taking action in transportation and traffic problems as are national and international, and not sectional in their scope; to cooperate intelligently with the various governmental departments at Washington organized for the purpose of investigating, regulating, fostering, or developing certain industries and trades, such as the various branches of the Department of Agriculture, Department of Commerce, Federal Trade Commission, Internal Revenue Department, and with all Federal and State governmental departments and to furnish to such departments, when the occasion demands, the views of the trade as a whole; finally to foster, promote, and develop the cotton industry of the United States, and to engage in all such activities in connection with the cotton industry as come within the province of a trade association." This filing is intended to cover the six affiliated associations mentioned above for the period from January 1, 1950, through March 31, 1950. National affairs are handled almost exclusively through the American Cotton Shippers Association, but, in view of the fact that all income, except that resulting from the maintenance of domestic arbitration boards, if any, orignates through the affiliated associations, it is requested that their names be indexed also against this filing.

This report is filed solely in deference to the view of the Department of Justice which is believed erroneous and contrary to law. The income of the American Cotton Shippers Association is derived as follows: $25 annual dues collected for its account by each of the affiliated associations from each individual member of said affiliated associations whose headquarters is located in such associations; per-bale purchase fees collected by each of the affiliated associations for the account of the American Cotton Shippers Association on each bale of cotton purchased by the individual members at the rate of three-fourth cent per bale; export fees collected by each of the affiliated associations for the account of the American Cotton Shippers Association on each bale of cotton shipped for export, Canada not being considered an export country, by the individual members at the rate of 2 cents per bale. During the period from January 1, 1950, through March 31, 1950, the affiliated associations collected for and remitted to the American Cotton Shippers Association the following amounts: Arkansas Cotton Trade Association, Little Rock, Ark., $5,110.84; Atlantic Cotton Association, Atlanta, Ga., $5,300.02; Oklahoma State Cotton Exchange, Oklahoma City, Okla., $1,719.69; Southern Cotton Shippers Association, Memphis, Tenn., $23,235.42; Texas Cotton Association, Waco, Tex., $41,368.10; total, $76,734.07. No revenue was received from any of the domestic arbitration boards maintained jointly by the association and the manufacturers' association during this period.

Dental aid to education: Senate bills 1453, 1581; House bills 3828, 3894, 2525, 5940, 2524, 7235. Skilled aliens and displaced persons: Senate bills 1842, 2486, 2273, 2884; House bills 1344, 2692, 2018, 2788, 4567. Federal Department of Health: Senate bills 1581, 2060, 2940; House bills 184, 782, 1402. Miscellaneous: Senate bills 1103, 1603; House bills 2945, 3195, 3220, 139, 258, 447, 2371, 2693, 2980, 3033, 3089, 2135, 2136, 2211, 2743, 4203, 4582, 6000, 6297. The foregoing bills are listed according to general-purpose categories. While the association is not necessarily interested in the individual text of each bill, the general scope of each bill comes within some field in which the association is interested, and therefore bills falling into these categories are analyzed and followed by the Council on Legislation. Where the text of the bill or the broad, general purpose is covered by association policy, as expressed in the official actions of the house of delegates of the asosciation, the council takes an active interest in the fate of the bill, and if public hearings are held, requests the right to appear before the appropriate committee.

C. (3) Publications: The asosciation publishes officially at regular intervals the following publications: (a) Journal of the American Dental Association, Journal of Oral Surgery, ADA News Letter. The Journal of the American Dental Association is sent to each member. The Journal of Oral Surgery is sent to those persons who subscribe individually. The ADA News Letter is sent to all officers, trustees, and council members and to individual subscribers. The Journal of Oral Surgery contains neither articles nor editorials of legislative importance. The ADA News Letter from time to time contains news items concerning the status of legislation of interest to the dental profession. The Journal of the American Dental Association from time to time carries articles reporting on the activities of the council on legislation, articles dealing with current bills of general interest, and editorials explaining the American Dental Association's position with regard to pending legislation. None of these publications has for its principal purpose legislative matters of a lobbying nature and any effect upon legislation which they may have is only indirect. The American Dental Association also publishes from time to time pamphlets relating to various matters of dental interest, occasionally these will deal with a subject matter which is also a legislative proposition. Pamphlets published or distributed within the current quarter, which may have some legislative impact, are: Symposium on Dentistry's Participation in Health Plans, a compilation of papers presented before the American College of Dentists, some of which relate to dentistry's interest in compulsory health insurance bills; (b) 80,000 copies of this pamphlet were made available to the American Dental Association by the American College of Dentists, and were distributed by the American Dental Association; (c) date of publication not known; (d) name of printer, Waverly Press, Baltimore, Md. This symposium was a reprint from the fourth quarter 1949 issue of the proceedings of the American College of Dentists. The second pamphlet, printed by the Raynor Lithographing Co., Chicago, Ill., in February 1950, is entitled "A Dental Health Program for the Community, State, and Nation." It sets forth the program of the American Dental Association as adopted by the house of delegates at the annual meeting in San Francisco in 1949. It was given widespread distribution, and each Member of Congress received a copy. It is not a legislative propaganda pamphlet but is a restatement of a fundamental plan which was begun by the American Dental Association early in 1930 as a program for improving the dental health of the country.

The duties of the council on legislation, as set out in the bylaws of the asosciation, are (a) to protect and further the interests of the public and the dental profession in matters of patents, legislation, and regulations, and to make recommendations and plans to the board of trustees in conformity with policies approved by the house of delegates; (b) to disseminate information which will assist the constituent and component societies in their problems involving the enactment and enforcement of legislation involving the dental health of the public or the practice of dentistry.

A. American Farm Bureau Federation, Chicago, Ill. (211 North La Salle Street), Washington, D. C. (261 Constitution Avenue NW.); the American Farm Bureau Federation is a general farm organization with a membership of farm families in 45 States and the insular possession of Puerto Rico. It has approximately 1,400,000 farm family members. As a general farm organization it carries on an educational program involving the interests of farmers of a social, educational, and economic character.

C. (1) The legislative interests of the American Farm Bureau Federation have been existent since its organization early in 1920 and no doubt will continue during the coming years.

C. (2) The general legislative interests of the American Farm Bureau Federation cover primarily the fields of legislation affecting agriculture directly.

C. (3) The American Farm Bureau Federation publishes periodically two publications—one is known as The Nation's Agriculture, with a circulation of approximately 1,400,000, issued monthly to all of its members of record. In addition to The Nation's Agriculture it publishes a newsweekly. This is published semimonthly and has a circulation of approximately 29,000. This is circulated among the officers and directors primarily of the State farm bureaus and the county farm bureaus. The Nation's Agriculture is published by the Cable Bros. Co., of Mount Morris, Ill., and the newsweekly is published by the Prairie Press, 1230 West Washington, Chicago, Ill.

D. (1) See below; (13) no.

The American Farm Bureau Federation is a general farm organization having State farm bureaus as members. Such State farm bureaus which are members are in 45 States and also the insular possession of Puerto Rico. Substantially all of the income of the organization comes from dues which at this time are 50 cents per individual farm family.

The American Farm Bureau Federation maintains its home office in the city of Chicago, Ill., at 221 North LaSalle Street, and also maintains an office in the city of Washington, D. C., at 261 Constitution Avenue NW. In these two offices are staff personnel and secretarial and clerical personnel. This personnel is engaged largely in the development of the organization and the putting out of publications and the magazines referred to. The Nation's Agriculture is its house organ, with a circulation of approximately 1,400,000, and is circulated to all of its farm-family members. It also puts out a semimonthly printed newsletter with a circulation of approximately 29,000.

The American Farm Bureau Federation performs no lobbying service for any person. It receives no gifts or loans from any person for the purpose of influencing legislation in any way. There are certain of its officers and staff members who do make contacts with members of the United States Senate and of the House of Representatives. These persons are on a monthly-salary basis. They receive no contributions or gifts from other persons and perform no lobbying service for any person other than their employer, namely, the American Farm Bureau Federation.

Statement of income and expense, 4 months ended March 31, 1950:

Income: Membership dues collections from State organizations, $413,144.83; investment income from reserve set up for future operation expenses, $12,237.17; news letter subscriptions, $949.39; miscellaneous, $2,857.50; total income, $429,188.89.

C. (3) Publications issued in connection with legislative interests follow: Statement of John H. Hayes, chairman, Council on Government Relations, in testimony before the Senate Finance Committee in support of certain provisions of H. R. 6000. Sent to institutional members February 1950: Bates Duplicating Co., Washington, D. C., mimeographed 150 copies, $42.67; Premier Letter Service, Chicago, Ill., duplicated 4,000 copies, $207.15; distributed to membership from Chicago office, postage and mailing, $79.34; total, $329.16. Letter to officers of State hospital associations reporting proposal to reduce Hospital Survey and Construction Act funds in omnibus House appropriation bill: dittoed in Washington office, 150 copies.

D. (1) $6,637.63; (7) $6,637.63; (13) No; (14) The Washington Service Bureau is not maintained for the principal purpose of influencing legislation. In fact, legislative activity is a very minor part of the services the American Hospital Association renders to its membership and the hospital field. The total amount shown includes all items detailed under "E. Expenditures," for salaries and travel at percents shown and also includes the total expenditures for printed matter, office overhead, telephone and telegraph, and all other expenditures of the Washington office. This total of $6,637.63 will on an annual basis represent approximately 6.5 percent of dues received from members of the association.

E. (2) $3,477.07 (see note 1); (4) $525.53; (5) $952.65; (6) $329.69; (7) $643.08 (see note 2); (8) $709.61; (9) $6,637.63; (16) (see note 3).

NOTE 1.—Item E (2) includes the following salaries: Albert V. Whitehall (50 percent of salary), $1,270.83; Dorothy V. Peterson (50 percent of salary), $362.49; Gail E. Shaw (50 percent of salary), $300; La Fon Beville (50 percent of salary), $200; George Bugbee (25 percent of salary), $1,343.75; total, $3,477.07. Only a minor part of the activities of the persons whose salaries are reported could be considered as involving legislation. Consequently the amount reported includes the indicated percentage of total salary although it is believed that the proportion of activities devoted to legislation is much less than the percentage indicated.

NOTE 2.—Covers 25 percent of travel reimbursement of George Bugbee, $415.93; 50 percent of travel reimbursement of Albert Whitehall, $227.15; total, $643.08.

NOTE 3.—No recipients of expenditures of $10 or more in connection with legislative interests other than expenses for printing items listed in C (3).

A. American Hotel Association,[5] 221 West Fifty-seventh Street, New York, N. Y.; a trade association.

C. (1) Indefinitely.

C. (2) All bills and statutes of interest to the hotel industry.

C. (3) No publications except bulletins to State hotel associations and to members thereof (not sent to nonmembers or general public).

D. (1) $112,769.32; (6) $19,714.88; (7) $132,484.20; (13) see following: The American Hotel Association is a federation of State hotel associations. These State hotel associations presently have a membership of approximately 5,862 hotels located throughout the United States. The State hotel associations pay dues to the American Hotel Association based upon the total number of hotel rooms in the hotels which are members of the particular State hotel association. These dues vary from 50 cents to $1 per year for each rentable room. During the period covered by this report the American Hotel Association received dues of $112,769.32. In addition, the American Hotel Association receives varying amounts each year from the American Hotel Association Directory Corp., a corporation which publishes a hotel directory known as the Hotel Red Book. During the period covered by this report the American Hotel Association received $18,308.25 from the American Hotel Association Directory

[5] Filed with the Clerk only.

Corp. It also received $1,406.63 from miscellaneous sources, such as interest on Government bonds, etc. All of the receipts of the association are for general purposes and no allocation of funds is made for the purpose of influencing the passage or defeat of legislation. The association maintains a (1) business-promotion department; (2) service department, which tests materials, makes purchase recommendations, reports on new developments relating to service operation, advice and reports on fire prevention, laundry, food preparation, etc.; (3) labor-management relations department, which advises members on contracts, negotiations and developments in the labor-relations field; (4) statistical department, which prepares data on the industry, accounting and analysis of business trends; (5) publications department, which keeps the industry advised through a news letter and an operations bulletin. The American Hotel Association employs approximately 40 persons and retains approximately 20 consultants. The American Hotel Association maintains an office in Washington, in the Tower Building, staffed by M. O. Ryan, Paul M. Hawkins, and two secretaries. Messrs. Ryan and Hawkins have registered under the Lobbying Act and have filed separate reports as employees of the American Hotel Association. These two Washington representatives' activities consist of handling association and members' problems, relations, etc., with approximately 30 Government offices, following legislation affecting the industry, obtaining information, data, etc., useful to the association and its members. The total expense of maintaining the Washington office, including salaries and all other items, for the period covered by this report was $10,928.86. The total expense of operating the Washington office has averaged less than 10 percent of the association income. Expenditures which might under any interpretation be said to have been made by M. O. Ryan and Paul M. Hawkins as employees of the American Hotel Association in an attempt to influence the passage or defeat of legislation by Congress represent a small percentage of the moneys expended in maintaining an office in Washington. The reported figure of $10,928.86 is the total expense of operating this office for the period covered by this report, including rent, salaries of personnel, traveling, and all other expenses. The expenses paid to M. O. Ryan and Paul M. Hawkins as employees of the association and as reported below represent the total expenses for which these employees were reimbursed for all purposes, whether incurred in Washington, D. C., or elsewhere. The smaller amount of expenses reported by said M. O. Ryan and Paul M. Hawkins in separate reports represent amounts expended by them in Washington, D. C., and only insignificant amounts thereof could under any interpretation be said to have been expended in connection with legislative interests. The association does not consider itself subject to the Federal Regulation of Lobbying Act; however, it will file reports pending clarification of the act.

E. (2) See below; (8) see below; (16) M. O. Ryan, Tower Building, Washington, D. C., salary for first quarter of 1950, $3,550; expenses for first quarter of 1950, $1,495.37. Paul M. Hawkins, Tower Building, Washington, D. C., salary for first quarter, $2,050; expenses for first quarter of 1950, $150.93. Governmental affairs committee of the American Hotel Association, travel, hotel, and printing expenses, $4,827.30. Total, $12,073.60. (NOTE.—The above salaries represent entire compensation for services, only a small fraction of which might be said to be in connection with legislative interests. Expenses represent payments to taxicabs, railroads, restaurants, hotels, and airlines, etc., and only a small fraction thereof might be said to have been incurred in connection with legislative interests.)

A. The American Legion National Headquarters, 777 North Meridian Street, Indianapolis, Ind.; classified as civic league for social welfare.

C. (1) Indefinitely.

C. (2) Below is set forth a statement showing the general legislative interests of the American Legion and the work performed in connection therewith: The American Legion and all veterans of World War I and World War II and their dependents on all matters affecting their care, their rehabilitation, hospitalization, reeducation and housing; all matters affecting the general welfare of our country with regard to national defense; Americanization, included in which is opposition to all subversive activities and particular attention to our immigration and naturalization laws; child welfare, not only for children of veterans but for all children; aid and assistance to veterans in agricultural development; matters dealing with our foreign policy and foreign relations; the development of sound civil aviation programs and policies; and the development of sound and progressive programs for the employment and reemployment of veterans in civilian pursuits and in civil service; legislation which would eliminate all improper discriminations and be of benefit to the men and women who are still in our armed services; and all other matters included in the mandates and program of the American Legion as adopted and approved by the national convention of the American Legion and/or by its national executive committee which are the ruling and policy-making bodies of the American Legion. (a) Due to the nature and extent of the work involved, it is impossible to specify the titles of statutes and bills; (b) the House and Senate numbers of bills, or (c) the citations of statutes.

C. (3) The legislative commission of the American Legion prepares an article on legislation pending before Congress, which is inserted in the American Legion magazine once a month. The American Legion magazine is distributed to all members of the American Legion. The only publication issued by the American Legion Legislative Commission is the Legislative Bulletin, which is issued once a week while Congress is in session. (a) The American Legion magazine is a magazine of interest to veterans, and as above stated, is sent to all members who have paid dues and is part of the consideration for payment of dues. The Legislative Bulletin is issued to subscribers and also to certain officers of the American Legion who receive same without paying any consideration therefor. Paid subscribers are charged $3 per congressional session. (c) During the past year slightly in excess of 3,000,000 copies of the American Legion magazine were published, and at the present time 3,376 copies of the Legislative Bulletin are issued. (c) The American Legion magazine is issued the early part of each month. The Legislative Bulletin is issued on Tuesday of each week while Congress is in session. (d) The American Legion magazine is printed by C. T. Dearing Printing Co., and the Legislative Bulletin is printed by the Law Reporter Printing Co.

A. American Life Convention,[5] 230 North Michigan Avenue, Chicago, Ill. (See Exhibit No. 1.)

B. The American Life Convention is a voluntary, unincorporated, non-profit association of legal reserve life insurance companies. The purposes of this association as disclosed in article II of its constitution are: "Article II—Objects and purposes: The objects and purposes of the convention shall be: (1) To advance life insurance as a social and economic service and to encourage transaction of the business in the best interests of policyholders and beneficiaries; (2) to preserve public confidence in life insurance by the advancement of sound business practices; (3) to promote study and research to the end that the life insurance business may keep abreast of national progress; (4) to promote mutual confidence and understanding among the home offices, the field forces, and policyholders; (5) to furnish an outlet for presentation of institutional viewpoints on matters of supervision, legislation, and litigation." From the foregoing, it is obvious that the objects and purposes of the American Life Convention extend far beyond Federal legislative matters. While one of its objects is to furnish an outlet for presentation of institutional viewpoints on matters of * * *, legislation," nevertheless, this is only one of many. Even this one objective is strictly limited insofar as Federal legislation is concerned, by the fact that the regulation of insurance has been, and with the enactment of the McCarran Act (Public Law 15, 79th Cong.; ch. 20, secs. 1-5, 1st sess.; 59 Stat. 33, 34; 15 U. S. C., secs. 10, 11-15) will continue to be primarily the responsibility of the individual States; therefore, almost all of the legislative activity of the American Life Convention has been in connection with State laws. Insofar as pending and prospective Federal legislation is concerned, the American Life Convention expects to devote its principal efforts toward keeping its members informed as to its analyses and criticisms, if any, as well as the status of legislative matters affecting life insurance. It may also become advisable for a representative of the American Life Convention to appear before a committee of the Congress to give expression to the view of the institution of life insurance in connection with legislation which affects it. Any such appearance, however, is expressly exempt in the Lobbying Act itself from the registration requirements of that act. The American Life Convention's activity in connection with Federal legislation will be conducted only by its regular salaried employees, none of whom were engaged for the purpose of influencing the passage or defeat of such legislation. It seriously doubts that its so-called legislative activity falls within the scope of the Lobbying Act, but it is glad to file this form for the information of the Congress of the United States with the reservation only that such filing not be construed as an admission by it that said act applies to the activity of the American Life Convention.

C. (1) Unlimited.

C. (2) The general legislative interests of the American Life Convention include all prospective legislation which will or may affect the life insurance industry.

C. (4) The American Life Convention is a multi-purpose organization which does not receive any funds which are to be expended solely for the purpose of influencing legislation. Any such expenditures which may be made will be paid from our general funds raised by dues and assessments. There is no specific allocation of funds within the budget of the American Life Convention for Federal legislation. At the end of each quarter an estimate and report will be made showing the amount received from member companies which might be deemed to come within the meaning of the act.

E. (2) $9,967 (see explanatory statement below); (4) $1,655; (5) $3,500; (6) $543; (6a) $2,308; (7) $438; (9) $18,411 (16) Explanatory statement, general: The following statement, included in form A filed April 2, 1948, is made a part hereof: "The American Petroleum Institute (the institute or API) is a national trade association of the petroleum industry. The institute has been advised by counsel and believes that it is not now subject and has not previously been subject to the provisions of the Federal Regulation of Lobbying Act (the act and that it is not now required and has not previously been required to file any reports or statements under the act. The institute does not collect any funds to be used principally to aid in, nor is the principal purpose of the institute to aid in, influencing directly or indirectly the passage or defeat of any legislation by the Congress of the United States. Despite the fact that the institute expends only a very small portion of its funds for purposes which bear any relation to Federal legislation, the Department of Justice has expressed the view that the institute is subject to the act. Pending an authoritative construction of the act by the courts, the institute is filing this statement. By doing so, however, it does not admit that it is subject to the provisions of the act or that it is required to file this statement."

Receipts (item D): The institute does not receive any contributions for the purposes designated in subparagraph (a) or (b) of section 307 of the act. Its revenues are received from annual membership dues, from the sale at cost of its publications, and from contributions from individuals or companies engaged in the oil and allied industries. Some of the contributions received are earmarked for specific purposes, such as research projects, but no contributions are earmarked for the purpose designated in subparagraph (a) or (b) of section 307. To the extent that any of the funds of the institute may be deemed to be expended for such purposes, such expenditures are made out of the general funds of the institute, that is out of unearmarked funds collected for the general management and operation of the institute and its overall functions. In view of item 2 (c) of the instructions issued March 31, 1950, relating to receipts of multipurpose organizations, 1.5 percent of the general dues and contributions received during the period of this report is shown in item D–1 and 1.5 percent of the receipts from sale of printed matter during such period is shown in item D–4. This percentage represents the ratio of the expenditures shown in the institute's reports filed under the act for the year 1949 to the total general receipts of the institute in that year. It is contemplated that reports filed in the year 1951 will use a similar ratio based on 1950 figures. In accordance with the last sentence of item 2 (c) of the instructions, there is listed in the schedule furnished in compliance with item D–14 the name of every person who contributed a total of $500 or more to the institute's general funds during the applicable period even though such persons did not make their contributions solely for legislative purposes. The amount set forth opposite the name of each such contributor is 1.5 percent (the percentage used in items D–1 and D–4) of his total contribution during such period.

Expenditures (item E): The listing of items set forth in response to item E–16 is not to be construed as an admission that the activities or expenditures to which such items relate, or any of them, were for the purposes designated in subparagraph (a) or (b) of section 307 of the act or otherwise within the purview of the act. The activities listed are those which relate in any way to Federal legislation without regard to whether the purpose of the activity was to influence, directly or indirectly, Federal legislation and without regard to whether the activity might otherwise be outside the scope of the act. Included in the list of expenditures is an allocable portion of the salary of Baird H. Markham, acting president, American Petroleum Institute, and director, American Petroleum Industries Committee, American Petroleum Institute. Such allocation has been made on the basis set forth in the report filed by Mr. Markham. There is also included in such listing the entire salaries and expenses of Mr. Joseph L. Dwyer, Washington representative of the institute, and Mr. John E. Kane, Washington representative of the American Petroleum Industries Committee of the institute, even though, as set forth in the reports filed under the act by such individuals, their duties include many matters other than those related to legislation. There is also included in the expenditures listed the portion of the overhead of the Washington office of the institute (rent, supplies, utilities, stenographic, etc.) deemed reasonably allocable to the activities of Messrs. Dwyer and Kane.

A. W. C. Arnold, 200 Colman Building, Seattle, Wash.; managing director, Alaska Salmon Industry, Inc. The Alaska Salmon Industry, Inc., of which I am managing director, is a trade organization composed of concerns and individuals engaged in the taking and processing of salmon in the waters of the Territory of Alaska. The organization maintains offices in Seattle, Wash., Juneau and Ketchikan, Alaska, all of which are under my direction. The principal function of the organization and one which consumes approximately 75 percent of my personal time and effort and a still greater portion of the time and effort of the organization is the negotiation of labor agreements and the handling of labor relations with the approximately 30 unions and 15,000 employees and fishermen who participate in the Alaska operations. The second principal function of the organization and one which consumes more than 50 percent of its income is the financing and coordination of scientific and biological investigation carried on with respect to the Alaska salmon fisheries under a joint agreement between the Alaska Salmon Industry, Inc., and the Fisheries Institute of the University of Washington at Seattle. The organization also concerns itself with the general operating problems which arise in Alaska in connection with the seasonal production of canned salmon, such as transportation by land, air, and water, conservation regulations, consumable supplies, etc. When, from time to time, the Congress of the United States has under consideration legislation affecting the salmon industry, I appear before committees of the Congress, either in Alaska or in Washington, D. C., for the purpose of presenting information and stating the views of the industry on the legislation under consideration. Less than 5 percent of my time is spent in such activity, and no appearances were made during the quarter ended March 31, 1950.

B. Alaska Salmon Industry, Inc., 200 Colman Building, Seattle, Wash.

C. (1) There were no legislative hearings during the quarter just ended, but there are matters pending before the Congress during the quarter beginning April 1, 1950, in which the salmon industry has an interest.

C. (2) The nature of this interest is H. R. 331, a bill to admit Alaska as a State of the Union, which is now pending before the Senate Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs.

C. (3) No publications have been issued or are in the process of issuance and none are contemplated in the future. General: I have filed reports pursuant to the Lobbying Act since the law was passed because, from time to time, possibly once each year, I have desired to appear before a congressional committee, either in Washington, D. C., or in Alaska, with respect to legislative matters in which I have been interested or the salmon industry has been interested. As stated above, I made no such appearances during the quarter just ended, but I do expect to make an appearance during the current quarter; and while I cannot foresee what will occur in the future quarters, there is likelihood that matters of interest to me and to the salmon industry will arise. I incurred no expenses and have no expenditures to report for the quarter ended March 31, 1950.

A. Arnold, Fortas & Porter, 1200 Eighteenth Street NW., Washington, D. C., attorneys.

B. The Western Union Telegraph Co., 60 Hudson Street, New York, N. Y.

C. (1) Western Union as the principal telegraph system of the country will continue to have matters involving legislative policy before Congress and the appropriate committees thereof. It is therefore difficult to state a definite period. The company's full-time representatives will doubtless require continuing legal counsel and analysis of a variety of legislative problems affecting the company's operations.

C. (2) Any legislation involving the company's operations, particularly measures repealing the 25 percent excise tax on domestic telegraph messages.

D. (5) $3,334.72; (7) $3,334.72.

E. (6) $35.23; (7) $142.03; (9) $177.26.

A. The Associated General Contractors of America, Inc., Munsey Building, Washington, D. C., trade association.

C. (1) This association is continuously interested in all types of legislation affecting the construction industry. No funds are received or expended solely for the purpose of attempting to influence legislation.

C. (2) The association does not believe that its activities fall within the provisions of the Lobbying Act. (See detailed statement of activities set forth in letter filed under date of January 3, 1947, and letter filed under date of February 24, 1949, both incorporated herein by reference.) The association follows closely developments in the legislative field (including appearance before congressional committees) for the purpose of reporting the facts fully to its membership at frequent intervals.

Mr. Burt L. Knowles of the association is assigned to follow legislative developments while Congress is in session, and it is estimated that possibly two-thirds of his time is devoted to this assignment. During the first quarter of 1950 it is estimated that $1,350 might be apportioned to this particular activity. It is estimated that expenses, other than Mr. Knowles' salary, based on the time of the staff employees required for the analysis and dissemination of the many types of legislation, existing or proposed, on behalf of the membership, in the first quarter would approximate $3,750.

C. (3) A bulletin is sent to the membership by the association at intervals, setting forth pertinent developments in the construction field. This deals wtih all phases of its activities, including legislative reference.

A. Association of American Railroads, 929 Transportation Building, Washington, D. C. The Association of American Railroads is an unincorporated, nonprofit organization composed of member railroad companies operating in the United States and Canada and in Mexico. It is a joint agency of its member railroads, and its activities cover a wide range having to do with such matters as research, operations, car service, traffic, public relations, accounting, statistics, law, federal legislation, etc., insofar as they require joint handling in the interest of adequate and efficient railroad service. See also appendix I filed with the report of the association for the first quarter of 1948.

B. See D (14) for list of full member roads, A. A. R.

C. (1) Indefinitely.

C. (2) The association represents its full members with respect to all legislation affecting the railroad industry. In general, it opposes measures which are deemed to be against the interests of the railroads and against the public interest in a sound national transportation system, and supports measures which are believed to be in the interests of the railroad industry and in the public interest in a sound national transportation system. Besides the bills which may be supported or opposed by the association, numerous other bills are considered, distributed within the industry, and studied, with respect to which the association may take no action by way of support or opposition. The expenditures of the association in connection with its activities, including appearances at hearings before congressional committees and preparation therefor, with respect to bills falling in all three categories are included in the report of expenditures made herein. The legislative activities during the first quarter of 1950 included activities with respect to the following measures which were supported or which it is contemplated will be supported by the association: S. 1008, antitrust laws, basing point; H. R. 2908, airmail pay and subsidy separation; H. R. 2945, postal service, rates increased; H. R. 5237, Interstate Commerce Act, part II, amendment; House Joint Resolution 331, airmail pay and subsidy separation; and proposals to eliminate the transportation excise taxes; and with respect to the following measures which were opposed or which it is contemplated will be opposed; S. 211, Inland Waterways Corporation, capital stock; S. 238, Interstate Commerce Act, amendment; S. 3109, Great Lakes shipping; S. 3295, Railway Labor Act, amendment; Senate Joint Resolution 99, St. Lawrence waterway; H. R. 378, Interstate Commerce Act, amendment; H. R. 2138, Interstate Commerce Act, through routes; H. R. 4978, Inland Waterways Corporation, capital stock; H. R. 6906, Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act; H. R. 7474, Great Lakes shipping; H. R. 7503, Great Lakes shipping; H. R. 7550, to nullify section 1404, title 28, U. S. Code; H. R. 7789, Railway Labor Act, amendment; and House Joint Resolution 271, St. Lawrence waterway. The legislative activities of the association included activities also with respect to a number of measures which were neither supported nor opposed, as for example: S. 1847, transportation of advertisements of alcoholic beverages; S. 1944, Administrative Practitioners Act; S. 2408, Securities Exchange Act, amendment; S. 2645, American Standards Association, incorporation; S. 2786, long-range shipping; Senate Resolution 50, transportation investigation; Senate Resolution 239, national fuel policy; H. R. 2023, oleomargarine, to remove taxes on; H. R. 4446, Administrative Practioners Act; H. R. 5785, Interstate Commerce Act, conveyor belt; H. R. 5839, Forest Service, simplify; H. R. 6000, social-security amendments of 1949; H. R. 6251, Tariff Act of 1930, amendment; H. R. 6736, transportation of gambling devices; H. R. 6773, Internal Revenue Code, petroleum; H. R. 7008, military establishments, construction at; H. R. 7398, Federal Aid Road Act, amendment; H. R. 7429, establishment of Federal Traffic Management Service; H. R. 7430, establishment of Federal Traffic Management Service; and House Resolution 137, investigations, Judiciary Committee. In numerous instances there are bills identical with or similar to those listed above which have not been separately enumerated.

In September 1948 the Association of Casualty and Surety Cos. filed the forms required under the Federal Regulation of Lobbying Act. At that time, a statement attached to form A explained the operations of this Association and set forth the position of this Association with respect to the Federal Regulation of Lobbying Act. That statement, which was made a part of the Association's filing at that time, is equally applicable to the present filing. As was explained in our September 1948 statement, the Association has many purposes wholly unrelated to legislative activities. It is a multipurpose organization as that term is used in the instruction sheet accompanying the revised form of report to be filed pursuant to the Federal Regulation of Lobbying Act. None of the contributions received from Association member companies, nor any part of such contributions, is earmarked for legislative activities. For the purpose of making the reports required by the Federal Regulation of Lobbying Act, percentage factors have been developed which are then applied to certain items in our budget covering expenditures which can in any way be related, directly or indirectly, to legislative activities. The instruction sheet states that multipurpose organizations should list each contributor of $500 or more, regardless of whether a contribution was made solely for legislative purposes. All our member companies, with the exception of 7 companies, will have contributed at least $500 to the Association during the present calendar year. Such contributions, however, are, for the most part, for purposes wholly unrelated to Federal legislation. The attached data gives the distribution of expenses estimated to be applicable to Federal legislative activities, for the first quarter, on the basis of budgetary allowances.

A. The Association of Western Railways, 474 Union Station Building, Chicago, Ill. It is an association composed of the class I railroads in the Western District. It is by no means its principal purpose to deal with Federal legislation, yet it desires to be in a position to deal with such matters when the occasion does arise. For a detailed description of its business see the statement annexed to its Form A report for the last quarter of 1948 and the statement annexed to the Form A report of its predecessor organization, the Western Association of Railway Executives, for the first quarter of the year 1948, both of which statements are, by reference, made a part of this and all future reports filed by this association.

C. (1) This association is interested in any and all Federal legislative proposals which do or which may affect the western railroads. It may or may not engage in activity in connection therewith but desires to be in a position to do so and it expects to report its expenditures and otherwise comply with the law in the event it engages in such activity. Its legislative interests are to continue indefinitely.

C. (2) During the first quarter of 1950 this association did not engage in any activity concerning Federal legislation.

C. (3) During the first quarter of 1950 this association did not issue or cause to be issued any publication dealing with Federal legislative matters.

D. (13) No; (14) To show contributions received by this association in amounts of more than $500 from any one member, reference is made to the aforesaid statements referred to under paragraph A of this report. The receipts of this association are derived from assessments against its members who are assessed and who contribute in proportion to their gross operating revenues. No contribution or assessment paid to this association is earmarked for use for Federal legislative activities. Thus, it is necessary to make certain assumptions for the purpose of estimating the receipts of the association which may be considered as contributions for legislative purposes. The assumptions which are and will be so employed are as follows: It is assumed that the contributions to this association for legislative activities during any given period are equal to the estimated expenditures of this association for such activities during the same period. It is and will be further assumed (in order to estimate which railroads make an estimated contribution of $500 or more for legislative activities) that each member participates in the total estimated contributions for legislative purposes in the same proportion that it participates in the total contribution of all members for all of the activities of this association. There is annexed hereto [3] and made a part of this and all future reports a list of members of this association. All of such members are railroads and the abbreviations shown on such list are those customarily employed in describing railroads or railroad systems. The addresses for each of such railroads are those shown currently in the Railway Guide. There is set opposite each railroad and each group of railroads the percentage of the total assessment levied by this association, which is levied against and contributed by the individual railroads shown on such list. While these percentages may vary from time to time, the variation is limited and is not material for purposes of this report. Whenever the percentage set opposite any railroad or system of railroads shown on such list applied to the aggregate expenditures shown in this report or in future reports exceeds the product of $500, then that member is hereby automatically reported as a contributor of more than $500 and in the amount which is the product of the application of its percentage to the total amount of expenditures by this organization.

B. National Association of Electric Companies, 1200 Eighteenth Street NW., Washington, D. C. The National Association of Electric Companies is a trade association whose members are 100 operating electric companies. The preamble of its articles of association describe the functions to be engaged in by the association as follows: "In order to further the interests of the electric utility companies that are members of this association and their investors, employees and customers; to maintain the integrity and credit of the industry; to present to the public the essential facts about the industry to the end that there may be a better understanding between the utility companies and the public and a better appreciation of utility progress, achievements and problems; to coordinate regional activities among member companies; to furnish member companies information, reports, and statements concerning various phases of electric utility operations and developments; to further cooperation with all agencies and organizations interested in the supply and purchase of electric light and power; to furnish such agencies and organizations with information, reports and statements concerning member companies and the electric utility industry; to present the facts to the public concerning the public benefits resulting from the operation of electric utility companies by businessmen under governmental regulations and, generally, to engage in those practices recognized as being legal and proper to further said ends, certain electric utility companies do hereby establish a national association which shall be adequately qualified and empowered to act in every lawful way when concert of policy and action would be helpful." Thus, the association functions for the following principal purposes: (1) To keep member companies informed of Washington developments affecting them as operating businesses, including information and analyses of governmental hearings, orders, and regulations, both legislative and administrative; (2) to keep the public, including employees, consumers, and investors, informed concerning the accomplishments of the industry, its achievements in serving the public, and the plans of this industry for the future; (3) to furnish—and aid in furnishing—technical information to the instruments of government and to provide a readily available contact between government and the industry; (4) to provide the members of the association with a medium through which they can exchange ideas on problems of mutual concern and interest in order to better serve the public; (5) to act for the member companies in matters of common and national concern.

C. (1) The life of the association is of indefinite duration.

C. (2) One of the purposes of the National Association of Electric Companies as set forth in previous registrations and reports filed pursuant to Title 3 of the Legislative Reorganization Act of 1946 is to provide its members with a medium through which they can develop and exchange ideas and take appropriate action on problems of mutual concern and interest, including matters involving legislation. The association, therefore, and the registrant are generally interested in all developments in and of Federal legislation that might affect the association and its members as going electric utilities, including, but not limited to the following bills and statutes and amendments thereto: H. R. 7786, a bill making appropriations for the support of the Government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1951, and for other purposes; H. R. 5472, a bill authorizing the construction, repair, and preservation of certain public works on rivers and harbors for navigation, flood control, and for other purposes; Internal Revenue Code (53 Stat. 1); TVA Act (48 Stat. 58); Federal Power Act (49 Stat. 803); Rural Electrification Act of 1936 (49 Stat. 1363); Reclamation Acts (25 Stat. through 45 Stat.); Flood Control Act 1944 (58 Stat. 887); Administrative Procedure Act (60 Stat. 237). For specific detail concerning the policy position of the association, see the document entitled, "Opinions, Recommendations, and Answers to the Power Policies Questionnaire of the Staff of the Committee on Appropriations, House of Representatives, January 1948," filed with the Secretary of the Senate and the Clerk of the House of Representatives by the National Association of Electric Companies. A similar document now being prepared in response to a request of the Chairman of the President's Commission on Water Resources Development dated March 2, 1950, requesting the association's views on certain policy questions, will be forwarded by the National Association of Electric Companies to the Secretary of the Senate and the Clerk of the House of Representatives when it is completed.

D. (5) This registrant received during the first quarter of 1950 the sum of $4,166.67 from the National Association of Electric Companies on account of retainer fee as general counsel of the association; also the sum of $14.54 in reimbursement of out-of-pocket expenses, as reported in the previous quarter.

E. (2) and (5) There is no allocation by the registrant of these expenditures to any client and no client is charged for overhead. No additional persons are employed by the registrant by reason of its duties as general counsel of the National Association of Electric Companies. Reimbursement is received for out-of-pocket expenses, such as long-distance telephone calls, telegraph, travel expenses and taxicab fares, or other expenses of a similar nature, these being reported in detail. Such expenditures for the first quarter of 1950 were as follows: To taxicab drivers, $4.40; to Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co., $57.98; total, $62.38; (16) paid to Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. for long-distance calls, $57.98.

The preamble of its articles of association describe the functions to be engaged in by the association as follows: "In order to further the interests of the electric utility companies that are members of this association and their investors, employees, and customers; to maintain the integrity and credit of the industry; to present to the public the essential facts about the industry to the end that there may be a better understanding between the utility companies and the public and a better appreciation of utility progress, achievements, and problems; to coordinate regional activities among member companies; to furnish member companies information, reports, and statements concerning various phases of electric utility operations and developments; to further cooperation with all agencies and organizations interested in the supply and purchase of electric light and power; to furnish such agencies and organizations with information, reports, and statements concerning member companies and the electric utility industry; to present the facts to the public concerning the public benefits resulting from the operation of electric utility companies by businessmen under governmental regulations and, generally, to engage in those practices recognized as being legal and proper to further said ends, certain electric utility companies do hereby establish a national association which shall be adequately qualified and empowered to act in every lawful way when concert of policy and action would be helpful." Thus the association functions for the following principal purposes: (1) To keep member companies informed of Washington developments affecting them as operating businesses, including information and analyses of governmental hearings, orders, and regulations, both legislative and administrative; (2) to keep the public, including employees, consumers, and investors informed concerning the accomplishments of the industry, its achievements in serving the public, and the plans of this industry for the future; (3) to furnish, and aid in furnishing, technical information to the instruments of government and to provide a readily available contact between Government and the industry; (4) to provide the members of the association with a medium through which they can exchange ideas on problems of mutual concern and interest in order to better serve the public; (5) to act for the member companies in matters of common and national concern.

C. (1) Of indefinite duration.

C. (2) Registrant is secretary, treasurer, and director of research of the National Association of Electric Companies. One of the purposes of this association as set forth in previous registrations and reports filed pursuant to title 3 of the Legislative Reorganization Act of 1946 is to provide its members with a medium through which they can develop and exchange ideas and take appropriate action on problems of mutual concern and interest, including matters involving legislation. The association, therefore, is generally interested in all developments in and of Federal legislation that might affect its members as going electric utilities, including, but not limited to the following bills and statutes and amendments thereto: H. R. 7786, a bill making appropriations for the support of the Government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1951, and for other purposes; H. R. 5472, a bill authorizing the construction, repair, and preservation of certain public works on rivers and harbors for navigation, flood control, and for other purposes; Internal Revenue Code (53 Stat. 1); TVA Act (48 Stat. 58); Federal Power Act (49 Stat. 803); Rural Electrification Act of 1936 (49 Stat. 1363); Reclamation Acts (25 Stat. through 45 Stat); Flood Control Act, 1944 (53 Stat. 887); Administrative Procedure Act (60 Stat. 237). For specific details concerning the policy position of the National Association of Electric Companies see the document entitled "Opinions, Recommendations, and Answers to the Power Policies Questionnaire, 1948," filed with the Secretary of the Senate and the Clerk of the House by the National Association of Electric Companies. A similar document now being prepared in response to a request of the Chairman of the President's Commission on Water Resources Policy, dated March 2, 1950, requesting the association's views on certain policy questions will be forwarded to the Clerk of the House of Representatives and the Secretary of the Senate by the association when it is completed.

C. (1) Indefinite.

C. (2) Proposed Federal tax legislation affecting the interests of the Chase National Bank of the city of New York.

D. (13) no.

E. (16) The Chase National Bank of the city of New York does not believe it is subject to the provisions of the Federal Regulation of Lobbying Act. It retains the law firm of Milbank, Tweed, Hope & Hadley, of 15 Broad Street, New York, N. Y. and 821 Fifteenth Street NW., Washington, D. C., to represent it generally in legal matters. These legal matters involve a wide variety of services by a number of partners and employees of such firm. The bank makes no allocation on its records of the portion of the retainer paid for any particular services. An incidental and minor part of the professional services rendered by such firm involves the consideration of proposed legislation relating to Federal taxes by Howard O. Colgan, Jr., Clarence E. Dawson and Weston Vernon, Jr., of that firm. They have filed registration statements on form B with the Clerk of the House and Secretary of the Senate, wherein they state that they do not believe they are subject to the provisions of the Federal Regulation of Lobbying Act and that any Federal tax legislative work performed by them for the bank comprises only an incidental and minor part of their duties. The bank has been advised, and the undersigned believes, that none of the activities of Messrs. Colgan, Dawson, and Vernon are subject to the provisions of the Federal Regulation of Lobbying Act. If any of their activities are subject to the provisions of said act, however, the bank has been informed that no portion of the annual retainer might be attributed to such activities based on an allocation of time from the records of Milbank, Tweed, Hope & Hadley during the first quarter of 1950 and there were no disbursements pertaining to any such activities.

A. Chamber of Commerce of the United States of America, 1615 H Street NW., Washington, D. C.; federation of chambers of commerce and trade associations.

C. (3) Publications of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States which might be construed as issued in connection with legislative interests fall generally into two categories: (A) The first is the legislative reporting service of the department of governmental affairs. This service is basically built around the Legislative Daily, which has been distributed to Members of Congress. This is a two-page summary of developments in Congress of interest to businessmen. It is supplemented by an occasional bill digest summarizing new bills introduced which affect the business community. In addition, there is the Legislative Outlook which gives a biweekly prediction of the legislative picture. Then there is the special number, issued several times a year, which gives in the layman's language the basic issues in a specific bill. All four of these are designed for the use of, and are distributed to, the membership of the chamber. (B) Other publications are issued occasionally by the chamber's various service departments to present a specialized or technical point of view on pending legislation. Listed below are publications which might be construed as issued in connection with legislative interests: (a) Governmental Affairs, Legislative Daily, volume 7, Nos. 1 through 63; (b) 63 issues, about 17,900 each; (c) daily during sessions of Congress; (d) Judd & Detweiler, Inc. Quaal of February 21, 1949). CCBS receives all of its revenues from dues and assessments paid by the 15 member stations. These funds are not collected to be expended solely or principally for the purpose of attempting to influence legislation. All full-time member stations (i. e., stations operating full time on their respective clear-channel frequencies) share equally in the expenses of CCBS, and member stations sharing their particular clear-channel frequencies pay an amount equal to one-half that paid by full-time member stations. During the first quarter of 1950, CCBS received from its member stations the amount set forth in response to question D–1. This money was not received or expended solely or principally for the purposes set out in section 307 of the Lobbying Act. In response to question E, all expenditures made in connection with the employment of the director of CCBS, Ward L. Quaal, are set out although only a portion of these expenditures was made in connection with activities coming within the purview of the Lobbying Act. $286.11 (E–7), February 3, Edgewater Beach Hotel, Chicago, hotel bill of Ward L. Quaal; $15.22 (E–7), February 3, Netherland Plaza Hotel, Cincinnati, Ohio, hotel bill of Ward L. Quaal; $3,198.34 (E–2), January 19, February 2, February 17, March 2, March 20, Ward L. Quaal, reimbursement for expenditures; $776.35 (E–2), January 19, February 2, February 17, March 2, March 20, Norma C. MaDan, CCBS secretary, gross salary; $86.49 (E–5), January 19, February 2, February 17, March 2, March 20, Norma C. MaDan, reimbursement for expenditures; $11.08 (E–5), February 17, John S. Campbell, CCBS engineer, reimbursement for engineering supplies; $15 (E–2), February 17, Esther Willer, CCBS substitute secretary, salary; $528 (E–5), January 19, March 2, March 20, Shoreham Investment Co., District of Columbia, CCBS office rent; $45.57 (E–3), January 19, February 17, Calavo, Inc., District of Columbia, gifts; $31.50 (E–5), January 19, February 17, March 20, Telephone Answering Service, Inc., District of Columbia, telephone answering service; $486.57 (E–6), February 2, March 2, Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co., telephone service; $201.89 (E–6), February 2, March 2, Western Union, District of Columbia, telegraph and messenger service; $15.10 (E–4), February 2, Sound Studios, Inc., District of Columbia, transcriptions; $24.94 (E–5), February 17, March 20, M. S. Ginn Co., office supplies; $30.14 (E–3), February 17, California Fruit Growers Exchange, Los Angeles, fruit; $12.31 (E–5), March 20, George F. Muth Co., Inc., District of Columbia, engineering supplies; total, $6,622.85. Through inadvertence, affiant neglected to report in his report for the fourth quarter of 1949 that in November and December 1949, CCBS paid the Hotel Senator, Sacramento, Calif., and the Stevens Hotel, Chicago, Ill., the amounts of $234.56 and $283.87. These payments were for hotel bills of Ward L. Quaal. Broken down herein re E. 1–9 as shown in report of Ward L. Quaal. Payment of $238.55 made on April 2 included, as this was a reimbursement to Ward L. Quaal for expenditures he made during the first quarter. In addition, expenditures of $3.34 were made, $1.70 falling in category E–4 and $1.55 in E–5.

B. Chambers of Commerce of Panama and Colon.

C. (1) Not known.

C. (2) The firm with which registrant is associated has been retained to represent the Chamber of Commerce of Panama and the Chamber of Commerce of Colon in the protection of their commercial interests in matters before the United States Congress and United States Government departments. This undertaking will include, if necessary, advising and assisting them in supporting or opposing legislation affecting those interests by all proper and legitimate means. Registrant does not believe that any of his activities including those named herein fall within the terms "attempting to influence the passage or defeat of any legislation" as used in the Federal Regulation of Lobbying Act. This registration is being filed because of the uncertain interpretation of that act.

During this period the firm received from the named clients a fee for legal services of $10,000, and reimbursement for prior expenditures of $1,051.22; neither was in connection with legislative matters. My associate, T. Peter Ansberry, who is also registered in connection with this same matter will not be able to file his quarterly report until his return from overseas.

A. Harold B. Corwin, 1616 I Street NW., Washington, D. C.; assistant legal counsel.

B. Retired Officers Association, Inc., 1616 I Street NW., Washington, D. C. Preamble: "To inculcate and stimulate love of our country and the flag; and to defend the honor, integrity, and supremacy of our National Government and the Constitution of the United States; to foster fraternal relations between all branches of the various services from which our members are drawn; to aid the retired personnel of the various services from which our members are drawn in every proper and legitimate manner; and to present their rights and interests when service matters are under consideration, we unite to form the Retired Officers Association."

C. (1) Indeterminate.

C. (2) Any and all legislation pertinent to the rights, benefits, privileges, and obligations of retired officers, male and female, Regular and Reserve, and their dependents and survivors, of whatever nature, dealing with personnel matters, pay and retirement benefits, and pensions, studying and analyzing bills, preparing statements for presentation to the cognizant committees, and drafting amendments where indicated, appearing before committees of Congress, principally the Committees on Armed Services, the Committees on Veterans Affairs, and the committees dealing with various privileges, opportunities, and obligations of the personnel involved.

C. (3) The Retired Officers Association Bulletin. (a) An informational bulletin covering all of the activities of the association; (b) 20,000 per issue; (c) 15th of March, June, September, and December; (d) Graphic Arts Press, Inc.

D. (5) $900; (7) $900; (13) no.

A. Frank W. Cortright, 1028 Connecticut Avenue NW., Washington, D. C.; executive vice president, National Association of Home Builders.

B. National Association of Home Builders, 1028 Connecticut Avenue NW., Washington, D. C.; trade association.

C. (1) Indefinitely.

C. (2) I am not employed to support or oppose any legislation, but as executive vice president of the National Association of Home Builders, the trade association of the home-building industry. My employment is not dependent upon rendition of services which might be considered lobbying within the meaning of the Regulation of Lobbying Act. I have been advised by counsel and believe that I am not subject to that act, but this report is filed under protest and as a matter of personal precaution in view of the indefiniteness of the act and the lack of judicial interpretation thereof. This filing is not intended in any way to constitute an admission by me that I am subject to the act. This report is filed because I supervise, among other things, the work of that association's legislative department. In that supervisory capacity, I am interested in all legislation affecting the home-building industry. During the quarter covered by this report, such legislation included S. 2246, H. R. 7402, H. R. 6618, and H. R. 6742, Housing Act of 1950; H. R. 6070, housing amendments of 1949; S. 2440, a bill to authorize certain construction at military and naval installations, and for other purposes; H. R. 7846, a bill to amend title VIII of the National Housing Act, as amended, to encourage construction of rental housing on or in areas adjacent to Army, Navy, Marine Corps, and Air Force installations, and for other purposes.

C. (3) Although not published in connection with legislative interests, the association publishes a weekly news letter called the Washington Letter and a monthly magazine, the Correlator, each of which contains material of interest to the membership, including, as occasion requires, information on legislative matters. During the quarter eight issues of the Washington Letter were published, on the following dates: January 10, 19, 26; February 13, 25; and March 14, 16, and 24. Approximately 19,000 copies of each issue were printed by Packwood Printing Co., Washington, D. C. With respect to the Correlator, 19,100 copies were run in January, 24,000 in February, and 21,000 in March, by the Darby Printing Co., Washington, D. C. I also write an article each month for the American Builder, a monthly trade publication devoted to the interests of the housing industry (publisher, Simmonds Boardman Publishing Corp., Chicago and New York). News releases are from time to time sent to the Associated Press, INS, UP, and other national newspaper wire services by the association for publication in subscriber papers and magazines, some of which releases may contain material which might be considered as affecting legislation directly or indirectly. Neither the association nor I have any means of ascertaining a complete list of the publications utilizing such releases.

D. (5) $1,461.75; (7) $1,461.75; (13) no. With respect to reported receipts (item D), the amount reported represents my best estimate of the maximum proportion of my total salary and per diem which might conceivably be considered, on the basis of time, as allocable to legislative interests. My total compensation during the quarter was: Salary, $4,999.98; per diem, $847; total, $5,846.98.

E. (7) $226.01; (9) $226.01; (15) $226.01; (16) see explanation below.

Explanation of E (7): During the quarter I had total out-of-pocket expenses of $1,214.50 as follows: Luncheons, $21; convention expenses—travel, entertainment, taxis, tips, meals, etc.—$278.21; taxis in Washington, $52.50; travel, general, $784.04; travel for magazine, $32.25; entertainment, $39; miscellaneous, $7.50; total, $1,214.50; all of which was reimbursable to me by the association. Since none of these was specifically in connection with legislative interests, but were incurred in connection with my general duties as executive vice president, the expenditures reported under E represent 25 percent of the total which is my best estimate of the maximum proportion of my time which might be considered allocable to legislative interests, as explained in the note to item D above. The expenditures reported do not include items paid by the association directly as part of its administrative budget (such as secretary's salary, telephone, rent) and reported by it.

Explanation of E (16): As explained in note above with respect to item 7, none of the expenditures listed was specifically incurred in connection with legislative interests, and therefore the recipients of expenditures of $10 or more are not separately listed.

(NOTE.—Registrant did not directly spend any money for telephone, telegraph, travel, food, or lodging, but it has or will reimburse Miller, Gorham, Wescott & Adams for all expenses listed in the registration statement of William Simon.)

A. Council of Motion Picture Organizations, committee on taxation and legislation, 1131 Dupont Circle Building, Washington, D. C.; informal committee representing 10 motion-picture organizations.

C. (1) Only during present session of Congress or until final action has been taken in reference to Federal tax on theater admissions.

C. (2) No general legislative interests; concerned only with the repeal or reduction of said tax.

C. (3) Eight-page pamphlet (known in theater business as a "press book") containing suggestions to members of the industry for interesting theater patrons and others in repeal of the tax.

Explanation: Because of the peculiar nature of the organization and financing of this committee, the printed forms are inappropriate. Beginning in August 1949, a series of meetings has been held with a view to forming an all-industry organization to promote the public relations of the motion-picture industry. No such organization has yet been effected. At a meeting in December 1949 it was decided that pending formal organization an informal committee, consisting of one representative of each of the 10 principal motion-picture associations, should represent the industry in an effort to repeal of the theater admission tax. That committee consists of representatives of (1) Allied States Association of Motion Picture Exhibitors, (2) Motion Picture Industry Council, (3) Variety Clubs International, (4) Theater Owners of America, (5) Motion Picture Association of America, (6) Metropolitan Motion Picture Theaters Association, (7) Trade Press Publishers, (8) Society of Independent Motion Picture Producers, (9) Pacific Coast Conference of Independent Theater Owners, (10) Independent Theater Owners Association (New York). The committee has received no dues, assessments, or contributions. Certain of the constituent associations advanced to the committee the sum of $7,000 on the understanding that, when the Conference of Motion Picture Organizations was finally organized and began to collect dues from the motion-picture distributors and theater owners, it would pay back these loans.

Loans: Motion Picture Association of America, $3,500; Theatre Owners of America, $1,000; Allied States Association, $1,000; Metropolitan Motion Picture Theatres Association, $500; Pacific Coast Conference of Independent Theatre Owners, $500; Independent Theatre Owners Association (New York), $500; total, $7,000. The foregoing are all moneys received by the committee.

Expenditures: Printing, $294.84 (printing done by National Screen Service Corp., 630 Ninth Avenue, New York, N. C. (1) Affiant represents State Tax Association in all matters affecting community-property-tax subjects, in State and Federal taxation. Attempts to keep informed about developments relating to this field. Appears before legislative committees and arranges for presentation of testimony; meets with administrative officials in discussion of tax regulations and tax subjects. He is not under contract for any period of time nor for any specific fee, other than that if the State Tax Association has funds available it will reimburse him for expenses incurred in its service and pay a reasonable fee.

C. (2) Affiant specifically and exclusively, under this act, is interested in tax matters which threaten discrimination against community-property taxpayers or which threaten the sound interpretation of the basic community-property principle of our State law. No specific legislation at this time is supported or opposed, other than the general purpose to retain unimpaired the tax equalization principles of the 1948 Revenue Act and wherever possible to accomplish complete tax equality between community-property and common-law States. The general purpose of the State Tax Association is to bring about constructive cooperation between community-property and common-law States for the development of a plan of tax equalization which will afford an equitable basis for income, estate and gift taxation in the Federal tax structure. To support complete retroactive real of the 1942 estate and gift-tax amendments as they apply to the community-property States in an inequitable manner. To support the complete elimination of Federal estate taxes and restore estate taxation to the several States. We have supported and will continue to support the American Bar Association's recommendation for tax equalization.

The primary purpose of said committee is to look after legislation, taxes and legal matters of common interest to said railroad companies in the State of Colorado and secondary to give attention to matters pending before Congress of common interest to said companies.

C. (1) As stated under B, my primary interests are in connection with State matters and secondarily matters pending in Congress, so that the time during which my Federal legislative interests will continue is indefinite. My experience has been that in many quarters I do not participate in the consideration of Federal legislation and make no expenditures during these quarters.

C. (2) I am interested in all legislation both general and special that affects the railroads I represent. There are many specific measures pending in Congress among which are the following: Basing-point legislation; communications or operating rules bills; railway mail pay bills; transportation excise taxes; the St. Lawrence seaway; the Federal Barge Lines; parcel-post rates; repeal of Reed-Bulwinkle Act; bills changing the authority of the Interstate Commerce; and Senate Resolution 50, the investigation of surface transportation by the Senate Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

A. District Lodge No. 44, International Association of Machinists, Room 303, Machinists Building, Washington, D. C., labor union representing interest of Government employees who are members of the I. A. of M.

B. District Lodge No. 44 is subject to the direction of the international president and the general executive council of the I. A. of M. and subject to the will of the membership of District Lodge No. 44 as outlined at conventions and as embodied in its bylaws.

C. (1) Its legislative interests will continue without date of termination.

C. (2) Lobbying i. e., supporting or opposing as the case may be legislation affecting working conditions of Government employees and incidentally organized labor in general. Not more than 20 percent of its time and resources was spent on this work during the first quarter of 1950. For further particulars see page 3 under C–2 hereto attached. During the first quarter of 1950, a part of the personnel and resources of District No. 44 was used to oppose the enactment of H. R. 4964, the title of which is "To provide for a fair and equitable allocation of work on naval vessels between Government and privately owned shipyards," and the purpose of which is to assign certain overhaul and repair work for the Navy to private contractors, whereas the current practice is to have most of this work done in the Government's own naval shipyards. It has opposed S. 2862, the purpose of which is to repeal or modify certain sections of the Vinson-Trammell Act of March 27, 1934, so that the Navy Department be not required to perform certain work in its own establishments but that the work may be let to private contractors. It has opposed H. R. 6827, regarded as a companion bill to S. 2862, for the same reasons. It has opposed the Douglas (Senator DOUGLAS of Illinois) amendment to the deficiency bill, H. R. 7207, the effect of which amendment would have reduced the amount of annual leave to Federal employees who receive it from 26 days per year to 20 and the sick leave from 15 days to 12 days. It is expected to oppose or support as the case may be any other bills or legislative proposals that affect either favorably or unfavorably the working conditions of Government employees; and upon direction from the international president, or the general executive council of the I. A. of M. or with their approval, any legislation affecting organized or unorganized labor in general, such as the repeal of the Taft-Hartley Act, or the enactment of social security legislation such as that contemplated by H. R. 6000.

C. (3) District Lodge No. 44 has discontinued its publication of the Federal Machinist; the last issue was for September 1949. We have no record of any printed material bearing upon legislation having been printed during the first quarter of 1950. District Lodge No. 44 has issued mimeographed circular letters mailed to approximately 468 persons; and individual letters have been written imparting information about the status of legislation, answering inquiries relating thereto, and a few letters and telegrams have been written suggesting that letters or telegrams be sent Senators and Congressmen on legislative matters at interest.

D. (1) $8,142.88; (2) $750; (6) $809.25; (7) $9,702.13; (13) yes.

Explanation of item D (1) District Lodge No. 44, I. A. of M. derives its principal revenue from a monthly per capita tax received from 58 local lodges based upon the number of members paying their dues each month. Only 3 of these local lodges have paid in more than $500 each during the first quarter of 1950.

(2) The so-called grand lodge of the I. A. of M. pays into the treasury of District Lodge No. 44, $250 a month to help support one business representative.

(6) The $600 of this total of $809.25 consists of $200 per month paid in by Nels P. Alifas which consists of the monthly annuities due from an insurance policy which the organization purchased for him, but which monthly payments do not go to him personally until after his retirement. $205.50 of this amount consists of dividends and interest received from bonds and bank accounts of District Lodge No. 44, and $3.75 was a refund for overpayment by the Superintendent of Documents of the Government Printing Office.

Explanation of item D (14): Three of the 58 local lodges which pay per capita tax into District Lodge No. 44 in an amount which exceeded $500 during the first quarter of 1950 are as follows: $2,000, Nicholas Smedile, financial secretary, Naval Lodge Building, Washington, D. C., Lodge No. 174; $517.77, G. T. Hardesty, financial secretary, 1319 High Avenue, Bremerton, Wash., Lodge No. 282; $655.52, J. L. Briggs, financial secretary, 88 Oregon Avenue, Portsmouth, Va., Lodge No. 441; these amounts are not in addition to the receipts for dues and assessments as noted in item D (1), but are a part thereof.

E. (2) $4,999.53; (4) $82.40; (5) $624.66; (6) $288.04; (7) $199.54; (8) $972.98; (9) $7,167.15; (16) $300, January 3, N. P. Alifas, Room 303, Machinists Building, Washington, D. C., salary and expenses; $175, January 3, I. A. of M., Machinists Building, Washington, D . C., rent; $41.75, January 5, Nettie Bakersmith, Room 303, Machinists Building, Washington, D. The affidavit attached requires the affiant to swear that the answers to the questions propounded are complete, as he verily believes. It would be impossible within the limit of time he has at his disposal to make a complete statement, if that means covering all details. However, he regards this statement as complete in the sense that he has made a statement of the organization's legislative activities sufficiently explicit as well as generalized to indicate the nature of its legislative work.

B. American Petroleum Institute, 50 West Fiftieth Street, New York, N. Y.

C. (1) Not determined.

C. (2) Legislative interest related to excise tax on lubricating oils only.

D. (5) I am senior partner in the law firm, Dow, Lohnes & Albertson, Munsey Building, Washington, D. C. I am a special representative of the American Petroleum Institute in Washington, D. C., without general authority to act for the institute, but with authority to act only in connection with specific subject matters. The institute is interested in, and is opposed to, a continuation of the existing excise tax on lubricating oils. For that purpose I have been assisted by Donald C. O'Hara, who is connected with my office and who appeared before the Ways and Means Committee at a public hearing in opposition to the continuation of the tax on lubricating oils. There was substantially no other activity on his part or on my part in connection with this particular tax and, under the circumstances, the sum of $600 would be ample to cover the services rendered by Mr. O'Hara or myself in that connection.

A. Fayette B. Dow, attorney, Munsey Building, Washington, D. C.

B. Committee for Pipe Line Companies, Tulsa, Okla.

C. (1) Not determined.

C. (2) The Committee for Pipe Line Companies is interested in, and is opposed to, S. 571, which if enacted, would divorce pipelines that are subject to the Interstate Commerce Act from their existing owning companies.

D. (5) I am senior partner in the law firm, Dow, Lohnes & Albertson, Munsey Building, Washington, D. C. I am general counsel for the Committee for Pipe Line Companies, Tulsa, Okla. This is a committee whose representatives are connected with pipeline companies that are subject to the jurisdiction of the Interstate Commerce Commission under the Interstate Commerce Act. The Committee for Pipe Line Companies has made a report of receipts and disbursements for the quarter ending March 31, 1950, to which reference is made. The pipelines that are subject to the Interstate Commerce Act have no trade-asscoiation organization such as those which represent other media of transportation. They are, however, represented by a committee composed of individuals that represent the regulated pipeline companies. I am general counsel for that committee and as such have the responsibilities of an attorney for the committee not confined to activities involving Federal legislation. The Committee for Pipe Line Companies is interested in, and is opposed to, the enactment of S. 571, which, if enacted, would result in the divorcement of pipeline companies from the companies which have constructed and owned them. No hearings have been held on S. 571 during the quarter ended March 31, 1950, and I have engaged in no activities in connection with this proposed legislation or any other legislation and have not engaged in any activities for the Committee for Pipe Line Companies which fall within the provisions of the so-called Lobbying Act. The amount of my time devoted to consideration of S. 571 in any respect whatever would be amply covered by the compensation of $500.

C. (2) See statement under (5) of quarterly report, sworn to on January 9, 1950. Thereunder registrant supported H. R. 516 and S. 248.

D. The following figures represent the only receipts from his employer from which expenditures are made or will be made by registrant on behalf of his employer. They are a summary of all expenses incurred by registrant, while traveling on behalf of his employer, for which registrant either has been or will be reimbursed by registrant's employer. These expenses were incurred in performing all duties for which the registrant is employed including any activities which may come within the purview of Public Law 601, Seventy-ninth Congress. Segregation of these expenses as between the various duties of registrant, on behalf of his employer, is impracticable. Hence, no such segregation has been attempted for the purpose of this report: January through March 1950, 3 months' total, valet and laundry charges, $7.60; transportation, $53.66; hotel rooms, $267.63; meals, $562.24; tips, $34.20; taxi and bus fares, $57.45; long-distance and local telephone calls, $114.28; the above classification of expenditures is in the form in which they are submitted to registrant's employer for reimbursement.

A. Equitable Life Assurance Society of the United States, 393 Seventh Avenue, New York, N. Y.

C. (1) Indefinite.

C. (2) Proposed Federal tax legislation affecting the interests of the Equitable Life Assurance Society of the United States, specifically House Joint Resolution 371.

D. The Equitable Life Assurance Society of the United States does not believe it is subject to the provisions of the Federal Regulation of Lobbying Act. It retains the law firm of Milbank, Tweed, Hope & Hadley of 15 Broad Street, New York, N. Y., to represent it generally in legal matters. These legal matters involve a wide variety of services by a number of partners and employees of such firm. An incidental and minor part of the professional services rendered by such firm involves the consideration of proposed legislation relating to Federal taxes by Weston Vernon, Jr., of that firm. Mr. Vernon has filed a registration statement on Form B with the Clerk of the House and Secretary of the Senate, wherein he states that he does not believe he is subject to the provisions of the Federal Regulation of Lobbying Act and that any Federal tax legislative work performed by him for the Equitable Life Assurance Society comprises only an incidental and minor part of his duties. The Equitable Life Assurance Society has been advised, and the undersigned believes, that none of the activities of Mr. Vernon are subject to the provisions of the Federal Regulation of Lobbying Act. If any of his activities are subject to the provisions of said act, however, the Equitable Life Assurance Society has been informed that the records of Milbank, Tweed, Hope & Hadley show that no portion of the fees paid or to be paid to Milbank, Tweed, Hope & Hadley might be attributed to said activities during the first quarter of 1950, and there were no disbursements pertaining to any such activities.

E. (2) $680; (4) $57.50; (6) $26.11; (7) $40; (8) $23.72; (9) $827.33; (16) If the Equitable Life Assurance Society of the United States is subject to the provisions of the Federal Regulation of Lobbying Act because it retained Mr. Harrison Tweed, of the law firm of Milbank, Tweed, Hope & Hadley to appear before the Senate Finance Committee on its behalf, in opposition to House Joint Resolution 371, it has been informed that the portion of the fees paid or to be paid to Milbank, Tweed, Hope & Hadley that might be attributed to Mr. Tweed's activities, based on an allocation of time from the records of such firm, was $680 for the first quarter of 1950 and the disbursements pertaining to such activities were $147.33.

D. (5) $600; (6) $450; (7) $1,050; (13) no.

E. (5) $450; (6) $151.86; (7) $30.97; (8) $147.90; (9) $780.73; (15) $780.73; (16) $15, January 12, treasurer of Virginia, City Hall, Richmond, Va., for legislative bills; $151.86, January 31, February 31, March 31, Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Co., 703 East Grace Street, Richmond, Va., for long-distance telephone and telegraph; $132.90, January 31, February 31, March 31, United States Government, for postage; $30.97, February 7, February 8, Hotel Monticello, Charlottesville, Va., for traveling expenses to Charlottesville, Va., and return, including transportation, meals, and miscellaneous; $330.73, total. Explanation: National Tax Equality Association, 231 South LaSalle Street, Chicago, Ill., pays the undersigned $200 per month for services rendered, which is carried by the undersigned as a fee in connection with his activities under the Lobbying Act. Virginia Associated Businessmen, 512 Travelers Building, Richmond, Va., pays the undersigned $150 per month on account of general office expenses in lieu of the payment of rent, normal stenographic service, and basic telephone service, which is carried by the undersigned as a contribution to general overhead expenses. The office of Virginia Associated Businessmen is in the suite of offices of the undersigned.

A. Excise Tax Committee of the Office Equipment Manufacturers Institute (OEMI), 1903 N Street NW., Washington, D. C.; the Office Equipment Manufacturers Institute is a nonprofit trade association devoted to the general industrial problems and interests of the office equipment manufacturers industry. Supplemental statement: Statements have heretofore been filed (old form A) with the Clerk of the House of Representatives in the name of the Office Equipment Manufacturers Institute (hereinafter referred to as OEMI) for the quarters ending September 30, 1949, and December 31, 1949, reporting the legislative activities of the OEMI with respect to the pending legislation to repeal the Federal excise tax on business and store machines. On December 8, 1949, a committee designated as the excise-tax committee of the OEMI was appointed by the president of the Institute pursuant to his authority under the by-laws, to represent the Institute and to act for it in all matters pertaining to this particular legislation. Since that time this committee has functioned in this capacity as the duly constituted agency authorized to represent the association in all matters pertaining to this subject. Expenditures for this legislative purpose are and have been authorized and recommended by the committee and all receipts devoted to this purpose are received from and on behalf of the Institute which is the sole source of the committee's funds. Similarly, all expenditures are made out of funds of the Institute contributed to and made available to the committee for its purposes. Inasmuch as this committee is the designated and acting organization responsible for the sole legislative activity of the Institute, which is engaged generally in numerous and varied activities affecting the business machines and equipment manufacturing industry, having no relationship whatsoever to the subject of Federal legslation, it is deemed that from a realistic and truly functional standpoint this report should properly be filed by this legislative committee of the OEMI and not by the Institute. Accordingly this report and subsequent reports will be filed by the duly authorized legislative committee of the Institute.

C. (1) Present legislative interests will terminate with the enactment of legislation terminating the Federal excise tax on business and store machines. Such legislation is now pending before the Congress.

C. (2) (a) Repeal of the Federal excise tax on business and store machines imposed by section 3406 (a) (6) of the Internal Revenue Code. (b) H. R. 7003, 5864, 6151, 1724.

C. (3) Regular information bulletin which is issued weekly by the OEMI and mailed to members. This bulletin reports information on many subjects of interest to the members of the Institute. While reference is made occasionally to legislative items, this bulletin is not issued or caused to be issued in connection with legislative interests. (b) 225 copies; (c) published weekly; (d) bulletin is multigraphed by OEMI staff, not printed.

D. (1) $3,751.35; (7) $3,751.35; (13) yes; (14) $3,751.35, Office Equipment Manufacturers Institute, 1903 N Street NW, Washington, D. C.

E. (2) $1,028; (3) $2,500; (4) $7.44; (5) $25 (estimated); (6) $76.94; (7) $112.47; (8) $1.50 (notary fee); (9) $3,751.35; (16) On December 22, 1949, the excise tax committee recommended and authorized a contribution of $1,250 to the National Committee for the Repeal of Wartime Excise Taxes. This item is referred to in detail in the report (form A) filed with the Clerk of the House for the period ending December 31, 1949. In addition to this contribution, the excise-tax committee on March 21, 1950, recommended and authorized an additional contribution of $2,500, reported in paragraph E (3) herein, for the purposes of the National Committee for the Repeal of Wartime Excise Taxes. This contribution was made to the latter committee out of the funds of the OEMI which was made available to the excise-tax committee for this specific purpose, and was paid to the National Committee for the Repeal of Wartime Excise Taxes on March 21, 1950. The other expenditures referred to in items 1–8 of paragraph E represent those expenditures which have been fairly and reasonably estimated, in good faith, to have been made in connection with the legislative activities and interests of the excise-tax committee during the calendar quarter ended March 31, 1950: $970 (estimated), portion of salary paid bimonthly, Edward D. Taylor, administrative vice president, Office Equipment Manufacturers Institute, and administrative member, excise-tax committee of OEMI, 1903 N Street NW., Washington, D. C., salary; $58 (estimated), portion of salary paid bimonthly, Mrs. Ingrid Wheeler, 2102 Suitland Terrace SE., Washington, D. A. Andrew Paul Federline, 1833 Jefferson Place NW., Washington, D. C., Washington counsel (attorney).

B. Bureau of Salesmen's National Associations, Bona Allen Building, Atlanta, Ga.; the bureau is maintained by three national salesmen's associations, namely, National Association of Women's and Children's Apparel Salesmen, Inc., the National Shoe Travelers' Association, and the National Association of Men's Apparel Clubs, Inc.

C. (1) Indefinite, as matters of interest to my client may occur, since my status is that of Washington counsel for this group.

C. (2) Repeal of the tax on transportation; and inclusion of outside salesmen in the manufacturing or wholesale trade specifically as employees under the social-security laws. Any new tax legislation aimed at repealing the transportation tax, and H. R. 6000 on social-security amendments and similar bills.

C. (3) Have not issued or caused to be issued any publication. Our activity has been referred to in newspaper articles; in NAWCAS News (published monthly by the National Association of Women's and Children's Apparel Salesmen); and possibly in other publications, of which I have no record.

My retainer of $200 per month for serving as Washington counsel covers legislative as well as other work I do in Washington for this group. Any expenses reimbursed are nominal. Am entitled to additional fees for extraordinarily heavy assignments, none of which has occurred as yet in connection with legislative work.

D. (5) $600 (legal retainer); (9) $600; (14) Note: Am not sure I know just what "contributor" here means. As indicated above, I receive $200 per month as a legal retainer from the Bureau of Salesmen's National Associations, which amounts to $600 for first quarter. There are no other contributions in connection with this employment, unless the amounts paid to the bureau by its contributing members are so classified. I have no knowledge as to what these amounts are. Of the amounts paid to me monthly, $100 is on a bureau check and the other on a NAWCAS check, but my employer presumably is the bureau.

E. (2) $513.36 net accruing to me for services; (5) $86.64 (chargeable to this income); expenditure of $86.64 was for office rent and telephone (proportionate share of expense chargeable against this income).

Miscellaneous: Senate bills 1103, 1603; House bills 2945, 3195, 3220, 139, 258, 447, 2371, 2893, 2980, 3033, 3089, 2135, 2136, 2211, 2743, 4203, 4582, 6000, 6297. The foregoing bills are listed according to general-purpose categories. While the association is not necessarily interested in the individual text of each bill, the general scope of each bill comes within some field in which the association is interested, and, therefore, bills falling into these categories are analyzed and followed by the council on legislation. Where the text of the bill or the broad general purpose is covered by association policy, as expressed in the official actions of the house of delegates of the association, the council takes an active interest in the fate of the bill, and if public hearings are held, requests the right to appear before the appropriate committee.

C. (3) Preparation of articles dealing with legislative projects for the Journal of the American Dental Association. The association publishes officially at regular intervals, the following publications: (a) Journal of the American Dental Association, Journal of Oral Surgery, ADA news letter. The Journal of the American Dental Association is sent to each member. The Journal of Oral Surgery is sent to those persons who subscribe individually. The ADA news letter is sent to all officers, trustees, and council members and to individual subscribers. The Journal of Oral Surgery contains neither articles nor editorials of legislative importance. The ADA news letter from time to time contains news items concerning the status of legislation of interest to the dental profession. The Journal of the American Dental Association from time to time carries articles reporting on the activities of the council on legislation, articles dealing with current bills of general interest and editorials explaining the American Dental Association's position with regard to pending legislation. None of these publications has for its principle purpose legislative matters of a lobbying nature and any effect upon legislation which they may have is only indirect. The American Dental Association also publishes from time to time pamphlets relating to various matters of dental interest, occasionally these will deal with a subject matter which is also a legislative proposition. Pamphlets published or distributed within the current quarter, which may have some legislative impact, are: Symposium on Dentistry's Participation in Health Plans, a compilation of papers presented before the American College of Dentists, some of which relate to dentistry's interest in compulsory health-insurance bills.

(b) Eighty thousand copies of this pamphlet were made available to the American Dental Association by the American College of Dentists, and were distributed by the American Dental Association.

(c) Date of publication not known.

(d) Name of printer: Waverly Press, Baltimore, Md. This symposium was a reprint from the fourth quarter 1949 issue of the proceedings of the American College of Dentists. The second pamphlet, printed by the Raynor Lithographing Co., Chicago, Ill., in February 1950, is entitled "A Dental Health Program for the Community, State, and Nation." It sets forth the program of the American Dental Association as adopted by the house of delegates at the annual meeting in San Francisco in 1949. It was given widespread distribution and each Member of Congress received a copy. It is not a legislative propaganda pamphlet but is a restatement of a fundamental plan which was begun by the American Dental Association early in 1930 as a program for improving the dental health of the country.

A. General Federation of Women's Clubs, 1734 N Street NW., Washington, D. C.

B. The General Federation of Women's Clubs is a national and international organization, with an affiliated membership of some 11,000,000. One-half of the members are in the United States, the territories, and possessions and in 14 affiliated national organizations. The General Federation does not represent or dictate the policies of these national organizations. The object of the General Federation is "to unite the women's clubs and like organizations throughout the world for the purpose of mutual benefit, and for the promotion of their common interest in education, philanthropy, public welfare, moral values, civics, and fine arts." The General Federation is nonpartisan and nonpolitical. The major interests of the clubs are along educational and welfare lines—to provide adequate education opportunites for children and adults; to promote better care for the mentally and physically ill; to conserve natural resources; to further interest in music, literature, and art; and to foster better international relations. The General Federation of Women's Clubs employs no professional lobbyist. What active interest the organization takes in legislation at any time is only incidental to the general policies. Authority for supporting or opposing legislation is provided through the adoption of a resolution in national convention. During the first quarter of 1950 the General Federation submitted statements in support of ERA, Forest Conservation, the International Trade organization appropriations, and Alaska statehood. The Department of Legislation is one of the seven departments of the General Federation. This Department, together with 20 standing committees, the Council of International Clubs and the Junior Clubs, receives supervision, counsel, and aid from the president. Much of the president's time is necessarily spent visiting State organizations. In the interest of international good will, foreign clubs throughout the world have been visited. The General Federation president and the chairman of legislation are volunteer workers. For all the activities of the General Federation the operating income—received mainly from dues—was approximately $162,000 for the fiscal year ending March 1950. The General Federation receives no contributions to be used for lobbying. It is impossible to evaluate how much of the income is used for the comparatively small amount expended in submitting statements to Congress, for telegrams, postage, and miscellaneous.

A. Dr. H. Truman Gordon, post-office box 365, Wausau, Wis. (formerly at 2257 East Washington Avenue, Madison, Wis.), State organizer and lecturer for the Townsend Plan, Inc.; building citizen support for a Federal retirement pension for all United States citizens.

B. Dr. F. E. Townsend, president of the Townsend Plan, Inc., 6875 Broadway, Cleveland, Ohio; sponsoring bills in Congress, H. R. 2135 and H. R. 2136, to provide every adult citizen in the United States with equal, basic Federal insurance, permitting retirement, with benefits at age 60, and also covering total disability for certain citizens under age 60, in the Eighty-first Congress.

C. (1) This work, to secure enactment of just, equitable, and practical legislation to provide retirement Federal pension (on a living basis) for every American citizen at age 60, if unemployed or retired; and protective disability benefits for certain disabled citizens, under age 60, will and must go on, until the United States Congress recognizes the injustice and unworthiness and inadequacy of the present (so-called) Social Security Act.

C. (2) My personal chief interest in this work—as a former clergyman and lecturer on economic subjects—is based upon the fact that I have observed and investigated many hundreds of cases where our senior citizens are forced to live in great poverty and need due to the fact that our Social Security Act and/or its proposed amendments under H. R. 6000 is wholly and entirely inadequate, and from every standpoint is unfair and unjust (if not a fraud) upon many millions of our senior citizens, as well as to those that are physically disabled. We continue to build citizen support for H. R. 2135 and H. R. 2136 in the House of Representatives by organizing more Townsend clubs and increasing our organization's membership.

C. (3) I occasionally mail out a bulletin; see Expenditures, point E (4).

D. (5) $594.87; (6) $106; (7) $700.87. Note please: The item above (5) of $594.87 represents commission of 25 percent on funds I send to Townsend Plan, Inc., Cleveland, Ohio, for memberships into Townsend clubs received. And item (6), $106, represents some small donations, running from $1 up to $5 each, to assist in payment of traveling and organizing expenses.

B. Hill & Knowlton, Inc., public relations counsel to the Aircraft Industries Association, a national trade association for the aircraft manufacturing industry.

C. (1) Indefinite.

C. (2) I report legislative developments to the members of the Aircraft Industries Association, but during the past quarter and for the foreseeable future I am not employed to support or to oppose any particular bill or statute.

C. (3) During the past quarter I supervised the issuance of press releases and other publications dealing with aviation problems and the general subject of air power, but none of these applied specifically to any particular bill now pending before the Congress, except that reports to Association members included description of the contents of the Appropriation bill for 1951 (H. R. 7786).

D. (5) During the past quarter I estimate that less than 10 percent of my time was spent in compiling reports on legislative developments for distribution to the members of the Aircraft Industries Association. Therefore, less than 10 percent of the salary paid by the Aircraft Industries Association to Hill & Knowlton, Inc. for my services for this period of time (or approximately $325) is being reported.

C. (1) The undersigned was in Washington during the last quarter of 1949 relative to the Agricultural Committee of the House on cotton legislation and amendment to Public Law 272. The undersigned, during 1950, has not been engaged in any matters relative to said legislation and as a matter of fact will not be so engaged unless future arrangements are made. There is a tentative discussion in the San Joaquin Valley as to the organization of a group of farmers who might employ a legislative representative to attend committee meetings and testify relative the interests of the cotton farmers. I suggest at this time you take my name off the list as my legislative interests have terminated with the past quarter. Should I be engaged in any other work I shall notify the respective Secretary of the Senate and the Clerk of the House.

B. National Association of Broadcasters, 1771 N Street NW., Washington, D. C.; a national trade association.

C. General statement: Registrant is interested in any legislation, local, State, Federal or international, which affects the broadcasting industry.

C. (1) As outlined above under A, registrant will continue to have a "legislative interest" as long as he occupys his present position with his employer.

C. (2) As stated above, registrant has general interest in radio legislation, and particular interest during the past quarter in S. 1973, Senate Resolution 256, and the President's Reorganization Plan No. 11.

C. (3) On March 15, 1950, registrant sent approximately 40 copies of a mimeographed letter, relating to S. 1973, to members of the broadcasting industry.

The registrant does not fill in D and E hereof because of the ambiguous phrase "in connection with legislative interests." The registrant is of the opinion and has been advised that the Federal Regulation of Lobbying Act of 1946 is not applicable to him. However, he has registered to show his good faith and in order that no question will be raised by any person concerning the propriety of his performing any act respecting Federal legislation. Any activities from time to time of registrant relating to the passage or defeat of any legislation by the Congress of the United States are incidental to his broad duties and activities briefly set forth under A above. The registrant does not directly or indirectly solicit or receive money or other thing of value to aid, nor is the principal purpose of registrant to aid, in the accomplishment of the passage or defeat of any legislation by the Congress of the United States, or to influence, directly or indirectly, the passage or defeat of any legislation by the Congress of the United States. The total money received and expended by the registrant during the first quarter of 1950 is $4,375.02 received as salary for performance of all his activities, and $1,379.59 received for expenses relating thereto for same period. The approximate cost of activity listed under C. (3) was $2.50.

A. Ronald B. Harris, attorney at law, 602 T. W. Patterson Building, Fresno, Calif. (California Irrigation Districts Association, Pacific Building, Fourth and Market Streets, San Francisco, Calif.).

B. I am regularly employed as general counsel by the following irrigation districts: Consolidated irrigation district, Selma, Calif.; Madera irrigation district, Madera, Calif.; Stratford irrigation district, Stratford, Calif.; Empire West Side irrigation district, Stratford, Calif.; James irrigation district, San Joaquin, Calif.; Tranquillity irrigation district, Tranquillity, Calif.; Crescent Canal Co. (mutual water company), 5548 Harvey, Fresno, Calif.; Patterson Water Co. (mutual water company), Patterson, Calif. From these districts and mutual water companies I receive a regular annual retainer fee. Occasionally there is Federal legislation in which some or all of these units are interested and for which they send me to Washington, D. C., in their behalf for which I receive no additional compensation but for which they proportionately pay the expenses which will vary depending on the number that are interested. My employment by the Irrigation Districts Association on Federal legislation terminated some time ago and I have not appeared in Washington on any legislation in its behalf since the last report I made. I have had no activity in regard to any Federal legislation other than to keep advised as to what is going on, but will be in Washington on May 1 and 2 in opposition to the White bill, H. R. 5264. I do not expect to testify before the committee but only to be there in an advisory capacity as to those who will testify. Because of my limited activities, I question whether or not I really come within the intent of the Lobbying Act as is exemplified by reason that the form, outside of actual travel and living expenses, does not fit the basis of my employment.

A. Winder R. Harris, vice president, Shipbuilders Council of America, 441 Washington Building, Washington, D. C.; trade association.

B. Shipbuilders Council of America, trade association, room 2501 21 West Street, New York, N. Y.; trade association.

C. (1) Indefinite.

C. (2) Legislation affecting the American merchant marine: S. 2786 and H. R. 5346, companion long-range shipping bills; Reorganization Plan No. 21, dealing with the United States Maritime Commission.

D. My annual salary, which is the only form of compensation I receive, is on file in my original registration. I know of no way accurately to allocate a percentage of it to whatever little activity I may engage in relative to legislation. The far greater portion of my efforts are devoted to other matters having no connection with pending legislation, and, obviously, they are not exerted at the Capitol. I am only concerned with legislation when there is under consideration some measure dealing with the merchant marine in an important way. The only direct expenditure which may be said to be in connection with legislation is for taxicabs and street-car fares when these means of transportation are used on trips to and from the Capitol. In the first quarter of this year, which the accompanying report covers, the total amount expended by me for taxicabs and street cars was $40.80. Possibly a fourth or a third of this went for trips to and from the Capitol, and most of these trips were for the purpose of attending open committee hearings. I have received no contributions (only salary) or loans, nor made any loans to others.

E. (5) $152.05; (7) $128.57; (9) $280.62.

A. Merwin K. Hart, Empire State Building, New York, N. Y.; general work of employer.

B. National Economic Council, Inc., Empire State Building, New York, N. Y.; educational organization, not for profit.

C. (1) Indefinite.

C. (2) General legislative interest on which I have taken a position: Various measures before the Congress affecting the preservation of private enterprise, private property and individual initiative, and affecting the preservation of American independence. These measures are: H. R. 6000, to extend Federal old-age and survivors insurance system and Social Security Act; S. 1404, antilynching bill; S. 1726, antilynching bill; Senate Concurrent Resolution 56, world federation; H. R. 5615, aid to undeveloped areas; H. R. 4682, civil rights; Genocide Convention. It is possible that we have uttered something either for or against other measures in the course of our activities during this quarter, which measures we cannot recall at the present time.

A. Stephen H. Hart, 350 Equitable Building, Denver, Colo.; attorney.

B. National Livestock Tax Committee, Cooper Building, Denver, Colo.; committee representing livestock associations listed on attached letterhead.[3]

C. (1) Employment indefinite.

C. (2) Interested in general livestock tax matters including specifically proposed amendments to the Internal Revenue Code concerning capital gains on sale of breeding livestock and deduction of soil-conservation, brush-control, and other ranching expenditures. Excise-tax reduction, loophole, bill, H. R. 7470, H. R. 3087, H. R. 1713, H. R. 1399.

C. (3) Article on capital-gains controversy in American Hereford Journal, Walker Publications, Inc., Graphic Arts Building, Kansas City, Mo., March 15, 1950.

During the quarter, the National Livestock Tax Committee paid to me a per diem of $50 for office work and $100 per diem out of town for actual time spent in study, advice, conferences, and correspondence concerning general livestock-tax questions including the analysis of the present provisions of the Internal Revenue Code and current rulings and decisions concerning Federal taxation of livestock operators. Such activities also included work in connection with the position of the National Livestock Tax Committee toward amendments to the Internal Revenue Code concerning capital gains on sale of breeding livestock and the deduction of ranching expenditures. It is impossible to determine what part of my services related to this legislative problem, but it is my opinion that little, if any, of my activities during the preceding quarter could be interpreted as lobbying. During the quarter a total of $450 for legal services was paid to me for all my activities and services.

A. Dow W. Harter, 412–14 Washington Building, Washington, D. C.; attorney at law.

B. The B. F. Goodrich Co., Akron, Ohio; rubber manufacturer.

C. (1) It is impossible to state how long legislative interests are to continue. My interest and that of the B. F. Goodrich Co. doubtless will not be terminated with the current quarter.

C. (2) I am interested on behalf of my principal, the B. F. Goodrich Co., in legislation relating to the maintenance of facilities for the production of an ample supply of domestic rubber in the United States for commercial and national defense purposes; and I am also interested in the repeal or reduction of the present excise taxes on tires and tubes and in such other legislative proposals relating to tire manufacturers which may come before Congress from time to time.

A. Ewart A. Hester.

B. Ewart A. Hester. I am registering as representative of the law firm of Clinton M. Hester, 432 Shoreham Building, Washington, D. C., with whom I am employed. This firm is engaged in the general practice of law in the District of Columbia and represents as attorney, among other clients, the United States Brewers Foundation, 21 East Fortieth Street, New York City, and the Boston Wool Trade Association, 263 Summer Street, Boston, Mass., under general and annual retainer contracts. I shall be interested in any proposed legislation affecting either of these clients. Only a small portion of my time will be required for this work. For my full-time services I receive $10,000 annually from the law firm, plus all necessary expenses. I have been legally advised that Public Law 601 requires registration only where an organization was established for the principal purpose of influencing the passage or defeat of legislation or where an organization or individual is for a valuable consideration engaged for the purpose of influencing the passage or defeat of legislation. If this is the correct interpretation of the statute I am not required to register and the law firm is not required to register a representative. However, it appears that some legal authorities believe that the statute is ambiguous as to those who are required to register and more all-embracing than as indicated in the legal advice which I have received. Therefore, in a spirit of cooperation and to avoid any unfair criticism, I am registering as a representative of the law firm.

A. M. F. Hicklin, secretary, Iowa Railway Committee, 507 Bankers Trust Building, Des Moines, Iowa.

B. Iowa Railway Committee, 507 Bankers Trust Building, Des Moines, Iowa.

C. (1) The Iowa Railway Committee is a voluntary organization composed of the State attorneys for Iowa of all class I railroads operating within Iowa. All expenses of the committee and expenditures made by the committee, including salary of the secretary of the committee, M. F. Hicklin, are paid over to the committee by the railroads represented on the committee; the amount paid by the several railroads being determined upon a prorated basis according to the taxable valuation and gross revenue in Iowa. The represented railroads are as follows: Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific; Chicago, Great Western; Chicago North Western; Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul & Pacific; Chicago, Burlington & Quincy; Illinois Central; Great Northern; Atchison, Topeka & Sante Fe; Davenport, Rock Island & North Western; Wabash; Union Pacific; Minneapolis & St. Louis; Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha. None of the above made a contribution of $500 in any one quarter for the purpose of influencing the passage or defeat of Federal legislation. The committee is organized for the purpose of handling matters of common interest to all of the railroads within the State of Iowa. The secretary of the committee is employed full time and is paid on an annual basis. Occasionally, the secretary engages in activities directed toward the passage or defeat of legislation by the Congress of the United States which affects or may affect railroads. The committee is not organized primarily for the purpose of influencing either the passage or defeat of Federal legislation and such activity is only incidental and occasional. No additional compensation is paid to the secretary over and above his annual salary for activities relating to Federal legislation. His actual expenses incurred in connection with his duties including actual expenses incurred in connection with activities relating to Federal legislation are paid by the committee. No railroad represented on the committee has either directly or indirectly contributed any money to the committee which is earmarked to be used for the accomplishment of the purposes defined by the Lobbying Act. No specific amount of time is devoted to activities connected with Federal legislation. The secretary receives an annual salary of $8,700 which, on a basis of 310 working days, amounts to $28 per day. Therefore, in computing any salary received by the secretary, the actual time spent in Washington, D. C. and traveling to and from, will be computed at the figure of $28 per day.

C. (2) The committee is not interested in any specific act of the Congress but is interested generally in the acts of Congress which pertain to legislation affecting the railroad industry, as a whole and the acts affecting the railroad industry in Iowa in particular.

C. (3) No publications in connection with Federal legislation are issued or published by this committee or any of its employees.

On behalf of Mrs. Kuenzel, an American citizen, and as her attorney I filed a claim for return of property vested under the Trading With the Enemy Act by the Office of Alien Property and this claim was disallowed. The bills would permit allowance of her claim. If Congress amends the Trading With the Enemy Act, Mrs. Kuenzel will pay us a fee not exceeding the 10 percent permitted by statute upon the allowance of her claim, otherwise she will merely reimburse expenss. Although it is doubtful that the Lobbying Act intends to cover this type of activity, this report is filed for my protection and for the protection of the firm with which I am associated.

A. Independent Bankers Association, Sauk Centre, Minn.; a seminational bankers' association interested primarily in the preservation of independent banking.

B. Ben Du Bois, secretary, Independent Bankers Association. My salary as secretary of the Independent Bankers Association is $7,500 a year, that when I am traveling the association pays my expenses. Convention and council expenses, $1,325; salaries, $3,098; travel, $2,315.78; telephone, telegraph, and lights, $227.07; postage, $575.71; supplies and stationery, $720.27; equipment, $320.98; taxes and insurance, $127.13; news service, $272.80; rent, $165; extra help, $139.49; miscellaneous, $55; total disbursements, $9,342.23.

As secretary of the Independent Bankers Association, while a registered lobbyist, only part of my time is spent on legislative matters. It is hard to supply the data requested in your blank and still give a clear picture of our activities, therefore, this statement which is attached to and forms part of the report. The association operates from the money it receives from its membership dues, each bank as a member of the association pays $10 per year. We have attached financial statement of receipts and expenditures for the first quarter. During this quarter I was in Washington three times: I left Sauk Centre on January 15 and returned on February 3. I made stops at Cleveland, Ohio; Amherst, Mass.; Boston, Mass.; New York, N. Y.; and Warrenton, N. C. Most of my time was spent in Washington where I testified in favor of S. 2822 and also urged a hearing on S. 2318. The total cost of this trip, including transportation, hotel, and sustenance, amounted to $607.26. On February 8 I left Sauk Centre for Washington, returning on the 12th in company with the president of our association, E. E. Manuel, of George, Iowa. The cost of transportation, hotel, and sustenance amounted to $403.04. On February 26 I again went to Washington, returning on March 6. Our association was supporting the Holding Company bill, S. 2318, and we had three members of our association aside from myself testify. The total expense amounted to $670.19. We hope this statement furnishes the information desired.

C. (1) Legislative interest to continue indefinitely.

C. (2) Interested in all legislation favorable or detrimental to independent banking. This quarter the association has supported S. 2822, an amendment to the Federal Deposit Insurance Act, and S. 2318, the bank holding bill.

C. (3) We haven't any publication; we circulate mimeographed letters from time to time to members of the banking fraternity.

A. Institute of Industrial Launderers, Inc., 3517 West Harrison Street, Chicago, Ill., trade association.

C. The only legislative interest of this association was in the wage-hour amendment of 1949 enacted in 1949. No further legislative work is contemplated and no further lobby reports will be filed.

D. (13): no.

A. International Association of Machinists, Machinists' Building, Washington, D. C.

B. The International Association of Machinists is a labor organization with its principal office in Washington, D. C. Our association is comprised of over 600,000 members in practically every industrial area in the United States and Canada. As an organization our interest in legislation embraces measures in the socio-economic and political fields affecting the American workingman. Four of our appointed representatives, George Nelson, William Dameron, W. G. Flinn, and James Poulton, are now, and have in the past, been registered under the Lobbying Act of 1946. George Nelson spends less than one-half of his time on the legislative interests of our association and his wages and expenses estimated for this purpose average $900 per quarter. The three last names have not engaged in legislative work and their only purpose in registering is to be eligible for such duties if called upon. The items listed under (E) (expenditures) beside Mr. Nelson's apportioned salary and expenses for legislative purposes, include an estimated apportioned amount for office space and supplies used by Mr. Nelson, his communication expenses and some incidental railroad travel. In addition to the expenses incurred by Mr. Nelson, we have added to the figures under schedule (E) estimated amounts incurred by our international headquarters as a whole in the printing and distribution of materials during this quarter that can be broadly interpreted as being in connection with pending legislation, and an estimate with respect to telephone and telegraph expenditures in this connection other than the amounts allocated to Mr. Nelson's activities.

C. (1) Continuing legislative interest.

C. (2) The filing organization is interested in substantially all legislation affecting the socio-economic and political interests of the American workingman including all pending legislation dealing with social security, national health, aid to physically handicapped, labor-relations, displaced persons, etc. (See attachment)

D. (1) $1,650; (7) $1,650 (estimate).

E. (2) $750; (4) $250; (5) $150; (6) $200; (7) $300; (9) $1,650 (estimate).

A. International Brotherhood of Boilermakers, Iron Ship Builders, and Helpers of America, New Brotherhood Building, Kansas City, Kans. (labor organization).

C. (1) Indefinitely.

C. (2) H. R. 600, amendments to the Social Security Act; S. 3295 and H. R. 7789, amendments to the Railway Labor Act; S. 2786, amendments to the Merchant Marine Act and other maritime legislation affecting shipbuilding and ship repair; all other legislation affecting labor generally.

D. All funds received by this organization are regular monthly dues paid by its members, a part of which goes into general funds from which all operating expenses are paid. It may be deemed that $1,427.97 is that part of the dues assigned for legislative purposes in the first quarter of 1950.

E. (2) $837.50; (4) $22.96; (5) $108.14; (6) $9.37; (7) $450; (9) $427.97.

Explanation of expenditures reported (Item E): (2) $837.50 reflects 25 percent of wages and salaries paid to Maywood Boggs, our Washington representative and to the secretary in our Washington office; (4) $22.96 is total amount paid for mimeographing prepared statements before congressional committee; (5) $108.14 reflects 25 percent of total office overhead for the quarter; (6) $9.37 reflects 25 percent of total telephone and telegraph expenses with the exception of long-distance telephone, of which none was devoted to legislative matters; (7) $450 reflects 25 percent of per diem expenses allowed Maywood Boggs for travel, food, lodging, etc.; (9) $1,427.97 reflects total expenditures legislative activities, on the basis that not more than 25 percent of Maywood Boggs' time and efforts, including activities of our Washington office, are devoted to legislative activities.

D. (1) $2,760.27; (7) $2,760.27; (13) no.

The amount of dues which we have shown in item No. 1 represents the total receipts from dues received from our members during this quarter. All such dues are used principally for other purposes than influencing legislation. No contributions are received or allocated for such purposes.

E. (4) $30.95; (5) $3.26; (7) $300; (8) $0.79; (9) $35.

This association has one stenographer, receiving a monthly salary of $150. A fair allocation of reportable time spent by her is included in the various specific expense items.

The law firm of George, Brehmer & McMahon, 165 Center Street, Winona, Minn., is paid an annual retainer of $6,000. This retainer is paid regardless of whether or not this firm does anything in respect to Federal legislation. On the average throughout the year less than 2 percent of their time is given to reportable matters.

A. Bascom F. Jones, executive secretary, Tennessee Railroad Association, 930 Broadway, Nashville, Tenn.

B. Class I railroads operating in Tennessee.

C. (2) Tennessee Railroad Association is an informal organization of representatives of class I railroads operating in Tennessee; such representatives meeting in conference from time to time for discussion of common interests. The undersigned is a full-time employee of Tennessee railroads, under the general direction and guidance of their representatives consttiuting the Tennessee Railroad Association. The promotion of public understanding and appreciation of railroad service and problems constitutes the primary interest and basis of the employment of the undersigned. Since the railroads are a regulated industry, legislative bills affecting the industry are introduced and considered in practically every session of the Federal Congress. The undersigned has no general responsibility with respect to such legislation, but is concerned only with items of legislation called to his attention by railroad representatives and with respect to which he is requested to supply information to Members of the Congress by letter or personal interview. No such requests and no such activity were received or performed during the quarter for which this report is filed.

A. James A. Kennedy, 67 Broad Street, New York, N. Y.; vice president and general attorney of American Cable & Radio Corp. and subsidiaries. My principal functions are as an attorney.

B. American Cable & Radio Corp., 67 Broad Street, New York, N. Y., and subsidiaries, All America Cables & Radio, Inc., the Commercial Cable Co., and Mackay Radio & Telegraph Co. These said subsidiaries are engaged in the international telegraph communications business. I have been for several years vice president and general attorney of American Cable & Radio Corp. and its subsidiaries, the Commercial Cable Co., All America Cables & Radio, Inc., and Mackay Radio & Telegraph Co., all engaged in the international telegraph business. In said capacity, a part of my regular duties has always been to appear in hearings, conferences, and other meetings before Government departments and agencies in Washington. Sometime ago my company directed me, purely as an incidental part of my duties, to speak with Members of Congress and other Government agencies in favor of legislation which would permit the merger of telegraph companies engaged in international business. My salary for the past several years has been $22,500 per annum, which is payment for all of my services and no part of which is for the purpose of influencing legislation. In addition to my salary, my railroad fare, hotel, and incidental expenses incurred in trips to and from New York, my headquarters and Washington are paid by my employer, no part of which, however, is expended for the purpose of influencing legislation. Likewise, occasionally I have Government officials for luncheon or dinner and call them over the telephone. I would say that all of these total incidental expenses do not run over $100 per month. This statement is intended to supply the information requested in D (5), D (7), D (8), D (9), and in E (6), E (7), E (9), E (11), and E (15). The Lobbying Act would appear inapplicable to my case; however, I have made no objection to filing under the same, and if this description is not sufficient, I will be glad to furnish any further information desired.

C. (1) Six to nine months.

C. (2) I am interested in legislation which would permit the merger of international telegraph companies. No legislation is now pending although a subcommittee of the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce of the Senate has an investigation on the subject under way. Also, the President has appointed a Communications Policy Board to study and recommend on the same subject.

A. Miles D. Kennedy, care of the American Legion, a chartered organization of war veterans, 734 Fifteenth Street NW., Washington, D. C.

B. The American Legion, 777 North Meridian Street, Indianapolis, Ind.

C. (1) On a yearly basis.

C. (2) Below is set forth a statement showing the general legislative interests of the American Legion and the work performed in connection therewith: The American Legion and all veterans of World War I and World War II and their dependents on all matters affecting their care, their rehabilitation, hospitalization, reeducation, and housing; all matters affecting the general welfare of our country with regard to national defense; Americanization, included in which is opposition to all subversive activites and particular attention to our immigration and naturalization laws; child welfare, not only for children of veterans but for all children; aid and assistance to veterans in agriculture development; matters dealing with our foreign policy and foreign relations; the development of sound civil aviation programs and policies; and the development of sound and progressive programs for the employment and reemployment of veterans in civilian pursuits and in civil service; legislation which would eliminate all improper discriminations and be of benefit to the men and women who are still in our armed services; and all other matters included in the mandates and program of the American Legion as adopted and approved by the national convention of the American Legion and/or by its national executive committee which are the ruling and policy-making bodies of the American Legion. (a) Due to the nature and extent of the work involved, it is impossible to specify the titles of statutes and bills, (b) the House and Senate numbers of bills, or (c) the citations of statutes.

C. (3) The legislative commission of the American Legion prepares an article on legislation pending before Congress, which is inserted in the American Legion magazine once a month. The American Legion magazine is distributed to all members of the American Legion. The only publication issued by the American Legion legislative commission is the Legislative Bulletin, which is issued once a week while Congress is in session. (a) The American Legion magazine is a magazine of interest to veterans, and as above stated, is sent to all members who have paid dues and is part of the consideration for payment of dues. The Legislative Bulletin is issued to subscribers and also to certain officers of the American Legion who receive same without paying any consideration therefor. Paid subscribers are charged $3 per congressional session. (b) During the past year slightly in excess of 3,000,000 copies of the American Legion magazine were published, and at the present time 3,376 copies of the Legislative Bulletin are issued. (c) The American Legion magazine is issued the early part of each month. The Legislative Bulletin is issued on Tuesday of each week while Congress is in session. (d) The American Legion magazine is printed by C. T. Dearing Printing Co., and the Legislative Bulletin is printed by the Law Reporter Printing Co.

B. Millers' National Federation (a trade association incorporated under laws of Illinois), 309 West Jackson Boulevard, Chicago, Ill.

C. (1) I am not specifically employed to support or oppose any legislation. In connection with services performed for my employer, most of which are not related to activities described in section 307, title 3, I do keep my employer informed, of legislation, if any, that in general may affect the wheat flour milling industry. Employment is on an annual basis. Specific legislation for past quarter included section 112 (c), Public Law 472, Eightieth Congress, as amended, and proposed amendment relating thereto contained in H. R. 7797. I did not issue any publication.

D. (5) During the first quarter January–March 1950, I was paid my regular salary by my employer, the Millers' National Federation (trade association) for various services most of which are not related to the activities described in section 307, title 3, Public Law 601, Seventy-ninth Congress. Section 307 activities, if any, would be incidental in relationship to my regular employment. I estimate that legislative interests, principally reporting, required less than 5 percent of my time, accordingly 5 percent of my salary for the quarter or $107.50 is allocated for the purpose of this report.

E. (5) $2,262.88; (6) $196.33; (9) $2,459.21; (15) $2,459.21; (16) I am senior partner in a law firm of La Roe, Brown & Winn; our firm has the same difficulty which other law firms presumably must have under the act in making reports which will not be misleading; the facts as to the work of the members of our firm are as follows: I am general counsel for National Independent Meat Packers Association, which was formed primarily not to influence legislation, but to advance generally the interests of its members. The association has some 600 members scattered throughout the United States. The association's primary purpose is to look after the interests of its members by scheduling meetings, keeping them informed as to their liability under the Packers and Stockyards Act and other laws; aiding members as to transportation and similar problems; handling their subsidy claims, if any, against the Government; and representing the association in any legislation that may affect the membership. The only office through which I work for the association is my own law office which represents so many other clients and has so much other work that it would be impossible to make a segregation. My salary as general counsel is $18,000 which goes to the law firm. I estimate that 20 percent of the time of one of my partners, Arthur L. Winn, Jr., is spent in helping me with association work and that only 5 percent of this time is on legislative matters. I estimate that the percentage of my whole time which is devoted to legislative work is less than 4 percent. I estimate that the 20 percent of the time of two secretaries is devoted to association work and that only 4 percent of this is devoted to legislative work, probably less. As to the telephone, telegraph, and other like overhead of the office, I estimate that not over 1 percent is devoted to legislative work. In other words, we are a law office and any legislative work is simply incidental. The salaries of my two secretaries combined are $6,768. I should think that it would be fair to allocate 1½ percent of our office overhead to legislative work. Our office rent is $357.20 per month. Our total overhead for the first quarter including rent was $2,262.88, of which not more than $33.94 can fairly be assigned to legislative work for the association. Neither Mr. Brown nor Mr. Moerman does any legislative work for National Independent Meat Packers Association. Neither Mr. Winn nor I have spent any money for lobbying during the period covered by this report except taxi fare occasionally to and from the Capitol and less than $100 for special stenographic service, stationery, and postage. We receive no gifts for lobbying and do no entertaining for lobbying. We employ no person for lobbying and pay no gratuities and make no gifts for such purpose. The figures $4,500 and $2,459.21 shown as totals under sections D and E of the report do not represent sums received or spent in legislative work and must not be so used.

E. (5) $2,262.88; (6) $196.33; (7) $98.28; (9) $2,557.49; (15) $98.28; (16) I am senior partner in a law firm of La Roe, Brown & Winn. Our firm has the same difficulty which other law firms presumably must have under the act in making reports which will not be misleading. The facts as to the work of the members of our firm are as follows: I am counsel for Eastern Meat Packers Association, which was formed primarily not to influence legislation, but to advance generally the interests of its members. The association has some 30 members, located in the Northeastern States. The association's primary purpose is to look after the interests of its members by scheduling meetings, keeping them informed as to their liability under the Packers and Stockyards Act, and other laws; aiding members as to transportation and similar purposes; handling their subsidy claims, if any, against the Government; and representing the association in any legislation that may affect the membership. The only office in which I work for the association is my own law office which represents so many other clients and has so much other work that it would be impossible to make a segregation. My annual salary as counsel is $6,000, which goes to the law firm. The work of our firm for Eastern Meat Packers Association parallels the work which we do for National Independent Meat Packers Association. A quarterly report covering our work for National Independent Meat Packers Association has been filed. The interest of the members of Eastern Meat Packers Association is in practically all respects the same as the interest of the members of NIMPA. Work of a legislative nature done for members of NIMPA inures to the benefit of members of Eastern Meat Packers Association, many of which are also members of the national organization. In the report filed for NIMPA, I described the work of our firm for the meat packers as quoted below. These figures include time spent and work done also for members of Eastern Meat Packers Association. I estimate that 20 percent of the time of one of my partners, Arthur L. Winn, Jr., is spent in helping me with association work and that only 5 percent of this time is on legislative matters. I estimate that the percentage of my whole time which is devoted to legislative work is less than 4 percent. I estimate that 20 percent of the time of two secretaries is devoted to association work and that only 4 percent of this is devoted to legislative work, probably less. As to the telephone, telegraph, and other like overhead in the office, I estimate that not over 1 percent is devoted to legislative work. In other words, we are a law office and any legislative work is simply incidental. The salaries of my two secretaries combined are $6,768. I should think that it would be fair to allocate 1½ percent of our office overhead to legislative work. Our office rent is $357.20 per month. Our total overhead for the first quarter including rent was $2,262.88, of which not more than $33.94 can fairly be assigned to legislative work for the association. Neither Mr. Brown nor Mr. Moerman does any legislative work for National Independent Meat Packers Association. This is also true as to Eastern Meat Packers Association. Neither Mr. Winn nor I have spent any money for lobbying during the period covered by this report, except taxi fare occasionally to and from the Capitol and less than $100 for special stenographic service, stationery, and postage. We receive no gifts for lobbying and do no entertaining for lobbying. We employ no person for lobbying and pay no gratuities and make no gifts for such purpose. The figures $1,500 and $98.28, shown under sections D and E of the report do not represent sums received or spent in legislative work and must not be so used.

STATE OF LOUISIANA,
Parish of Caddo, ss:

Personally came and appeared before me, the undersigned notary public in and for said parish and State, C. Huffman Lewis, a resident of said parish and State, who being by me, notary, first duly sworn, deposes and says:

Affiant is a duly qualified and practicing attorney at law and is one of the two senior partners of the law firm of Wilkinson, Lewis & Wilkinson, address fifteenth floor, Slattery Building, Shreveport, La., and for the first quarter of 1950 owned 50 percent interest in said firm.

Said law firm has been employed by United Gas Pipe Line Co., and Union Producing Co., and predecessor companies for more than 25 years.

Each of said companies pay said law firm a retainer of $750 per month, which is credited against quarterly bills at the end of each quarter where the total compensation is based upon the total amount of work done for each of said companies.

From one to six attorneys of said law firm are doing work continually for each of said companies. The nature of the work is general law work.

Affiant has done no lobbying work for United Gas Pipe Line Co., but did, as counsel for Union Producing Co., testify before the Senate subcommittee of the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce May 17 to June 8, 1949, relative proposed amendments to the Natural Gas Act, and particularly S. 1498. See page 461 and following of the record of the hearings of the Senate subcommittee.

During the first quarter of 1950, the total amount of work done by C. Huffman Lewis for Union Producing Co. was approximately 80 hours, of which about 70 hours was for general legal work and research, and the balance for discussions in connection with proposed amendments to the Natural Gas Act.

For the first quarter of 1950, it is estimated that said law firm will be paid approximately $1,600 for all services rendered by the said Lewis as aforesaid, which amount will be kept and retained by said law firm and divided in the same manner as other legal fees. The total expense accounts of C. Huffman Lewis for said period for Union Producing Co. amounted to the sum of $371.06, which included individual, personal traveling expenses, and nothing else, except in addition to said expenses, Union Producing Co. provided airplane and rail transportation in most instances. The said law firm paid the said Lewis the said amount of expenses, and was reimbursed by Union Producing Co.

No other member of said law firm has done any so-called lobbying work for either of said companies.

C. HUFFMAN LEWIS.

Sworn to before me this the 18th day of April, 1950.

B. Mr. E. F. Forbes, Western States Meat Packers Association, Inc., 604 Mission Street, San Francisco, Calif.; Mr. E. F. Forbes is the president and general manager of this trade association.

C. (1) The association's legislative interests are expected to continue indefinitely.

C. (2) I am interested in legislation affecting the livestock and meat packing industries; during the first quarter of 1950 I supported H. R. 4538, a bill to amend the Agricultural Act of 1948 by adding thereto a new section to establish an average parity price for fats and oils and to aid in maintaining such parity price to producers; I also worked for an amendment to H. R. 7786, the appropriation bill, which would restrict the Department of the Army in making offshore purchases of meat for United States troops.

B. National Association of Securities Dealers, Inc., a registered national securities association pursuant to section 15A of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, as amended.

C. (1) Legislative interest will continue so long as S. 2408, known as the Frear bill, remains before the Congress.

C. (2) (a) The Frear bill, (b) 2408); (c) a proposed amendment to various sections of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934.

C. (3) The National Association of Securities Dealers, Inc., periodically (two to three times a year) publishes a house organ of interest to members of the association which goes to all the approximately 2,750 members, their branch offices and some officers, partners and employees; the last such issue was published in March 1950 and 6,000 copies were printed; the Frear bill was commented upon and the statement of the association's representatives before the Senate Subcommittee on Banking and Currency was included; the name of the printer is Byron S. Adams, 512 Eleventh Street NW., Washington, D. C.

A. Linen Supply Association of America, 22 West Monroe Street, Chicago, Ill.; trade association.

C. (1) The only legislative interest of this association was in the wage-hour amendment of 1949 enacted in 1949; no further legislative work is contemplated and no further lobby reports will be filed.

A. Robert G. Litschert, 1200 Eighteenth Street NW., Washington, D. C.; registrant is an employee of the National Association of Electric Companies, a trade association whose members are 100 operating electric companies; Mr. Robert G. Litschert, an employee of the National Association of Electric Companies, is filing this form for the information of the Congress of the United States under title 3 of the Legislative Reorganization Act of 1946 but questions whether and to what extent that act applies to him. This form has been prepared without the benefit of official interpretations of that statute; the amount stated in item (D) of the Form is the total salary registrant receives as an employee of the association in the performance of all his duties as they arise in carrying out the purposes and activities of the association.

B. National Association of Electric Companies, 1200 Eighteenth Street NW., Washington, D. C.; the National Association of Electric Companies is a trade association whose members are 100 operating electric companies; the preamble of its articles of assocation describes the functions to be engaged in by the association as follows: "In order to further the interests of the electric utility companies that are members of this association and their investors, employees, and customers; to maintain the integrity and credit of the industry; to present to the public the essential facts about the industry to the end that there may be a better understanding between the utility companies and the public and a better appreciation of utility progress, achievements, and problems; to coordinate regional activities among member companies; to furnish member companies information, reports, and statements concerning various phases of electric utility operations and developments; to further cooperation with all agencies and organizations interested in the supply and purchase of electric light and power; to furnish such agencies and organizations with information, reports, and statements concerning member companies and the electric utility industry; to present the facts to the public concerning the public benefits resulting from the operation of electric utility companies by businessmen under governmental regulations and, generally, to engage in those practices recognized as being legal and proper to further said ends, certain electric utility companies do hereby establish a national association which shall be adequately qualified and empowered to act in every lawful way when concert of policy and action would be helpful"; thus the association functions for the following principal purposes: (1) To keep member companies informed of Washington developments affecting them as operating businesses, including information and analyses of governmental hearings, orders, and regulations, both legislative and administrative; (2) to keep the public, including employees, consumers, and investors, informed concerning the accomplishments of the industry, its achievements in serving the public, and the plans of this industry for the future; (3) to furnish—and aid in furnishing—technical information to the instruments of government and to provide a readily available contact between government and the industry; (4) to provide the members of the association with a medium through which they can exchange ideas on problems of mutual concern and interest in order to better serve the public; (5) to act for the member companies in matters of common and national concern.

C. (1) Of indefinite duration.

C. (2) Registrant is an employee of the National Association of Electric Companies. One of the purposes of this association as set forth in previous registrations and reports filed pursuant to title 3 of the Legislative Reorganization Act of 1946 is to provide its members with a medium through which they can develop and exchange ideas and take appropriate action on problems of mutual concern and interest, including matters involving legislation. The association, therefore, is generally interested in all developments in and of Federal legislation that might affect its members as going electric utilities, including, but not limited to, the following bills and statutes and amendments thereto: H. R. 7786, a bill making appropriations for the support of the Government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1951, and for other purposes; H. R. 5472, a bill authorizing the construction, repair, and preservation of certain public works on rivers and harbors for navigation, flood control, and for other purposes; Internal Revenue Code (53 Stat. 1); TVA Act (48 Stat. 58); Federal Power Act (49 Stat. 803); Rural Electrification Act of 1936 (49 Stat. 1363); reclamation acts (25 Stat. through 45 Stat.); Flood Control Act, 1944 (58 Stat. 887); Administrative Procedure Act (60 Stat. 237); for specific details concerning the policy position of the National Association of Electric Companies see the document entitled "Opinions, Recommendations and Answers to the Power Policies Questionnaire, 1948," filed with the Secretary of the Senate and the Clerk of the House by the National Association of Electric Companies; a similar document now being prepared in response to a request of the Chairman of the President's Commission on Water Resources Policy dated March 2, 1950, requesting the association's views on certain policy questions will be forwarded to the Clerk of the House of Representatives and the Secretary of the Senate by the association when it is completed.

A. John M. Littlepage, 832 Continental Building, Fifteenth and K Streets NW., Washington, D. C.; attorney at law.

B. The American Tobacco Co., Inc., 111 Fifth Avenue, New York, N. Y.; manufacture and sale of tobacco products.

C. (1) Registrant is a partner in the law firm of Littlepage & Littlepage which has been receiving for a number of years an annual retainer from the American Tobacco Co. in the amount of $18,000 per annum for a variety of professional services rendered. Neither the registrant nor his law firm will receive compensation in addition to the annual retainer for any activities with respect to legislation covered by the act. Any activities which may be performed will be occasional and incidental, and will comprise only a small part of registrant's duties. No amount of the retainer is allocated to any such activities; the firm of Littlepage & Littlepage will be reimbursed by the American Tobacco Co. for any actual out-of-pocket expenses incurred by any member or associate of the firm for the usual actual disbursements customary in legal work.

C. (2) Any legislation affecting a company engaged in the manufacture and sale of tobacco products, and specifically H. R. 2016.

A. Gordon C. Locke, 643 Munsey Building, Washington, D. C., attorney at law, executive secretary and associate counsel for Committee for Pipe Line Companies.

B. Committee for Pipe Line Companies, Box 1349, Tulsa, Okla.; unincorporated organization whose function is to act for petroleum pipeline companies that are subject to the act to regulate interstate commerce, in regard to matters in which cooperative action is desirable.

C. (1) Uncertain.

C. (2) Committee for Pipe Line Companies is opposed to divorcement of pipelines and specifically to S. 571, which, if enacted, would require such divorcement; no action, in the nature of public hearings or otherwise, has been taken since S. 571 was introduced; I have, therefore, not taken any action in connection with legislation, during the period covered by this report.

D. (14) I am executive secretary and associate counsel for the Committee for Pipe Line Companies, which was organized to represent and act for interstate petroleum pipeline companies, most of which are subject to the Interstate Commerce Act, and to the jurisdiction of the Interstate Commerce Commission; the form, to which this is attached, states that the committee is opposed to enactment of S. 571, but that no action has been taken by the committee or myself, during the period covered by this report, in connection with that bill; therefore, no service has been rendered by me which falls within the terms of the Lobbying Act, although I have kept the committee informed from time to time of the status of S. 571; the amount of my time devoted to that purpose has been so negligible, that I feel justified in reporting that none of my salary, which totaled $3,750 for all my services during the period involved, should be attributed to services covered by the Lobbying Act.

A. J. L. McCaskill, associate secretary, department of higher education, National Education Association, 1201 Sixteenth Street NW., Washington, D. C.

B. Department of higher education, National Education Association, 1201 Sixteenth Street NW., Washington, D. C.

C. (1) The department of higher education is interested in national legislation that directly relates to the operation of colleges and universities.

C. (2) The general legislative interests are identical with those mentioned in item No. 1.

Specifically the department has been interested in the following legislation during the second session of the Eighty-first Congress: (a) S. 2246 and H. R. 6070, providing long-term loans for college and university housing; S. 1453, grants-in-aid for construction and facilities in connection with health education; H. R. 6000, which includes extension of social-security benefits to employees of educational institutions; S. 247, which provides for the establishment of a National Science Foundation.

C. (3) The activities in connection with legislative interests include the collection of facts with regard to the status of legislation and the dissemination of information concerning status of legislation to the membership of the department of higher education. The dissemination of information is through two media. First, the monthly publication of the department entitled "College and University Bulletin," a copy of which is attached, and legislative memoranda to key members, which is sent to one person on each college and university campus who has been designated the key member of the department of higher education. Copy of legislative memoranda is attached.

D. The department of higher education is the college and university division of the National Education Association. No separate dues are charged for membership in the department of higher education. Any National Association member who is employed full-time in higher educational work is eligible for a membership in the department of higher education. The membership at the time of the filing of this report is approximately 16,000. The only receipts for the department of higher education are those budgeted in the general budget of the National Education Association. Since the legislative activities of the department are entirely incidental to the program, there is no separate budget for legislative items. No contributions of any kind are received for legislative or other purposes.

E. Since the legislative services are entirely incidental services, expenditures in this area cannot be broken down into the categories listed under section E. The quarterly salary of the person making this report is $1,750. Not more than $250 of this salary could be allocated for legislative purposes. The only other expenditure would include approximately $25 for cab fare and miscellaneous.

A. Bryson deHaas McCloskey, campaign manager, 1316 L Street NW., Washington, D. C.

B. None. No payment made by any other person or firm or organization.

A. Baird H. Markham, 50 West Fiftieth Street, New York, N. Y.; executive of national trade organization.

B. American Petroleum Institute, 50 West Fiftieth Street, New York, N. Y.; national trade organization.

C. (1) Indefinitely.

C. (2) Automotive excise taxes and depletion; social-security revision bill, H. R. 6000; amendments to Natural Gas Act.

D. (2) $1,499.76; (5) $4,687.50; (7) $6,187.26. The following statement included in form B, filed April 2, 1948, is made a part hereof: "The registrant is employed by the American Petroleum Institute (the 'Institute'), a national trade association of the petroleum industry. The registrant has been advised by counsel and believes that he is not now subject and has not previously been subject to the provisions of the Federal Regulation of Lobbying Act (the 'act'), and that he is not now required and has not previously been required to register or to file any statements under the act. The registrant has not engaged himself for pay for the purpose of attempting to influence the passage or defeat of any legislation by the Congress of the United States. He is employed from year to year and receives an annual salary to perform all of his duties as director of the American petroleum industries committee of the American Petroleum Institute. By far the preponderant part of his duties in that position have nothing to do with Federal legislation. The registrant spent only a very small portion of his business time during the calendar year 1947 on matters relating to Federal legislation. The Department of Justice has nevertheless expressed the view that the registrant is subject to the act. Pending an authoritative construction of the act by the courts, the registrant is registering under the act. By doing so, however, he does not admit that he is subject to the provisions of the act or that he is required to register. Since the registrant receives a salary to perform all the duties of his employment, it is his view that he is not paid any sum for the purpose of attempting to influence Federal legislation. For the purposes of filing the periodic statements (Form C) called for by section 308, the registrant will apportion a part of his annual salary to Federal legislative purposes on the basis of his best estimate of the proportion of time spent by him on matters relating to Federal legislation. The making of any such apportionment is not to be construed as an admission that the registrant is employed for the purpose of influencing Federal legislation. Since there is no way of determining in advance the proportion of his business time, if any, which the registrant may devote to Federal legislation, no attempt will be made at apportionment in this report. No fixed sum is allowed the registrant for expenses incurred in the performance of his duties, nor is any amount allocated for such purpose. The expenses for which the registrant expects to be reimbursed in the event he incurs any expenses in connection with Federal legislative matters would in general cover travel, sustenance, and communication." For purposes of this and other quarterly reports filed for the year 1950, the registrant will allocate a portion of his salary as received for purposes relating to Federal legislation on the basis of his estimate of the amount of business time spent by him on matters relating in any way to Federal legislation. The registrant estimates that a maximum of 25 percent of his time devoted to business during the first quarter of 1950 was spent on matters relating in any way to Federal legislation. This estimate includes all time spent in connection with Federal legislation whether or not such activity is within the scope of the act. The registrant therefore allocates 25 percent of his salary received during the first quarter of 1950, or $4,687.50, as received for the purposes relating to Federal legislation during that period. This allocation is not to be construed as an admission that the registrant was engaged for pay for the purpose of influencing Federal legislation or that 25 percent of his time during the first quarter of 1950 was spent in activities within the scope of the act. The registrant on November 9, 1949, was elected acting president of the American Petroleum Institute and has been performing the duties of the president in addition to those of the director of the American petroleum industries committee of the American Petroleum Institute. There is set forth under section E of this report an estimate of the amount of allocated personal expenditures which relate in any fashion to Federal legislation. The expenditures include only expenses paid by the registrant and not those paid directly by the institute, which are included in the report filed by the institute contemporaneously herewith. The reporting of these expenditures is not to be construed as an admission that such expenditures, or any of them, were within the scope of the act.

[5] Filed with the Clerk only.

A. P. Harvey Middleton, 38 South Dearborn Street, Chicago, Ill.; president of Railway Business Association, a national organization of manufacturers and other concerns engaged in furnishing the railways with material, equipment, and supplies.

B. Railway Business Association, 38 South Dearborn Street, Chicago, Ill. No money was received or expended by me for legislative activities in the quarter ended March 31, 1950.

A. Milk Industry Foundation, 1001 Fifteenth Street NW., Washington, D. C.; trade association of milk dealers.

C. (1) Such legislative interests as foundation has are expected to continue indefinitely.

C. (2) The foundation has a general legislative interest in statutes or bills which affect the interests of milk distributors; it has no specific legislative interest at present.

C. (3) The foundation issues no publications solely in connection with legislative interests. It issues a biweekly mimeographed news letter averaging about 4 to 5 pages per issue as a part of its regular membership service. The news letter discusses subjects of all kinds of interest to members, and on extremely rare occasions mentions an act or bill of Congress of particular concern to milk dealers with the suggestion that members take a position on the matter with their legislative representatives. Approximately 1,500 copies of each issue are mimeographed by J. A. Want Organization, Inc., 122 Fifth Avenue, New York City.

D. (1) $1,529.15; (7) $1,529.15; (13) no.

(1) Explanation of item 1 under paragraph D: The Milk Industry Foundation is a nonprofit membership corporation supported by dues paid by its members. It has over 1,100 members whose dues range from a minimum of $50 per year upward, based on the number of retail and wholesale milk sales routes operated by each member. The dues are not earmarked for any specific purpose. The principal functions of the foundation, as they appear in article II of its bylaws, are set out in an attachment to the foundation's statement for the last quarter of 1949 previously filed with the Clerk of the House of Representatives. The foundation's activities, if any, in connection with legislative interests are extremely minor and incidental. It is impossible to say, therefore, that any part of the dues paid by a member is contributed or received for such purposes. In preparing this report, however, we have assumed that the total amount of money expended for those purposes has been contributed by the members for such purposes. Consequently, that figure, taken from paragraph E 9, is stated here as representing the total sum of the contributions made to the foundation for such purposes.

(2) Explanation of answer to item 13 of paragraph D: No person has made a contribution of $500 or more to the foundation during the first quarter of 1950 for the purposes designated in the Federal Regulation of Lobbying Act. (See also explanation No. 1 above.)

E. (3) $500; (4) $28.40; (8) 75 cents; (9) $529.15; (16) February 25, 1950, J. A. Want Organization, Inc., 122 Fifth Avenue, New York City, part of cost of mimeographing and mailing to members one issue of news letter which included an article mentioning a bill before Congress, $28.40. January 10, 1950, February 10, 1950, and March 28, 1950, Dairy Industry Committee, Barr Building, Washington, D. C., $1,500. This figure represents the total dues paid, in three monthly installments of $500 each, during the first quarter of 1950 to the Dairy Industry Committee, of which the Milk Industry Foundation is a member. The Dairy Industry Committee and one of its officers have filed statements and reports under protest pursuant to the Federal Regulation of Lobbying Act. Consequently, the foundation has reported the entire amount of dues paid to the Dairy Industry Committee during the first quarter of 1950, although by no means all of those dues were utilized in connection with legislative interests, if in fact any of the dues were so utilized. Total, $1,528.40.

C. (3) We issued no publication, as such. We sent our members nine bulletins.

D. (1) $10,100; (7) $10,100; (13) no; the amount of dues which we have shown in item (1) represents the total receipts from dues received from our members during this quarter. All such dues are used principally for other purposes than influencing legislation. No contributions are received or allocated for such purposes.

E. (4) $124.71; (5) $7.66; (6) $81.31; (7) $600; (8) $107.72; (9) $921.40; (16) This association has two stenographers, each receiving a monthly salary of $150. A fair allocation of reportable time spent by both is included in the various specific expense items. The law firm of George, Brehmer & McMahon, 165 Center Street, Winona, Minn., is paid an annual retainer of $12,000. This retainer is paid to them regardless of whether or not this firm does anything in respect to Federal legislation. On the average throughout the year a very small part of their time is given to reportable matters.

A. National Association of Consumers,[5] 265 Henry Street, New York, N. Y. The National Association of Consumers is a nonpartisan, nonprofit organization devoted to the advancement and protection of the economic welfare of Americans as consumers.

We feel that about one-third of our work might be said to be directed toward legislation affecting consumers. It is hard to make an exact estimate, as much of it is educational and informational.

A. National Association of Elecric Companies, 1200 Eighteenth Street NW., Washington, D. C. The National Association of Electric Companies is a trade association whose members are 100 operating electric companies.

The preamble of its articles of association describes the functions to be engaged in by the association as follows: "In order to further the interests of the electric-utility companies that are members of this association and their investors, employees, and customers; to maintain the integrity and credit of the industry; to present to the public the essential facts about the industry to the end that there may be a better understanding between the utility companies and the public and a better appreciation of utility progress, achievements, and problems; to coordinate regional activities among member companies; to furnish member companies information, reports, and statements concerning various phases of electric-utility operations and developments; to further cooperation with all agencies and organizations interested in the supply and purchase of electric light and power; to furnish such agencies and organizations with information, reports, and statements concerning member companies and the electric-utility industry; to present the facts to the public concerning the public benefits resulting from the operation of electric-utility companies by businessmen under governmental regulations and, generally, to engage in those practices recognized as being legal and proper to further said ends, certain electric-utility companies do hereby establish a national association which shall be adequately qualified and empowered to act in every lawful way when concert of policy and action would be helpful." Thus, the association functions for the following principal purposes: (1) To keep member companies informed of Washington developments affecting them as operating businesses, including information and analyses of governmental hearings, orders, and regulations, both legislative and administrative; (2) to keep the public, including employees, consumers, and investors, informed concerning the accomplishments of the industry, its achievements in serving the public, and the plans of this industry for the future; (3) to furnish, and aid in furnishing, technical information to the instruments of Government and to provide a readily available contact between Government and the industry; (4) to provide the members of the association with a medium through which they can exchange ideas on problems of mutual concern and interest in order to better serve the public; (5) to act for the member companies in matters of common and national concern.

[5] Filed with the Clerk only.

C. (1) The life of the association is of indefinite duration.

C. (2) One of the purposes of the National Association of Electric Companies as set forth in previous registrations and reports filed pursuant to title 3 of the Legislative Reorganization Act of 1946 is to provide its members with a medium through which they can develop and exchange ideas and take appropriate action on problems of mutual concern and interest, including matters involving legislation. The association, therefore, is generally interested in all developments in and of Federal legislation that might affect its members as going electric utilities, including, but not limited to, the following bills and statutes and amendments thereto: H. R. 7786, a bill making appropriations for the support of the Government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1951, and for other purposes; H. R. 5472, a bill authorizing the construction, repair, and preservation of certain public works on rivers and harbors for navigation, flood control, and for other purposes; Internal Revenue Code (53 Stat. 1); TVA Act (48 Stat. 58); Federal Power Act (49 Stat. 803); Rural Electrification Act of 1936 (49 Stat. 1363); Reclamation Acts (25 Stat. through 45 Stat.); Flood Control Act, 1944 (58 Stat. 887); Administrative Procedure Act (60 Stat. 237).

For specific details concerning the policy position of the National Association of Electric Companies, see the attached document entitled "Opinions, Recommendations, and Answers to the Power Policies Questionnaire of the Staff of the Committee on Appropriations, House of Representatives, January 1948," and a similar document now being prepared in response to a request of the Chairman of the President's Commission on Water Resources Policy dated March 2, 1950, requesting the association's views on certain policy questions, which will be forwarded to the Clerk of the House of Representatives and the Secretary of the Senate when it is completed.

C. (3) During the last quarter, we have not published or printed any pamphlets, books, brochures, leaflets, or circulars in connection with any of our activities, legislative or otherwise, except that there were prepared four letters during the last quarter on the need for clarifying national policies as they relate to the generation and disposition of electric energy. These letters, copies of which are attached hereto,[3] were sent to approximately 1,200 civic and business leaders. The association did write various letters to its member companies and officers during the last quarter. Copies of these letters or some of them or material enclosed therein were sent to approximately 241 corporations, associations, partnerships, or individuals. In addition, selected newspaper items and other similar materials were duplicated and sent to approximately the same corporations, associations, partnerships, and individuals.

(D and E. Receipts and expenditures: The amounts stated in sections D and E of the form are all our receipts and expenditures from January 1, 1950, to the end of the quarter and are for all the purposes and activities of the association. The expenditures would be considerably less if it were practical to make an allocation or division of time and general expenditures, as between legislative matters (whether or not within the purview of the act) and many other activities of the association.)

D. (1) $303,383.66; (6) $16,024.98; (7) $319,408.64; (13) yes.

A. National Association of Home Builders of the United States, 1028 Connecticut Avenue NW., Washington, D. C.; trade association.

B. None.

C. (1) Indefinitely.

C. (2) The National Association of Home Builders is a trade association conducting typical trade association activities, only a small part of which could in any sense be regarded as involving "legislative interests." The employees of the association whose principal duties might be regarded as involving "legislative interests" have registered and regularly report under the Regulation of Lobbying Act. In view of widespread confusion as to appropriate interpretation of the act and our inability to determine the exact meaning and intent of the statute as it applies to trade associations, this report is made under protest. Subject thereto, the association has a "general legislative interest" in all legislation affecting the home building industry which, during the quarter covered by this report, included: S. 2246, H. R. 7402 (H. R. 6618 and H. R. 6742), Housing Act of 1950; H. R. 6070, housing amendments of 1949; S. 2440, a bill to authorize certain construction at military and naval installations, and for other purposes; H. R. 7846, a bill to amend title VIII of the National Housing Act, as amended, to encourage construction of rental housing on or in areas adjacent to Army, Navy, Marine Corps, and Air Force installations, and for other purposes.

C. (3) Although not published "in connection with legislative interests," the association publishes a weekly news letter called the

Washington Letter and a monthly magazine The Correlator, each of which contains material of interest to the membership, including, as occasion requires, information on legislative matters. During the quarter eight issues of the Washington Letter were published, on the following dates: January 10, 19, 26; February 13, 25; and March 14, 16, and 24. Approximately 19,000 copies of each issue were printed by Packwood Printing Co., Washington, D. C. With respect to the Correlator, 19,100 copies were run in January, 24,000 in February, and 21,000 in March, by the Darby Printing Co., Washington, D. C. News releases are from time to time sent to the Associated Press, INS, UP, and other national newspaper wire services by the association for publication in subscriber papers and magazines, some of which releases may contain material which might be considered as affecting legislation directly or indirectly. The association has no means of ascertaining a complete list of the publications utilizing such releases. (NOTE.—All of the above information is contained in the reports of Frank W. Cortright, executive vice president, and John M. Dickerman, legislative director, employees of the association.)

D. (1) $4,764.94; (4) $2,374.46; (6) $4,432.50; (7) $11,571.90. Total receipts of the association for the quarter, as set forth on the books of the association, were $168,243.91. Sources thereof were: (a) Membership dues, including dues of sustaining members; (b) subscription to the Correlator, monthly magazine of the association; (c) sales of space in Builders Buying Guide (advertising section of the Correlator); (d) receipts from the convention and exposition account; and (e) various nominal amounts from such miscellaneous activities as sales of Land Planning Book, NAHB design service, etc. The stated total constitutes the general funds of the association. Not included are (a) income from the home builders' education fund, no part of which is to be used "in connection with legislative interests," and (b) receipts in connection with the annual convention and exposition operation of the association, which operation is run separate and apart from the association, which receives therefrom only certain stated income (the amount of which is included in the sources of income enumerated above). The total receipts reported under D (9) as made "in connection with legislative interests" represents the same proportion of receipts of the general fund as the item of estimated expenses made "in connection with legislative interests" (item E (11)) bears to total general expenses of the association.

Item 13: No part of the funds of the association used "in connection with legislative interests" are derived from contributions of $500 or more. While some contributions to the special home builders' educational fund of the association have been in the amount of $500 or more, they are not listed in this report since no part of that fund is to be used "in connection with legislative interests."

E. (1) $1,323.06; (2) $6,264.57; (4) $3,802.49; (5) $498.05; (6) $945.41; (7) $624.61; (8) $561.94; (9) $14,020.13. The expenditures reported include (a) all of the expenditures of the legislative department of the association, plus (b) an estimated percentage of such of the other expenditures of the association which may conceivably be considered as "in connection with legislative interests." The total expenditures of the association for the quarter were $106,957.21. Such total includes expenditures in connection with (a) the general operation of the association; (b) the Correlator and Builders Buying Guide; and (c) the home builders educational campaign. Said total does not include expenditures of the annual convention and exposition operation of the association for convention and exposition purposes which, as previously explained, is run separate and apart from the association.

Item 16: Recipients of $10 or more are listed below, which includes such expenditures as are identifiable as made "in connection with legislative interests" of the association. Because of the varied activities of the association, it is not possible, without a complete listing of every item of expenditure made by the association of $10 or more for any purpose, to list such information with respect to that portion of item E (11) as represents a percentage estimate of general expenses of the association. A list of every item of association expenditures, including such nonlegislative items as expenditures for the publication of the Correlator and Builders Buying Guide, would comprise more than 1,000 items each quarter. The association would have no objection to furnishing such list each quarter if required, but deems it unnecessary and unduly burdensome under its present interpretation of the act.

A. The National Association of Independent Tire Dealers, Inc., 1302 Eighteenth Street NW., Washington, D. C.; trade association of independent tire dealers.

C. (1) Such legislative interests as the association has are expected to continue indefinitely.

C. (2) The association has a general legislative interest in statutes or bills which affect the interests of independent tire dealers. The association has a specific legislative interest in S. 1008, to define the application of the Federal Trade Commission Act and the Clayton Act to certain pricing practices.

C. (3) The association neither issues nor causes to be issued any publication solely in connection with legislative interests. It publishes a weekly printed Dealer News averaging about eight small-size pages per issue as a part of its regular membership service. The Dealer News discusses subjects of all kinds of interests to members, and in that connection occasionally mentions a statute or bill of Congress of particular concern to independent tire dealers and in even fewer instances suggests that members take a position on the matter with their legislative representatives. Approximately 1,700 copies of each issue of the Dealer News are printed each week by McArdle Printing Co., 2201 M Street NW., Washington, D. C.

D. (1) $141.44; (7) $141.44; (13) no.

The National Association of Independent Tire Dealers, Inc., is a nonprofit membership corporation supported primarily by dues paid by its members. The dues range from $12 to $240 per year, based on the annual volume of business done by the member. The association also receives minor amounts of income from advertisements in its Dealer News, advertisements in its yearbook, and display space rentals at its annual convention. No part of the dues or other money received by the association is earmarked for any specific purpose. More particularly, none of the association receipts are allocated to legislative interests, nor is any money so budgeted. The purpose of the association, as shown by its by-laws, is "to advance and safeguard the business interests of the Independent Tire Dealers and Tire Renewers, and to promote a cooperative relationship between the tire manufacturers, tire dealers, tire renewers, and the buying public." The association's activities, if any, in connection with legislative interests are extremely minor and incidental. It is impossible to say, therefore, that any part of the dues paid by a member is contributed or received for such purposes. The same is true in the case of other association income. In preparing this report, however, we have assumed that the total amount of money expended for those purposes has been contributed by the members for such purposes. Consequently, that figure, taken from paragraph E (9) below, is stated here as representing the total sum of the contributions made to the association for such purposes. The entire amount so expended has been attributed to receipts in the form of dues since it is obvious that none of the other association income could possibly have been contributed or received for such purposes.

E. (4) $115.84; (8) $25.60; (9) $141.44. $115.84, January 31, February 28, March 31, McArdle Printing Co., 2201 M Street NW., Washington, D. C. Estimated cost of printing and distributing those items in Dealer News which might be said to relate to legislative interests. It is estimated that at most not more than 6 percent of the total space of all issues of the Dealer News published during the first quarter of 1950 has been devoted to items which might be said so to relate. The figure $115.84 represents 6 percent of the total amount paid for printing and distributing the Dealer News during the first quarter of 1950, or that part of the total cost which might be said to have some connection with legislative interests.

A. National Association of Margarine Manufacturers, 1028 Munsey Building, Washington, D. C.; this is a nonprofit research and educational organization to develop, coordinate, and supply the public with accurate information about margarine.

C. (1) Only when legislation concerning margarine is pending.

[3] Not printed. Filed in the Clerk's office.

[5] Filed with the Clerk only.

C. (2) During period January–March, concerned with H. R. 2023 (Public Law 459, 81st Cong., 2d sess., approved March 16, 1950). Also interested in H. R. 330 and H. R. 4358, which contain proposed amendments to the Navy ration statute (34 U. S. C. 902a). Generally interested in any margarine legislation.

D. (1) $15,854.93; (7) $15,854.93. The National Association of Margarine Manufacturers is a nonprofit research and educational organization, composed of margarine manufacturers, which exists to develop, coordinate, and supply the public with accurate information about margarine. To accomplish this purpose the association engages in programs designed to promote scientific research on the nutritive values of margarine; to serve the medical, home economics, and similar groups by providing specific information in connection with food and nutritional problems arising in these groups; to prepare and distribute educational material for general use in both professional and non-professional fields; to cooperate with Federal and State governmental agencies by supplying factual information about the margarine industry in matters of mutual interest; to cooperate with ingredient-producing groups and distributing groups to expand markets through product improvement and through more efficient methods of distribution; and to act as a general clearing house for information of interest to the margarine industry. The association only engages in legislative activities in connection with legislation which affects manufacturers and consumers of margarine or producers of ingredients utilized in margarine. Funds for the National Association of Margarine Manufacturers are derived through voluntary contributions from the manufacturers who comprise the membership of the association. Each member contributes according to an agreed upon assessment and all contributions are made to the general fund of the association. No funds received are earmarked for legislative purposes. Since the association does not receive any contributions, as such, for legislative purposes, and only makes relatively small expenditures out of its general fund for such purposes, the only way in which the association can report contributions in accordance with section 305 of the Federal Regulation of Lobbying Act, is to consider, as contributions to it for legislative purposes, a sum equal to its expenditures for such purposes. Accordingly, that method has been followed in preparing the report on receipts which is set forth under item 1 of section D "receipts" of the form.

E. (1) $11,136.10; (2) $3,429.93; (4) $159.43; (5) 493.79; (6) $566.18; (8) $69.50; (9) $15,854.93. (16) The National Association of Margarine Manufacturers receives its funds only through dues and assessments paid by its members and no such contributions are earmarked for legislative purposes. The relatively small expenditures which it makes for such activities are made from its general funds. Its activities in connection with legislative matters are not its principal function and are subordinate to its main purposes. Its expenditures for legislative purposes are both indirect and direct in character. The expenditures reported on the form, therefore, include all direct expenditures made for the purposes specified in the Federal Regulation of Lobbying Act, and also include the estimated portion of salaries, travel expenses, etc., appropriately allocable to such legislative activities. It also includes, where approporiate, a proportion of all other expenditures of the association, which, in the opinion of the management, reflect its participation in the legislative activities during the period covered by this report.

Section 305 (a) (4) of the Federal Regulation of Lobbying Act calls for the reporting of $10 expenditures on a calendar-year basis. Item 16 of section E of the form, evidently due to an inadvertence, calls for such information on a quarterly basis only. The information reported herein with respect to $10 expenditures follows the requirement of the statute rather than the form, although a report of the information on a yearly basis necessarily includes the information called for by the form: $127.80, January 10, March 29, J. R. Rhodes, 945 Pennsylvania Avenue NW., Washington, D. C., mimeographing and office supplies; $86.54, January 3, Mutual Employment Service, 1710 G Street NW., Washington, D. C., for clerical services; $11,136.10, January 12, February 11, February 15, February 21, March 7, Selvage & Lee, 1 East Forty-third Street, New York, N. Y., public-relations service, retainer and out-of-pocket expense; $277.38, January 12, Morford, Bennethum, Marvel & Cooch, 212 Delaware Trust Building, Wilmington, Del., consultant fee, legal; $19.73, January 6, Railway Express Agency, Inc., Washington, D. C., express charges; $16.93, January 5, Perfect Letters, 1705 L Street NW., Washington, D. C., typing letters; $217.89, January 31, March 2, March 29, the Western Union Telegraph Co., Washington, D. C., telegraph service; $17.96, March 1, March 2, Kirby Lithographic Co., Inc., 1320 F Street NW., Washington, D. C., reproducing cartoon and news items; $282, January 4, February 7, March 7, the Munsey Realty Co., Washington, D. C., rent; $15.27, January 12, February 7, March 7, Chas. G. Fuller, 5102 Fourteenth Street NW., Washington, D. C., secretarial services; $120,24, February 20, March 1, the Postmaster, Washington, D. C., postage; $22, March 29, Mrs. Helen DeJong, 2138 California Street NW., Washington, D. C., secretarial services; $37.32, March 30, the Whitaker Paper Co., Second and L Streets NE., Washington, D. C., office supplies; total $15,638.96.

A. National Association of Mutual Insurance Agents, by Philip L. Baldwin, executive secretary, 829 Continental Building, Washington, D. C.; an association to promote interests of mutual insurance agents.

B. National Association of Mutual Insurance Agents.

C. (1) Continuing.

C. (2) General interest in H. R. 6000, social security, insofar as it may in some way affect business of mutual insurance industry; no direct or particular action in connection therewith; H. R. 3032, to separate activities of Department of Agriculture county agents and farm bureaus; general interest as it may affect welfare of mutual insurance agents.

C. (3) Monthly bulletin to association members containing items of general interest; occasionally these contain information about pending legislation; however, this constitutes much less than one-fourth of informative purposes of the bulletin; only legislative advice, 1950, is to urge members to favor reduction of Federal spending. The NAMIA does not operate as a lobbying body, but merely informative—for general business welfare of its members. Duties of official reporting involve administrative affairs of the association: Arranging of and coordinating general administrative matters; publication of monthly nonpolitical magazine; arranging meetings; fostering advertising campaigns, and acting as general coordinator.

A. National Association of Mutual Savings Banks, 60 East Forty-second Street, New York, N. Y.; trade association of mutual savings banks. The National Association of Mutual Savings Banks is a trade organization for the mutual savings banks. The association is supported by the payment of regular dues by the member banks on a schedule basis to carry on all the activities of the association. This statement is filed by the association although it is believed that the law does not require the filing of such a statement, inasmuch as the legislative activities of the association comprise only a small part of its general activities and are not the principal purpose of the association. The association's functions are, among other things, to encourage thrift, to bring about better lending practices on the part of the institutions, to examine and to assist in the rehabilitation of corporations in which the member banks have a substantial financial interest, to encourage generally sound banking practices through committees of the association, to disseminate information helpful to the operation of the savings banks generally, and to participate in a proper way before committees of Congress on legislation in which the mutual savings banks have a legitimate interest. In order, however, that there may be no question about the propriety of failing to file these financial statements, the executive committee of the association has instructed that they be filed. The total dues collected during the period for which this report is made amount to $184,675 of which amount $107,720 was the total amount of dues of $500 paid by the members of the association. There is attached in appendix II a list of banks which have paid dues of $500 or more, and the amount so paid. The legislative work of the association is done for the association by their general counsel, Oliver & Donnally (see appendix III) and the amount of the total dues received used for purposes in connection with legislative interests is the same as the amount of general counsel's fees allocable to legislative work plus travel, maintenance, and telephone and telegraph expenses of general counsel's staff and of witnesses. This amounts yearly to approximately $6,600 ($5,400 fees and $1,200 traveling, maintenance, and telephone and telegraph expenses), or roughly 3.6 percent of total dues, and dues received have been reported on this basis.

C. (1) Legislative interests will continue indefinitely.

C. (2) The general legislative interests consist of any legislation which the mutual savings banks have a legitimate interest in supporting or opposing. Specific legislative interests in the period January 1 to March 31, 1950, have been: Middle income housing bill, S. 2246, H. R. 7402; FDIC bill, S. 2822; tax revision hearings before House Ways and Means Committee; Federal savings and loan conversion bill, S. 1175, H. R. 5606; bank holding company bill, S. 2318; tax-exempt organizations, H. R. 5064.

E. (2) $1,350; (6) $40.50; (7) $291.26; (9) $1,681.76; (16) $1,350, January 1, February 1, March 1, Oliver & Donnally, 110 East Forty-second Street, New York, N. Y., and Continental Building, Washington, D. C. (legal fees); $94.09, January 23, February 14, March 24, Mr. Held, Bowery Savings Bank, New York, N. Y. (reimbursement of traveling expenses); $106.04, January 25, March 24, Mr. Proctor, Oliver & Donnally (reimbursement of traveling expenses); $91.13, January 25, February 14, March 24, Mr. Lester, Oliver & Donnally (reimbursement of traveling expenses); $40.50, January 27, February 20, March 29, Oliver & Donnally (reimbursement of telephone and telegraph expenses); total, $1,681.76. General counsel is to be paid an annual compensation of $36,000 a year for the calendar year 1950. This covers all legal services rendered to the association. General counsel's office assumes its own office overhead. There are three members of the general counsel's office who regularly do legal work for the association. There is one other who performs infrequently some legal work of the association but not connected with legislative activities. An estimate has been made by the general counsel's office of the proportion of their time allocable to purposes designated in subparagraphs (a) and (b) of section 307 of the act. It is their judgment that approximately 10–15 percent of their legal work has to do with such legislative activities and consequently, to be conservative, they have advised the national association that $5,400, or 15 percent of their total compensation, should be allocated for that purpose for the year 1950 in this return which includes their office overhead attributable to the work. For the preceding calendar quarter there should be included one-fourth of the annual compensation, or $1,350.

A. National Conference of Railroad Investors, 116 Nassau Street, New York, N. Y.; nonprofit, nonstock membership organization of railroad stockholders.

C. (1) Legislative interest terminated with enactment of Public Law 478, Eightieth Congress, second session, 1948 entitled "An act to amend the Interstate Commerce Act."

A. National Congress of Parents and Teachers, 600 South Michigan Avenue, Chicago, Ill.; the organization is a nonprofit corporation under the laws of the District of Columbia.

C. (1) The legislative interests of the organization will continue indefinitely.

C. (2) The general legislative interests of the national congress are concerned with measures which affect the welfare of children and youth in fields of education; social and economic well-being; child labor and environmental situations; Federal research agencies in education, health, juvenile protection and homemaking; world understanding and peace among nations. The national congress may support or oppose specific statutes and bills which relate to the area of its general legislative interests.

C. (3) The legislative interests of the national congress are reported upon from time to time in National Parent-Teacher, the official magazine of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers.

D. The National Congress of Parents and Teachers does not receive any contributions for the purposes designated in subparagraphs (a) or (b) of section 307 of the Federal Regulation of Lobbying Act. Its expenses in connection with its limited legislative activities are paid out of general corporate funds. Such general corporate funds are derived principally from membership fees and from so-called founder's day gifts. During the first quarter of 1950—that is to say, from January 1, 1950 to March 31, 1950—the receipts of the national congress were as follows: Membership fees, $198,441.35; life membership fees, $900; founder's day gifts, $8,574.66; total, $207,916.01. As will appear below, the national congress expended out of its total receipts the sum of $250 for legislative activities.

E. The legislative activities of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers are carried on through the chairman of the standing committee on legislation and the chairman of the Washington committee on legislation. Ethel G. Brown, of 1134 North Orange Drive, Los Angeles, Calif., is the chairman of the standing committee on legislation; Mrs. Edna Callaghan, of 3032 Belmont Road NW., Washington, D. C., is the chairman of the Washington committee on legislation. The chairman of the standing committee on legislation reports to the board of managers; the chairman of the Washington committee on legislation reports to the chairman of the standing committee on legislation. During the period from January 1, 1950, to March 31, 1950, the total expenditures of the national congress in connection with legislative interests was $250. This sum was paid to the chairman of the standing committee on legislation to defray her out-of-pocket expenses and the out-of-pocket expenses of the chairman of the Washington committee on legislation. As will appear from the separate report filed by the chairman of the standing committee on legislation, some part of the $250 so received by her was disbursed to the chairman of the Washington committee on legislation to defray the latter's out-of-pocket expenses in connection with the legislative activities of the national congress.

A. National Cotton Compress and Cotton Warehouse Association, 586 Shrine Building, Memphis, Tenn.; 1037 Woodward Building, Washington, D. C. This organization, a Louisiana corporation, is a federation of regional associations of owners and operators of cotton warehouse and compress warehouse facilities (American Ports Cotton Compress and Warehouse Association, Mississippi Valley Interior Cotton Compress and Cotton Warehouse Association, South Atlantic Cotton Warehouse Association, Southwestern Compress and Warehouse Association, and special members of the States of Arizona and California). Such groups collect annual dues from their members, and pay annual dues to this association. The activities of this organization consist of efforts to improve the services rendered by the industry, promote maximum operating efficiency and economy of its members through research and engineering to develop improved operating methods and equipment, promote improved relations between its members and other segments of the raw cotton industry (and governmental agencies) which they serve, protect and develop the interests of the cotton warehouse and compress industry, and of the raw cotton industry generally, gather and disseminate information of interest to its membership, conduct or promote cooperative campaigns for adyertising the services rendered by cotton warehouse and compress facilities to the cotton trade, and, on occasion, to determine and express the views of the cotton warehouse and compress industry concerning matters which affect that industry, including proposed or existing laws and governmental regulations. Activities designed to influence legislation are sporadic, infrequent, and incidental to the major purposes, functions, and activities of the organization. This filing is made in the conviction that it is not required by Public Law No. 601, Seventy-ninth Congress. It is made solely to avoid even any unwarranted suggestion of a question of good faith or of compliance with the law.

C. (1) Indefinite.

C. (2) Any matters affecting the cotton compress and cotton warehouse industry.

C. (3) None, other than mimeographed news letters and bulletins to membership.

D. (1) $585.74; (7) $585.74; (13) no. No dues, assessments, contributions, loans, or other funds are received for legislative interests or activities as such. Dues are received to finance all operations of the association, in connection with which legislative activities and expenses are minor and incidental. All amounts reported herein are the estimated maximum portions of receipts and expenditures which might be regarded as received or expended for the purpose of influencing legislation.

A. National Cotton Council of America, post office box 18, Memphis, Tenn.; nonprofit welfare organization to promote the consumption of American-grown cotton, cottonseed, and products thereof.

C. (1) Indefinitely.

C. (2) Any legislation affecting the raw-cotton industry.

C. (3) Not applicable.

D. (1) $2,603.74; (7) $2,603.74; (14) The National Cotton Council of America is an organization representing the combined raw cotton industry of the United States, including in its membership cotton producers, ginners, warehousemen, merchants, cotton spinning mills, cottonseed growers, and consumers of raw cotton fiber (other than spinners). Each of these segments of the industry maintain their own organizations or trade associations for the handling of matters in which they have a specific interest. The sole objective of the National Cotton Council is to increase the consumption of cotton, cottonseed, and the products thereof. The National Cotton Council seeks to obtain its objective through programs to increase efficiency in all phases of cotton production, marketing, and processing, through sales promotion; through economic and scientific research; through market analysis; through stimulation of exports—both of raw cotton and processed products; and through legislative activity only when the legislation involved affects the consumption of cotton or its products. Funds for the National Cotton Council are derived through voluntary contributions from the six segments of the industry named in the first paragraph, above. In the case of each of these six interests, individuals who comprise that interest contribute according to an agreed-upon assessment on each bale of cotton or ton of cottonseed that they produce, handle, or process. All contributions are made to the general fund of the organization and no funds received are earmarked for legislative purposes. Rates of assessment for various segments of the industry are as follows: Producer-ginner, 10 cents per bale. (The ginner acts as a collection agency, remitting collections to the council.) The ginner agrees to pay when the producer is delinquent. This is, however, voluntary; warehousemen, one-half cent per bale; merchants 2 cents per bale on merchandise basis—one-half cent per bale on percentage basis; cottonseed crushers, 5 cents per ton on seed crushed; cotton spinning mills 5 cents per bale; consumer of raw cotton fiber (other than spinners), 5 cents per bale. It will be observed that, since the Council does not receive any contributions as such, for legislative purposes, and only makes small expenditures out of its general funds for these purposes, the only way in which the council can report contributions under section 305 of the act is to consider, as contributions to it for legislative purposes, a sum equal to its expenditures for such purposes.

E. (2) $1,488.58; (4) $22.74; (5) $208.20; (6) $215.88; (7) $668.34; (9) $2,603.74.

The National Cotton Council of America receives no contributions which are earmarked for legislative purposes, and the relatively small expenditures which it makes for such activities is made from its general funds. Its activities in connection with legislative matters are of an incidental nature only and are subordinate to its main purposes. Its expenditures for legislative purposes are chiefly indirect expenditures although, in a few instances, small direct expenses are incurred in this connection. The council maintains its head office in Memphis, Tenn., and it maintains another office in Washington, D. C. The Washington office performs many functions for the council, and only a minor part of the activities of both offices is concerned with legislative matters. Moreover, the Memphis office of the council performs many services for the Washington office, such as mimeographing, stamping, mailing, etc. Therefore, in reporting expenditures for legislative purposes, it is necessary to allocate a proportionate share of total expenditures of the council to legislative expenditures. The expenditures listed on the form include the estimated portion of salary paid to each officer and agent of the council which is chargeable to legislative activities. A number of officers and agents of the council, among their numerous other duties, performs what broadly may be termed legislative activities on behalf of the council. The sum paid to such officer or employee includes a salary for his total activities, plus reimbursable expenditures. Since such officers and employees normally do many things for the council besides incidental work in connection with legislative activities, it is usually necessary to allocate that portion of their salaries and expenses chargeable to legislative activities and that has also been done in computing the following list. The expenditures listed on the form also contain all other direct expenditures of the council for legislative purposes and likewise represent a proportion of all other expenditures of the council, which in the opinion of the management, reflect its participation in legislative activities during the period covered by this report.

Item 16 of the form issued March 31, 1950, by the Secretary of the Senate and the Clerk of the House of Representatives evidently inadvertently provided for a listing of the expenditures on a quarterly basis. The statute (section 305 (A) (4)), however, requires such information to be listed from January 1 through the close of the current quarterly reporting period, consequently the statute has been followed in this respect. This necessarily includes the quarterly information called for by item 16: Albert R. Russell, 162 Madison Avenue, Memphis, Tenn., 1950, salary and expenses, $1,062.94; John Todd, 1832 M Street NW., Washington, D. The National Education Campaign-American Medical Association is an unincorporated committee with its offices and principal headquarters at 1 North La Salle Street, Chicago, Ill. For convenience, it will hereinafter be referred to as this committee.

It is the purpose of this committee to conduct a campaign of public education in the 48 States and the several Territories of the United States. The object or purpose of such campaign is to acquaint the American people with the availability and the desirability of prepaid medical and hospital care. It will endeavor to accomplish that object or purpose through the preparation and publication of advertising and publicity and the widespread distribution of information and sales promotional material. To enable it to accomplish the aforesaid object or purpose, this committee finds it necessary to obtain, analyze, and classify information as to plans or systems through which such care is available and to promote the conception and pursuit of policies and practices in connection with such plans or systems, intended to assure their soundness, fairness, availability, and popular appeal. It is also the object or purpose of this committee to inform the American people of the views of the American Medical Association, as representative of the views of the majority of its members, as to the desirability and advantages of such plans or systems conducted in response to voluntary, individual initiative under private management and control as contrasted with the disadvantages and dangers inherent in, or resulting from, compulsory plans or systems operated or controlled by government, either Federal or State. The accomplishment of this latter purpose is intended and expected to acquaint the public with the soundness of, and public service rendered by, voluntary plans and systems. Upon the assumption that under the system of democracy in America, legislative pronouncements are responsive to the will of the people, it is expected that substantial accomplishment of this last-named objective or purpose also will, or may, have the effect of lessening the popular demand, for, and of increasing the popular objection to, the enactment of laws by the several States and the Congress of the United States to create such plans or systems, to place them under the control of the Government and to make participation therein compulsory. This committee is of the opinion, and has been so advised by counsel, that it is not, and during the first quarter of 1950 it has not been, the principal purpose of this committee to aid in the passage or defeat, nor to influence, directly or indirectly, the passage or defeat of legislation by the Congress of the United States within the meaning of Public Law 601, Seventy-ninth Congress, but, because of the ambiguity of that statute, and in order to inform Congress and the public of its activities, it nevertheless files this report in compliance with that statute. It is the present intention of this committee to continue to file such reports while its activity as aforesaid continues.

The only funds this committee has received and the only funds it expects to receive are from the aforesaid American Medical Association. During the first quarter of 1950 the funds so received from said association, were in excess of $500 and said association was the only source from which any amounts of $500 or more were received. The funds which have been received by this committee during the first quarter of 1950 and those which it expects to receive are not, and will not be, earmarked or otherwise segregated or specially designated as to the purpose or object for which they have been or will be received or as to the purpose or object for which they have been or will be expended. The sum of $42,594.72 reported under paragraph D (7) of the report to which this statement is annexed is an estimated portion of the total amount received by this committee during the first quarter of this year. In estimating said portion in said amount it is assumed that the amount received by this committee for Federal legislative purposes during the first quarter of 1950 was an amount equal to the amount expended during that period for such purposes, but in order to fully disclose the total amount so received by this committee for all of the aforesaid purposes this committee hereby reports $400,000 as the full amount of all of its receipts during such period for all of the aforesaid purposes, a substantial portion of which it still has on hand.

During the first quarter of 1950 it is estimated that the aggregate amount expended for Federal legislative purposes was $42,594.72 and the amount so reported under paragraph E. (9) of the report to which this statement is annexed is an estimated amount intended to represent the sums expended by this committee during the first quarter of 1950 which fairly could be considered as those expended to aid in the passage or defeat, or to influence, directly or indirectly, the passage or defeat of legislation by the Congress of the United States.

This committee has retained the firm of Whitaker & Baxter, a copartnership consisting of Clem Whitaker and Leone Baxter Whitaker, doing business under said name of Whitaker & Baxter, to manage and direct its activities as aforesaid. In reporting amounts paid to said Whitaker & Baxter, this committee makes and relies upon certain assumptions in estimating the portion of such payments which will be attributed to Federal legislative activities. It will be assumed that one-half of the amount paid to said Whitaker & Baxter is paid to the said Clem Whitaker and the remaining half to said Leone Baxter Whitaker. It will be further assumed that at least half of the amount so paid to each, both as expenses and as compensation for service, is paid for expenses incurred and services rendered, not for the purpose of aiding, and not in aid of, the passage or defeat, and not for the purpose of influencing, and not to influence, directly or indirectly, the passage or defeat of legislation by the Congress of the United States.

Because of the ambiguities of Public Law 601, Seventy-ninth Congress, and because of doubt as to how it might be construed and applied to the facts as above outlined, this committee does hereby report the name and address of each person to whom an expenditure, within the first quarter of 1950, in one or more items, of the aggregate amount or value of $10 or more has been made, for any and all purposes, by or on behalf of this committee, and the amount, date, and purpose of each such expenditure, together with the aggregate amount of all such expenditures in the amount or value of less than $10. This committee hereby declares that in the event it ultimately should be determined that the action of this committee, in whole or in part, or the principal purpose of this committee, or either such action or purpose, is subject to, or falls within the meaning of, said Public Law 601, Seventy-ninth Congress, and is thus for the principal purpose of aiding the passage or defeat, or of influencing, directly or indirectly, the passage or defeat of legislation by the Congress of the United States, then and in that event, this report and the information and date herein set forth and the receipts and expenditures herein shown are hereby reported as those received and expended for that purpose. Such expenditures were as follows:

January 4, 1950: The Sound Recorders, 421 Powell Street, San Francisco, Calif., recordings, $68.14; Andrew W. Lerios, 548 Market Street, San Francisco, Calif., travel expense for Gampell, $324.13; W. A. National Live Stock Tax Committee, 515 Cooper Building, Denver, Colo.

C. See E.

D. (6) $380; (7) 380.

E. During the first quarter of 1950 the National Live Stock Tax Committee paid to Stephen H. Hart, tax counsel, a per diem of $50 for office work and $100 out of town for actual time spent in study, advice, conferences and correspondence concerning general livestock tax questions including the analysis of the present provision of the Internal Revenue Code and current rulings and decisions concerning Federal taxation of livestock operators; such activities also included work in connection with the position of the National Live Stock Tax Committee toward amendments to the Internal Revenue Code concerning capital gains on sale of breeding livestock and the deduction of ranching expenditures; it is impossible to determine what part of his services related to this legislative problem, but it is our opinion that none of his activities during the first quarter of this year could be interpreted as lobbying. During the quarter a total of $1,650 for legal services was paid to him for all his activities and services; he was also reimbursed $458.89 for out-of-pocket expenses; check for $1,658.89 of the above (services, $1,200, expenses, $458.89) mailed to Mr. Hart on March 31, 1950, and therefore may not show on his report for the quarter.

A. National Milk Producers Federation,[5] 1731 I Street NW., Washington, D. C.; a national organization of dairy cooperatives.

C. (1) Indefinitely.

C. (2) Any legislation that may affect milk producers or the cooperatives through which they act together to process and market their milk.

C. (3) Names of papers, periodicals, magazines, or other publications in which the federation has caused to be published any articles or editorials: News for Dairy Co-ops, the National Milk Producers Federation legislative letter, American Milk Review.

D. (13) Yes. (14) The following statement contains a complete list showing the name and address of each person or organization, other than members of the federation, that has made a separate payment of $500 or more to or for the National Cooperative Milk Producers Federation; ordinarily the activities of the federation are financed through the collection of assessments or annual dues from its members. There is attached hereto a list[3] showing the name and address of each member of the federation. Included in this list are the names and addresses of all members that have made either a contribution or a payment on account of dues or assessments of $500 or more to or for the federation; the federation has many activities in no way related to lobbying which are financed from the funds which it receives. Because of the uncertainty which exists as to the proper interpretation of the Federal Regulation of Lobbying Act, it is impossible to determine accurately what, if any, part of such receipts fall within the terms of the act. Accordingly, all such receipts are reported regardless of their purpose. The reporting of receipts herein is not to be considered as an admission that such amounts, or any part thereof, were collected or used for the purposes designated in subparagraph (a) or (b) of section 307 of the act nor that the act is applicable thereto; (1) total sum of all separate payments of $500 or more made to or for the federation during the calendar year, either as a contribution or as a payment on account of dues or assessments: $63,398.38; total, $63,398.38; (2) total sum of all contributions or payments on account of dues or assessments made to or for the federation during the calendar year and not stated under paragraph 1 above: $11,720.09; total, $11,720.09; (3) total sum of all contributions or payments on account of dues or assessments made to or for the federation during the calendar year, $75,118.47; (4) names and addresses of all persons or organizations not mentioned in preceding reports for this calendar year, other than members, from which a separate payment of $500 or more has been received; there is attached hereto a list of the names and addresses of members of the federation which includes all members from which payments of $500 or more have been received; Baltimore & Ohio Railroad (refund from tickets), Baltimore, Md.; Middlebury Cooperative Creamery Co., Middlebury, Ind.

The following statement contains the name and address of each person or organization to whom an expenditure has been made within the calendar year by or on behalf of the National Cooperative Milk Producers Federation and shows the amount, date, and purpose of such expenditures; a minor rent account covering only receipts and expenditures in connection with the operation of the Federation building is not included, the federation has many activities and purposes other than lobbying; because of the uncertainty which exists as to the proper interpretation of the Federal Regulation of Lobbying Act, it is impossible to determine accurately what, if any, part of its expenditures fall within the terms of the act; accordingly all such expenditures are reported, regardless of their purpose. The reporting of expenditures herein is not to be considered as an admission that such amounts, or any part thereof, were collected or used for the purposes designated in subparagraph (a) or (b) of section 307 of the act, nor that the act is applicable thereto; total sum of all expenditures made by or on behalf of the Federation during the calendar year, $66,756.25.

The National Tax Equality Association does not employ any lobbyists to lobby for or against any legislation. The items recorded above mainly represent the expenditures made for art work, ink, paper, postage, labor, etc., used in the production and distribution of leaflets, bulletins, reprints, etc., which may have inspired others to write their Congressman. During the first quarter of 1950, approximately 20 percent of NTEA's total expenditures fell into this classification and the report is made on that basis. The above list was not one of direct lobbying expenses, but of fringe items, the reporting of which depends upon whether or not they influence third parties to make their views known to Congress.

Under section D (subsec. 5) receipts, I have listed my full salary as general manager for the association for the 3 months ending March 31, 1950. Only on three occasions, during that period, as shown in section C, did I attempt to influence legislation. The time involved represented only a small portion of total time concerned with regular association activities, which include rendering services to members, publication of magazine, newsletter, conferences, negotiations with executive departments, etc.

With respect to other receipts, no funds were received from anyone or any source for the financing of the specific activities listed. They were paid for out of the general funds of this association, which are obtained as membership fees from its member systems. Out-of-pocket expenditures, such as taxis, meals, etc., as were made by myself, were repaid to me by the association.

Under section E (subsec. 2), I have attempted to allocate a portion of the regular salaries of two stenographers to cover time spent on correspondence, etc., relating to legislation. I have also similarly handled subsections 6 and 7.

With respect to section E, subsection 16, the only lump-sum payment over $10 was one of $159.01 to Gibson Bros., 1312 I Street NW., Washington, D. C., for the printing of the Statement on Federal Power Policy. This statement did not relate to any pending bill, but dealt with broad policy questions involved in the Federal Government's power program.

A. (1) New York Stock Exchange, 11 Wall Street, New York, N. Y.

C. (1) Indefinite.

C. (2) Proposed Federal legislation affecting the interests of the New York Stock Exchange and its members, specifically the Frear bill (S. 2408).

D. (13) No.

E. (7) $322.43; (8) $386.33; (9) $708.76.

The New York Stock Exchange does not believe that it is subject to the provisions of the Federal Regulation of Lobbying Act. It retains the law firm of Milbank, Tweed, Hope & Hadley, of 15 Broad Street, New York, N. Y., and 821 Fifteenth Street NW., Washington, D. C., to represent it generally in legal matters. These legal matters involve a wide variety of services by a number of partners and employees of such firm. The stock exchange makes no allocation on its records of the portion of the retainer paid for any particular services. An incidental and minor part of the professional services rendered by such firm involves the consideration of proposed legislation relating to Federal taxes by Howard O. Colgan, Jr., Clarence E. Dawson, and Weston Vernon, Jr., of that firm. They have filed registration statements on Form

[5] Filed with the Clerk only.

B with the Clerk of the House of Representatives and the Secretary of the Senate, wherein they state that they do not believe they are subject to the provisions of the Federal Regulation of Lobbying Act and that any Federal tax legislative work performed by them for the stock exchange comprises only an incidental and minor part of their duties. The stock exchange has been advised, and the undersigned believes, that none of the activities of Messrs, Colgan, Dawson, and Vernon are subject to the provisions of the Federal Regulation of Lobbying Act. If any of their activities are subject to the provisions of said act, however, the stock exchange has been informed that no portion of the annual retainer might be attributed to such activities based on an allocation of time from the records of Milbank, Tweed, Hope & Hadley during the first quarter of 1950, and there were no disbursements pertaining to any such activities. During the first quarter of 1950, the New York Stock Exchange reimbursed Mr. Robert P. Boylan, chairman of the board of governors of the New York Stock Exchange, or paid his expenses during trips to Washington in connection with his appearance before the subcommittee of the Committee on Banking and Currency of the Senate during consideration of the Frear bill (S. 2408) and in connection with other stock exchange activities totally dissociated from its legislative interests. If for this reason the New York Stock Exchange is subject to the provisions of the Federal Regulation of Lobbying Act, allocated on the basis of time spent in his various activities, approximately $708.76 of the expenses paid by the exchange for Mr. Boylan may have been attributable to his activities in connection with the legislative interests of the stock exchange.

B. The registrant is employed as an executive secretary by the Association of American Physicians and Surgeons, Inc., 360 North Michigan Avenue, Chicago, Ill., which is an organization formed for the mutual assistance of physicians and surgeons in the United States on a dues-paying membership basis, somewhat similar to that of the American Bar Association and other similar organizations.

C. The Association of American Physicians and Surgeons, Inc., is interested in all matters concerning the practice of medicine and surgery for the self-improvement and protection of its dues-paying members. The members being active practitioners do not have time to look after these matters personally. The work of the association is educational in character and it issues a monthly news letter to all members. It becomes necessary at times that committees and Members of the Congress receive educational material concerning pending legislation affecting the practice of medicine and surgery. This registrant, being the executive secretary of the association, is sometimes required to communicate with committees of the Congress and with Members of the Congress, on behalf of the association, concerning matters which affect the members of the association. Not more than 10 percent of the time and energy of the registrant is devoted to such educational work with the committees of the Congress. The association does not concern itself with any proposed legislation except that affecting physicians and surgeons in the practice of their profession and registrant's activities are limited to making known to committees and Members of the Congress the interests of the member physicians and surgeons. The monthly news letter is a four-page printed communication issued by the association itself and in large part composed by the registrant along with the other duties of his position.

A. Fred N. Oliver, Oliver & Donnally, 110 East Forty-second Street, New York, N. Y., and Continental Building, Washington, D. C.; partner in law firm of Oliver & Donnally.

B. Legal services rendered to National Association of Mutual Savings Banks, 60 East Forty-second Street, New York, N. Y., and Railroad Security Owners Association, Inc., 110 East Forty-second Street, New York, N. Y. Approximately 15 percent of legal work done on behalf of National Association of Mutual Savings Banks was for purposes mentioned in Lobbying Act. No work for any purposes mentioned in Lobbying Act was done on behalf of Railroad Security Owners Association, Inc. during last quarter. About $7,000 is the estimated proportion of distribution received by affiant as partner of Oliver & Donnally of total annual compensation from the National Association of Mutual Savings Banks for all legal services performed by the firm for the year 1949. It is estimated that not in excess of 15 percent of that amount is received for purposes mentioned in the Lobbying Act, or $1,050 annually, of which about $262.50 is for the preceding calendar quarter. Receipts for fees from National Association of Mutual Savings Banks are accordingly reported on this basis.

A. Don Petty, 1771 N Street NW., Washington, D. C.; attorney.

B. National Association of Broadcasters, 1771 N Street NW., Washington, D. C.; registrant's client a national trade association.

C. (1) General statement: Registrant is interested in any legislation—local, State, Federal, or international—which affects the broadcasting industry. As outlined under A above, registrant will have a legislative interest as long as he represents this client.

C. (2) As stated immediately above, registrant is interested in any legislation affecting his client; and during the last quarter particularly, in S. 1973, S. Res. 256, the President's Reorganization Plan No. 11, S. 1847, the House Committee on Ways and Means hearings on excise tax on TV receivers, and H. R. 6949.

C. (3) (a) S. 1847, letters to the NAB board of directors, January 18, 1950; (b) TV receivers' tax, 129 wires to all TV stations and NAB board, February 13, 1950; (c) H. R. 6949, letter to networks, March 17, 1950.

D. Registrant is of the opinion that the Federal Regulation of Lobbying Act of 1946 is not applicable to him. Any activities from time to time of registrant relating to the passage or defeat of any legislation by the Congress of the United States are incidental to his activities as attorney for the association. However, he registers under the act in order that he may carry on his duties as attorney without question being raised by any person as to the propriety of his performing any act respecting Federal legislation, incidental to his other activities though it may be. The registrant does not directly or indirectly solicit, collect, or receive any money or other thing of value to aid, nor is the principal purpose of registrant to aid, in the accomplishment of the passage or defeat of any legislation by the Congress of the United States, or to influence, directly or indirectly, the passage or defeat of any such legislation. In view of the foregoing explanation, it is impossible to answer D and E. During the past quarter he has received the sum of $3,750 as a retainer fee from said association, and the sum of $1,007.05 for business expenses in connection with his numerous activities in all fields of law relating to this particular client, the National Association of Broadcasters. The approximate cost of activities under C (3) was $342.76.

A. Railroad Security Owners Association, Inc., 110 East Forty-second Street, New York, N. Y.; an association of railroad security owners. The Railroad Security Owners Association, Inc., is an organization maintained by institutional investors in railroad securities to protect and promote the best interests of their holdings. The association is supported by the payment of regular dues by the member institutions on a schedule basis to carry on all the activities of the association. While this statement of receipts and expenditures is filed by the Railroad Security Owners Association, Inc., it is believed that the law does not require the filing of such a statement inasmuch as the legislative activities of the organization comprise only a small part of its general activities and are not the principal purpose of the association. The association's functions are, among other things, to cooperate with other groups in encouraging things which will better the welfare of the railroads and thus bring about better conditions for their securities; to participate in rate proceedings before the Interstate Commerce Commission where general questions of revenues are involved; to participate in matters involving accounting practices and procedure, and in proper cases to appear before committees of Congress on legislation in which the members have a legitimate interest. Such legislative activities are confined to legitimate appearances before congressional committees where the views of the member institutions are publicly announced and are not at any time involved in private conferences with legislative members on these subjects. In order that there may be no question about the propriety of failing to file these financial statements, the executive committee of the association has instructed that they be filed. The total dues collected from members during the period January 1 to March 31, 1950, was $2,725.34. Of this amount $2,276.64 was collected from members who paid dues in excess of $500. There is attached (item D (14)) a list of members who have paid dues of $500 or more. No payment to anyone was made during the period January 1 to March 31, 1950, for purposes in connection with legislative interests.

C. (1) Legislative interests will continue indefinitely.

C. (2) The general legislative interests consist of any legislation which the members of the association have a legitimate interest in supporting or opposing. There have been no specific legislative interests in the period January 1 to March 31, 1950.

D. (1) $2,725.34; (7) $2,725.34; (13) yes; (14) $2,276.64, October 1, 1949, to September 30, 1950, Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Co., Milwaukee, Wis.

A. Railway Business Association, 38 South Dearborn Street, Chicago, Ill.; a national organization of manufacturers and other concerns engaged in furnishing the railways with material, equipment, and supplies.

C. (1) The only legislative activity dealt with by the Railway Business Association in the quarter ending March 31, 1950, consisted of two letters to members of the Railway Business Association (January 25 and February 6, 1950) requesting their cooperation in opposing H. R. 378, a bill to extend the control of the Interstate Commerce Commission over operating rules of the railroads.

C. (2) The Railway Business Association opposed H. R. 378 because it was believed that this bill would impose burdensome control over railroad operations.

C. (3) The number of letters sent to members of the Railway Business Association in connection with H. R. 378 totaled 790.

E. (4) $80.25; (16) $9.85, January 15, Gunthorp Warren Printing Co., 210 West Jackson Boulevard, Chicago, Ill., printing letterheads and envelopes for H. D. (1) $2,316.40; (13) Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, 318 Keith Building, Cleveland, Ohio, $329.85; Brotherhood of Railway Carmen of America, 107 West Linwood Boulevard, Kansas City, Mo., $329.85; Brotherhood of Railway and Steamship Clerks, Freight Handlers, Express and Station Employees, 1015 Vine Street, Cincinnati, Ohio, $329.85; Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way Employees, 61 Putnam Avenue, Detroit, Mich., $329.85; the Order of Railroad Telegraphers, 3860 Lindell Boulevard, St. Louis, Mo., $211.95; International Association of Machinists, Machinists Building, Washington,

[3] Not printed. Filed in the Clerk's office.

D. C., $207.32; Order of Railway Conductors of America, ORC Building, Cedar Rapids, Iowa, $164.93; Switchmen's Union of North America, 3 Linwood Avenue, Buffalo, N. Y., $41.23; American Train Dispatchers Association, 10 East Huron Street, Chicago, Ill. $14.13; International Brotherhood of Boilermakers, 522 Brotherhood Building, Kansas City, Kans., $39.64; International Brotherhood of Blacksmiths, 2922 Washington Boulevard, Chicago, Ill., $15.52; Sheet Metal Workers International Association, 642 Transportation Building, Washington, D. C., $47.49; International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, 330 South Wells Street, Chicago, Ill., $42.39; International Brotherhood of Firemen and Oilers, 330 South Wells Street, Chicago, Ill., $30.58; Hotel and Restaurant Employees and Bartenders International Union, 528–530 Walnut Street, Cincinnati, Ohio, $35.44; International Longshoremen's Association, 265 West Fourteenth Street, New York, N. Y., $14.13; Brotherhood of Railroad Signalmen of America, 503 Wellington Avenue, Chicago, Ill., $56.53; National Organization of Masters, Mates, and Pilots of America, room 1104–5, 15 Moore Street, New York, N. Y., $4.63; National Marine Engineers' Beneficial Association, 132 Third Street SE., Washington, D. C., $4.63; Railroad Yardmasters of America, 537 South Dearborn Street, Chicago, Ill., $16.45; total $2,316.40. (The above amount represents 20 percent of the total assessment, which is the amount expended for legislative activity and accordingly the percentage deemed to have been contributed for that purpose.)

In accordance with instruction No. 2 (c), all of the organizations contributing have been listed, although no one of them contributes $500 or more for legislative purposes.

E. The estimated expenditures by the association during the first quarter of 1950 for legislative activities are shown in the following separated into the several categories of expenses: Salaries and expenses to officers and employees, $1,235.08; attorney fees, $916.03; postage, $16.50; telephone and telegraph, $20.42; stationery and office supplies, $55.40; furniture and office equipment, $22; cartage and messenger service, $7.62; newspapers and magazines, $8; public documents and decisions, $20.50; District of Columbia personal property tax, $2.85; subscriptions, $12; total, $2,316.40.

Generally it may be stated that the association has an interest in any legislative proposals dealing with labor and a particular interest in those relating to railway labor. The amounts expended in connection with such legislation have been prorated among the specific categories of expense wherever pertinent. For example, a given bill may receive study by the association's attorneys, may in some cases be distributed to particular member organizations, and infrequently may be the subject of pamphlet comment.

B. None. I am general counsel of the National Association of Motor Bus Operators which pays me an annual retainer of $18,000 for my services as such. My services for the association cover a wide field consisting of furnishing general legal advice and opinions, appearing in behalf of the association before the Interstate Commerce Commission and other governmental agencies and in the courts, and performing all of the other legal services required by such an organization. A comparatively small part of my time is spent in legislative matters and consists solely of the presentation of the views of the association (but not of any other person) to Congress on matters affecting transportation and the interests of the association and its membership. The annual retainer received from the association is not allocated as between legislative and other activities and, in my judgment, it would be impossible to make such an allocation upon any sound or accurate basis.

C. Baker, Selby & Ravenel, the law firm of which I am a partner, is employed by the Cigar Manufacturers' Association of America, Inc., on an annual basis. The services that we perform are general and they include representation of the association before such Government agencies as the Departments of State, Agriculture, and Labor, the Bureau of Internal Revenue, the Federal Trade Commission, etc. We inform the association of pending legislation affecting the industry and occasionally arrange for the presentation of the association's problems and views before committees and Members of Congress. Such matters more recently have included bills seeking a reduction of the excise tax on cigars. The only publication of material in which we participate to any extent is in connection with the filing of statements and briefs with committees of Congress. We receive for such services an annual retainer of $5,000, payable quarterly. No portion of any payment received from the association has been or can be readily allocated to such services as we have rendered on matters relating to legislation in which the association is interested. There have been no disbursements by me or other members of the law firm of which I am a member of moneys received under our contract of services with the Cigar Manufacturers' Association of America, Inc.

A. Purcell L. Smith, 1200 Eighteenth Street NW., Washington, D. C.; registrant is the president of the National Association of Electric Companies, a trade association whose members are 100 operating electric companies. Mr. Purcell L. Smith, president of the National Association of Electric Companies, is filing this form for the information of the Congress of the United States under title 3 of the Legislative Reorganization Act of 1946 but questions whether and to what extent that act applies to him. This form has been prepared without the benefit of official interpretations of that statute. The amount stated in item D of the form is the total salary registrant receives as president of the association in the performance of all his duties as they arise in carrying out the purposes and activities of the association.

B. National Association of Electric Companies, 1200 Eighteenth Street NW., Washington, D. C.; the National Association of Electric Companies is a trade association whose members are 100 operating electric companies. The preamble of its articles of association describe the functions to be engaged in by the association as follows: "In order to further the interests of the electric utility companies that are members of this association and their investors, employees, and customers; to maintain the integrity and credit of the industry; to present to the public the essential facts about the industry to the end that there may be a better understanding between the utility companies and the public and a better appreciation of utility progress, achievements, and problems; to coordinate regional activities among member companies; to furnish member companies information, reports, and statements concerning various phases of electric utility operations and developments; to further cooperation with all agencies and organizations interested in the supply and purchase of electric light and power; to furnish such agencies and organizations with information, reports, and statements concerning member companies and the electric utility industry; to present the facts to the public concerning the public benefits resulting from the operation of electric utility companies by businessmen under governmental regulations and, generally, to engage in those practices recognized as being legal and proper to further said ends, certain electric utility companies do hereby establish a national association which shall be adequately qualified and empowered to act in every lawful way when concert of policy and action would be helpful." Thus the association functions for the following principal purposes: (1) To keep member companies informed of Washington developments affecting them as operating businesses, including information and analyses of governmental hearings, orders, and regulations, both legislative and administrative; (2) to keep the public, including employees, consumers, and investors, informed concerning the accomplishments of the industry, its achievements in serving the public, and the plans of this industry for the future; (3) to furnish—and aid in furnishing—technical information to the instruments of government and to provide a readily available contact between government and the industry; (4) to provide the members of the association with a medium through which they can exchange ideas on problems of mutual concern and interest in order to better serve the public; (5) to act for the member companies in matters of common and national concern.

C. (1) Of indefinite duration.

C. (2) Registrant is president of the National Association of Electric Companies. One of the purposes of this association as set forth in previous registrations and reports filed pursuant to title 3 of the Legislative Reorganization Act of 1946 is to provide its members with a medium through which they can develop and exchange ideas and take appropriate action on problems of mutual concern and interest, including matters involving legislation. The association, therefore, is generally interested in all developments in and of Federal legislation that might affect its members as going electric utilities, including, but not limited to the following bills and statutes and amendments thereto: H. R. 7786, a bill making appropriations for the support of the Government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1951, and for other purposes; H. R. 5472, a bill authorizing the construction, repair, and preservation of certain public works on rivers and harbors for navigation, flood control, and for other purposes. Internal Revenue Code (53 Stat. 1); TVA Act (48 Stat. 58); Federal Power Act (49 Stat. 803); Rural Electrification Act of 1936 (49 Stat. 1363); Reclamation Acts (25 Stat. through 45 Stat.); Flood Control Act, 1944 (58 Stat. 887); Administrative Procedure Act (60 Stat. 237). For specific details concerning the policy position of the National Association of Electric Companies see the document entitled, "Opinions, Recommendations, and Answers to the Power Policies Questionnaire, 1948," filed with the Secretary of the Senate and the Clerk of the House by the National Association of Electric Companies. A similar document now being prepared in response to a request of the Chairman of the President's Commission on Water Resources Policy dated March 2, 1950, requesting the association's views on certain policy questions will be forwarded to the Clerk of the House of Representatives and the Secretary of the Senate by the association when it is completed.

A. State Tax Association, box 2559, Houston, Tex.

C. (1) The general purpose of the State Tax Association is to bring about constructive cooperation between community-property and common-law States for the development of a plan of tax equalization which will afford an equitable basis for income, estate, and gift taxation in the Federal tax structure. To support complete retroactive repeal of the 1942 estate and gift tax amendments as they apply to the community-property States in an inequitable manner. To support the complete elimination of Federal estate taxes and restore estate taxation to the several States. We have supported and will continue to support the American Bar Association's recommendation for tax equalization.

C. (2) No specific legislation at this time is supported or opposed, other than the general purpose to retain unimpaired the tax equalization principles of the 1948 Revenue Act and wherever possible to accomplish complete tax equality between community-property and common-law States.

B. American Cable & Radio Corp., 67 Broad Street, New York, N. Y.; a holding company owning the Commercial Cable Co., All America Cables and Radio, Inc., and Mackay Radio & Telegraph Co., which are international telegraph carriers.

C. (1) Six to 9 months.

C. (2) I am interested in legislation which would permit the merger of international telegraph companies; no legislation is now pending although a subcommittee of the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce of the Senate has an investigation on the subject under way; also, the President has appointed a Communications Policy Board to study and recommend on the same subject.

D. I have been associated with International Telephone & Telegraph Corp. in various capacities for many years and for the last several years have been president of its subsidiary, American Cable & Radio Corp. This company is interested in the proposal of legislation which would permit the merger of international telegraph companies. For the past year my company has supported the idea of the passage of such legislation which has necessitated conferences and meetings with various Government and legislative representatives in Washington, and during this time I have made a number of trips to Washington for conferences with Government officials and representatives; however, this is an incidental function under my duties as president of this corporation and I receive no additional remuneration above my regular salary, except travel, hotel and incidental expenses on trips to and from Washington; these expenses have not and are not anticipated to exceed on the average over $100 per month; my regular salary is $45,000 per annum, no part of which is for the purpose of influencing legislation; this statement is intended to supply the information requested in D (5), D (7), D (8), D (9) and in E (6), E (7), E (9), E (11) and E (15); these activities did not seem to come within the purview of the Lobbying Act; however, I have made no objection to filing under the same and will furnish any further information if desired.

A. Walter S. J. Swanson, 952 National Press Building, Washington, D. C.; editor of the Highway Highlights, published monthly by the National Highway Users Conference, and writer of reportorial bulletins for information of conference member groups.

B. National Highway Users Conference, Inc., 952 National Press Building, Washington, D. C. The National Highway Users Conference, Inc., is a national organization composed of associations and corporations interested in sound development of highway transportation and the safe, economic, and efficient use of motor vehicles. It was organized in 1932 and since has been incorporated under the laws of the District of Columbia as a nonstock, nonprofit corporation. Most of its member organizations are represented on its board of governors which is listed under the caption of the letter of transmittal. The entire budget of the conference is met by voluntary contributions and subscriptions from its member and affiliated organizations. It is the purpose of the conference to encourage the full development of highway transportation in the public interest. It maintains a limited staff devoted to the collation of statistical, scientific, and legislative information concerning all matters pertaining to the carrying out of this purpose. It acts as a clearinghouse for the collection and dissemination to its members and the public of information concerning present and proposed national, State, and local legislation, regulation, and taxation affecting highway transportation. It also serves as a forum for the discussion of policies and formulation of voluntary programs concerning highway transportation. There are local highway users conferences, informally organized in nearly all of the States of the Union. While each of these State conferences is entirely autonomous, they are affiliated in purpose with the national conference and receive administrative assistance from the field representatives of the national organization. These State conferences receive no contributions or other financial support from the National Highway Users Conference, Inc. Their major interest resides in the local and State development of highway transportation. The registrant is employed as staff correspondent and legislative reporter for the National Highway Users Conference, Inc., and as such is responsible to the board of governors, the administrative committee and the director of the conference for the reporting of highway legislation currently before Congress, the writing of bulletins and the editing of statistical and informational material that may be released to the press and the member groups. For his duties he receives a fixed annual salary of $5,500, no part of which is paid him for, nor can be allocated to, the presentation of the views of the constituent members of the conference or the conference itself, to Congress on matters of legislation pertaining to the development of highway transportation, or on any other legislative matters. The member groups of the conference have always agreed that State motor vehicle use taxes constitute the principal sources of revenue that have given America its present system of highways; that to carry forward maintenance and necessary expansion of this program motor vehicle use taxes should be reasonable and equitable in amounts and incidence; that the levying of motor vehicle use taxes should be reserved to the several States; and that it should not be practiced by the Federal Government nor any political subdivision of the States. At recent forum meetings of the board of governors and the administrative committee, it was unanimously voted by member representatives that they would petition Congress to repeal existing revenue laws which impose special emergency excise taxes upon gasoline, lubricating oil, motor vehicles, trailers, tires, tubes, automobile parts and accessories. They instructed the staff to develop essential statistical information and to coordinate and recommend action to be taken by the constituent groups of the conference. Any work done in this connection is purely incidental to the general work of the office. No money has been received or is available for this specific, or any other legislative purpose. It is not the intention of the registrant nor any member of the conference staff to make appearance before any congressional committee, nor to interview any Member of Congress for purposes of influencing such member's position. Neither the conference nor any officer or employee thereof may solicit, collect, or receive money or any other thing of value to be used principally to aid, or the principal purpose of which person is to aid, in the accomplishment of the purposes stated in title III of the Legislative Reorganization Act of 1946. The registrant has been advised by counsel that title III of the Legislative Reorganization Act of 1946 is not applicable to the National Highway Users Conference, Inc., to himself as legislative reporter thereof, or to any member of the conference staff. This registration is, therefore, filed in order to inform the Congress of the organization and general functions of the National Highway Users Conference, Inc., and in a spirit of cooperation with what may have been the congressional purpose in the enactment of that law.

C. (1) Continuous, as long as there be legislation before the Congress dealing with Federal grants-in-aid to States for highways, or the repeal, modification, or extension of Federal excise taxes on motor vehicles, gasoline, lubricating oil, tires, or auto parts and accessories. Such legislative interest is primarily reportorial and is not believed to be within the meaning of Public Law 601, Seventy-ninth Congress, the Lobbying Act.

C. (2) The current Federal-aid highway bill, and current excise-tax bills, such as H. R. 4489.

C. (3) (a) Highway Highlights, edited by the undersigned and published by the National Highway Users Conference monthly (a sample copy is attached for reference [3]);

[3] Not printed. Filed in the Clerk's office.

(b) quantity published, 8,400, and distributed to the member groups of the National Highway Users Conference and to member groups of the State conferences; (d) Wilson-Epes Printing Co., Washington, D. C.

C. (3) (a) As disclosed in my regular report for the past quarter ended March 31, 1950, on old Form C, and at the direction of representatives of various member groups who had previously petitioned Congress for the repeal of the Federal automotive excise taxes, a study was made by the staff research section giving the history and amounts involved in such taxes. In February 1950, this was revised and reprinted, and given a limited distribution to member groups; the cost of reprinting and postage was paid by the conference out of its printing and postage funds; (b) 2,650 copies of that pamphlet were distributed; (d) Wilson-Epes Printing Co., Washington, D. C.

D. (5) $1,750; (7) $1,750; (13) No.

E. (4) $298; (9) $298; (15) $298; (16) $287, February 9, Wilson-Epes Printing Co., Washington, D. C., printing pamphlet on Federal automotive excise taxes; $11, United States Post Office, postage; total, $298.

A. John B. Switzer, 70 North Thirteenth Street, Beech Grove, Ind.; legislative director.

B. Communications Workers of America, CIO, Indiana Division No. 1, 27 West Ohio Street, Indianapolis, Ind.

C. (1) Indefinite.

C. (2) Kerr bill, S. 1498.

D. (5) $25.90; (7) $25.90; (13) no.

E. (9) $25.90; (15) $25.90.

A. James A. Tawney, 504 Hibbs Building, Washington, D. C., lawyer and counsel for the Grain & Feed Dealers National Association.

B. Grain & Feed Dealers National Association, 100 Merchants Exchange Building, St. Louis, Mo.; this association, now more than 50 years old, exists for the advancement and protection of the common interests of those engaged in the grain and feed business.

C. (1) Continuously.

C. (2) All legislation pertaining to agriculture, commerce and trade, conservation, taxation, social security, and other subjects, from time to time, affecting the business interests of the members of the Grain & Feed Dealers National Association. Exercise general oversight of legislative developments, occasionally analyze particular measures, obtain information with respect to others, etc. During the first quarter of 1950 particular attention was given to an amendment to H. R. 6567, Eighty-first Congress, first session, and a similar amendment to S. 2826, identical bills to increase the borrowing authority of the Commodity Credit Corporation. Special attention also was given in this quarter to taxation of certain tax-exempt organizations in connection with the tax revision bill now in process of development before the Committee on Ways and Means.

C. (3) No publications issued or caused to be issued by this registrant except occasional letters to Members of Congress, to members of the above association, or preparation of informative items for the association's news letters or bulletins.

I have no receipts, other than reimbursements for out-of-pocket expenditures, from which expenditures are or will be made in connection with so-called legislative interest. Because I am reimbursed for expenditures in connection with legislative interests, I have no expenditures to report. I am a salaried employee. My duties are almost entirely confined to reporting legislative or administrative developments, to analyzing legislation or administrative requirements and laws applicable to the business interests or operations of the members of the association, and otherwise assisting the association or its members in planning and carrying out normal association or trade activities.

During the first quarter of 1950 I spent not more than 30 hours or 5 working days out of 64 in activities that could reasonably be interpreted as attempting to influence legislation or lobbying or as promoting legislative interests, assuming that these terms are susceptible to reasonable interpretation. Frankly, I do not know what they mean.

My salary for the first quarter of 1950 totaled $1,325 (gross). Taxicab and telephone expenditures, that might have any conceivable bearing on efforts to influence legislation, to lobbying, or promoting legislative interests, probably would not exceed materially the sum of $5. I would not know how to allocate any particular taxicab fare or telephone conversation on the basis of these terms. Furthermore, whatever I spent in this regard was spent out of my own personal funds for which I was reimbursed by the association.

My entire salary is used for my own personal needs and household expenses. I have solicited no funds, made no loans, or had any other financial or property transactions, even remotely connected with legislative activity, the promotion of legislation or the influence of any votes on particular legislation other than what I have reported herein.

A. Tax Equality Committee of Kentucky, 211 Columbia Building, Louisville, Ky.; association business.

A. Edward D. Taylor, administrative vice president, Office Equipment Manufacturers Institute, and administrative member, excise tax committee of OEMI, 1903 M Street NW., Washington, D. C.

B. Office Equipment Manufacturers Institute (OEMI), 1903 N Street NW., Washington, D. C.; a nonprofit trade association devoted to the general industrial problems and interests of the office equipment manufacturers industry. More specifically, with respect to the legislative activities reported herein, the registrant submits this report in his capacity as administrative member of the excise tax committee of OEMI.

C. (1) Present legislative interests will terminate with the enactment of legislation terminating the Federal excise tax on business and store machines. Such legislation is now pending before the Congress.

C. (2) (a) Repeal of the Federal excise tax on business and store machines imposed by section 3406 (a) (6) of the Internal Revenue Code; (b) H. R. 7003, H. R. 5864, H. R. 6151, H. R. 1724.

C. (3) (a) Regular information bulletin which is issued weekly by the OEMI and mailed to members. This bulletin reports information on many subjects of interest to the members of the institute; while reference is made occasionally to legislative items, this bulletin is not issued or caused to be issued in connection with legislative interests; (b) 225 copies; (c) published weekly; (d) bulletin is multigraphed by OEMI staff, not printed.

D. (5) $970; (6) $112.47; (7) $1,082.47; (13) no. The total sum of $1,082.47 reported in items (5) to (9) above are not contributions but represent out-of-pocket expenses incurred and paid by me and that portion of my monthly salary which is allocable to services performed by me on behalf of the excise tax committee of the Office Equipment Manufacturers Institute.

E. (7) $112.47; (9) $112.47; (15) $112.47; (16) $112.47 was paid to railroads, hotels, taxis, for travel, hotels, taxicabs, committee luncheons, and miscellaneous committee meeting expenses incurred on behalf of the excise tax committee and for which registrant was reimbursed by his employer.

A. Hugh W. Taylor, 1507 M Street NW., Washington, D. C.; executive secretary of employer listed below.

B. Burley & Dark Leaf Tobacco Export Association, Inc., 620 South Broadway, Lexington, Ky. The questions contained in the reporting form suggests that neither I nor the Burley and Dark Leaf Tobacco Export Association, Inc., come within the meaning of the act. Neither I nor the association make any attempt to influence legislation by the expenditure of money, directly or indirectly. My lobbying activities are limited to explaining to Members of the Congress the effect of any legislation on the production and marketing of tobacco at home and abroad. Each Member, of course, exercises his own judgment whether the particular legislation should be supported or opposed. I registered as a lobbyist only for the purpose of being legally entitled to contact Members of Congress. My total salary for the quarter has been reported as well as reimbursements for expenses paid by me during the quarter. Salary is without social security and income taxes withheld by my employer.

C. (1) During my period of employment, which is on an annual basis.

C. (2) Economic Cooperation Act of 1948, as amended, H. R. 7797, S. 3304; borrowing power of the Commodity Credit Corporation, H. R. 6567; graduated tax on cigarettes, H. R. 2016.

A. Brig. Gen. John Thomas Taylor, retired, care the American Legion, 734 Fifteenth Street NW., Washington, D. C.; a chartered organization of war veterans.

B. The American Legion, 777 North Meridian Street, Indianapolis, Ind.

C. (1) On a yearly basis.

C. (2) Below is set forth a statement showing the general legislative interests of the American Legion and the work performed in connection therewith: The American Legion and all veterans of World War I and World War II and their dependents on all matters affecting their care, their rehabilitation, hospitalization, reeducation, and housing; all matters affecting the general welfare of our country with regard to national defense; Americanization, included in which is opposition to all subversive activities and particular attention to our immigration and naturalization laws; child welfare, not only for children of veterans but for all children; aid and assistance to veterans in agriculture development; matters dealing with our foreign policy and foreign relations; the development of sound civil-aviation programs and policies; and the development of sound and progressive programs for the employment and reemployment of veterans in civilian pursuits and in civil service; legislation which would eliminate all improper discriminations and be of benefit to the men and women who are still in our armed services; and all other matters included in the mandates and program of the American Legion as adopted and approved by the national convention of the American Legion and/or by its national executive committee which are the ruling and policy-making bodies of the American Legion. (a) Due to the nature and extent of the work involved, it is impossible to specify the titles of statutes and bills, (b) the House and Senate numbers of bills, or (c) the citations of statutes.

C. (3) The legislative commission of the American Legion prepares an article on legislation pending before Congress, which is inserted in the American Legion magazine once a month. The American Legion magazine is distributed to all members of the American Legion. The only publication issued by the American Legion Legislative Commission is the Legislative Bulletin, which is issued once a week while Congress is in session. (a) The American Legion magazine is a magazine of interest to veterans, and, as above stated, is sent to all members who have paid dues and is part of the consideration for payment of dues. The Legislative Bulletin is issued to subscribers and also to certain officers of the American Legion who receive same without paying any consideration therefor. Paid subscribers are charged $3 per congressional session. (b) During the past year slightly in excess of 3,000,000 copies of the American Legion magazine were published, and at the present time 3,376 copies of the Legislative Bulletin are issued. (c) The American Legion magazine is issued the early part of each month. The Legislative Bulletin is issued on Tuesday of each week while Congress is in session. (d) The American Legion magazine is printed by C. T. Dearing Printing Co., and the Legislative Bulletin is printed by the Law Reporter Printing Co.

A. Transportation Association of America, 130 North Wells Street, Chicago, Ill.; this association is a public interest organization in fact as well as in name; it files with you a quarterly report showing every detail of all of its expenditures; it also files with you special reports of Donald D. Conn, executive vice president, Clarence F. Lea, director of governmental relations and Dr. John H. Frederick, consultant in the Washington, D. C., office; it is a policy of the association's board of directors to treat all elected representatives in the Senate and the House and all officers of our Government as part of the public interest; therefore, we comply with the lobbying act not because we have admitted in any sense that we are lobbying under the intent and meaning of that act, but rather that we are glad to have our Government and the Congress in possession of all the facts relative to our operations.

C. (2) This association deals with the economics, public relations, and legislation of over-all transportation in the public interest; it provides consultant services at Washington, D. D. On my original registration (Form B) dated December 12, 1946, I endorsed the following, which is still correct: "The registrant, who has been an officer or employee of Spokane, Portland & Seattle Railway Co. continuously since 1913, works under the general direction of a committee of officers of the three railroads named in (1) above on matters of common interest to such railroads. Some of his time is devoted, when occasion arises, to Federal legislation; but such work is intermittent, with no definite determinable period of duration, and on the whole consumes less than 10 percent of his time. He is paid an annual salary for all work performed for said railroads, but no breakdown has been or can be made whereby any particular portion thereof could be allocated to work involving Federal legislation. Likewise, no such breakdown of his expenses has been or could be made." The following are the items of expense allocable to Federal legislation, as closely as I can compute them, during the last quarter: Meals, $64.50; living accommodations, $56; pullman fares, $100.63; taxi fares, $38.40; telegrams and long-distance telephone tolls, $14.78; miscellaneous, $33.74.

E. (16) State of Louisiana, parish of Caddo: Personally came and appeared before me, the undersigned notary public in and for said Parish and State, C. Huffman Lewis, a resident of said parish and State, who being by me, notary, first duly sworn, deposes and says: "Affiant is a duly qualified and practicing attorney at law and is one of the two senior partners of the law firm of Wilkinson, Lewis & Wilkinson, address Fifteenth Floor, Slattery Building, Shreveport, La., and for the first quarter of 1950 owned 50 percent interest in said firm. Said law firm has been employed by United Gas Pipe Line Co. and Union Producing Co., and predecessor companies for more than 25 years. Each of said companies pay said law firm a retainer of $750 per month, which is credited against quarterly bills at the end of each quarter where the total compensation is based upon the total amount of work done for each of said companies. From one to six attorneys of said law firm are doing work continually for each of said companies. The nature of the work is general law work. Affiant has done no lobbying work for United Gas Pipe Line Co., but did, as counsel for Union Producing Co., testify before the Senate Subcommittee of the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce May 17 to June 8, 1949, relative proposed amendments to the Natural Gas Act, and particularly S. 1498. See page 461 and following of the record of the hearings of the Senate Subcommittee. During the first quarter of 1950, the total amount of work done by C. Huffman Lewis for Union Producing Co. was approximately 80 hours, of which about 70 hours was for general legal work and research, and the balance for discussions in connection with proposed amendments to the Natural Gas Act. For the first quarter of 1950, it is estimated that said law firm will be paid approximately $1,600 for all services rendered by the said Lewis as aforesaid, which amount will be kept and retained by said law firm and divided in the same manner as other legal fees. The total expense accounts of C. Huffman Lewis for said period for Union Producing Co. amounted to the sum of $371.06, which included individual, personal traveling expenses, and nothing else, except in addition to said expenses, Union Producing Co. provided airplane and rail transportation in most instances. The said law firm paid the said Lewis the said amount of expenses, and was reimbursed by Union Producing Co. No other member of said law firm has done any so-called lobbying work for either of said companies," Huffman Lewis; sworn to before me this the 18th day of April 1950, Hallie Mills.

A. United States Cane Sugar Refiners Association, 408 American Building, 1317 F. Street NW., Washington, D. C.

C. (1) Legislative interests will last indefinitely as long as any legislation is pending affecting the cane sugar refining industry.

C. (2) Interested in defeating House Joint Resolution 426.

D. (1) $14,250; (7) $14,250.

E. (2) $10,100; (9) $10,100. This is a second and supplementary explanation of the set-up of the United States Cane Sugar Refiners Association. It is difficult to explain it in the report form. The main office of this association is in New York City but that is purely and solely a technical and statistical research department for the cane sugar refining industry. The Washington office handles mostly matters before the Department of Agriculture, Department of State, Defense Purchasing Department, and other Government agencies. There is very little legislative work due to the fact that the Sugar Act of 1948 completely controls and regiments the sugar industry. However, the Washington office always interests itself in any legislation if it affects the cane sugar refining industry. The total budget for the year for the Washington office is $57,010.45. Under Item E, Expenditures, I have listed the total amount of salaries. It is impossible to breakdown the expenses of the Washington office and allocate them to legislative interests because we have done no work on any legislation for the past quarter except House Joint Resolution 426 and that bill has never had any hearings before any committee. The following members are assessed a certain percentage (of U. S. cane) which is shown opposite the name of each company: Revere Sugar Refinery, 6.51; National Sugar Refining Co., 29.91; Refined Syrup & Sugars, 5.36; Savannah Sugar Refining Corp., 8.13; J. Aron & Co., 2.46; Godchaux Sugars, Inc., 8.40; Henderson Sugar Refining, Inc., 2.28; South Coast Corp., 2.23; Sterling Sugars, Inc., 1.46; Imperial Sugar Co., 6.43; C & H Sugar Refining Corp., Ltd., 24.94; Inland Sugar Co., 0.47; Southdown Sugars, Inc., 7.42.

Explanatory statement: It appears questionable whether the act is applicable to the council in view of its activities, but out of an abundance of caution, the council is filing this report, setting forth its total contributions and those expenditures which might be connected, directly or indirectly, with pending or proposed legislation.

savings and loan associations; S. 2246, housing amendments of 1949; S. 2987, to amend the Federal Home Loan Bank Act, as amended, and title IV of the National Housing Act; S. 2408, to amend the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, as amended; S. 2822, to amend the Federal Deposit Insurance Act (U. S. C., title 12, sec. 264). United States Savings and Loan League is advised by counsel, and believes, that it is not subject to the Federal Regulation of Lobbying Act for the reason that its principal purpose is not to influence legislation and it does not raise money principally to influence legislation. However, it has discovered that the Attorney General of the United States has taken the position that it is subject to the act. It has never at any time had any reason not to comply with the act, if it is subject to it, and it has never at any time had any facts which it desired to conceal, if it is required by law to report the same. Therefore, in view of the foregoing, and without admitting that it is subject to the act, this report is filed.

C. (3) (d) Millar Publishing Co., 538 South Wells Street, Chicago, Ill.

D. (13) No dues or other receipts are for this specific purpose. All expenditures in connection with legislative interests are made from general funds. Members' dues covering the calendar year 1950 collected during the first quarter of this year amounted to $529,289.90.

E. (2) $2,686.18; (4) $2,816.52; (5) $564.98; (6) $276.40; (7) $736.82; (8) $297.03; (9) $7,377.93.

A. United World Federalists, Inc.,[3] 7 East Twelfth Street, New York, N. Y. United World Federalists, Inc., is not, its counsel has advised it, obliged to file this statement since it does not solicit, collect, receive, or expend funds to be used principally to aid in the passage or defeat of any legislation, or to influence the passage or defeat of any legislation by the Congress of the United States. It files this statement voluntarily since it has nothing to conceal. Further, United World Federalists, Inc., cannot determine from a study of the act, whether it is to report only the relatively small amounts which it expends in connection with legislation by the Congress of the United States, or whether it is to report its total corporate expenses for all its national, State, and local activities. In the interests of safety, United World Federalists, Inc., has heretofore regularly reported, and reports herewith, on the basis of its total expenditures for all purposes. If a segregation of the amounts expended, which might come within the coverage of the act, is expected, United World Federalists, Inc., estimates that that would be less than 15 percent of the total expenditures herewith reported.

C. (1) As long as this organization continues its program of interest in legislative measures as specified in (2) below.

C. (2) The general legislative interests of this organization are measures relating to strengthening of the United Nations and United States participating in the United Nations; specifically House Concurrent Resolution 64, Senate Concurrent Resolution 56, and H. R. 7797.

C. (3) World Government News is a publication published independently by World Government News, Inc. Copies of this publication are sent to members of this organization since a portion of the memberships dues is allocated to a subscription to such publication as is designated by the organization. World Government News contains an insert edited by this organization. World Government News is a monthly publication, approximately 35,000 copies of which are sent to members of this organization (sample copy attached).[3] Political Action Letter is a mimeographed bulletin sent to branches and chapters of this organization. It is issued regularly but averages about one edition per month throughout the year. It is produced at the New York office of this organization in quantity of 1,000 per edition. (See copy attached.)[3] In addition a mimeographed bulletin called Branch and Chapter Letter is produced in the same manner as the Political Action Letter for branches and chapters, this organization, issued about once per month in the same quantity as the above. (See copy attached.)[3] Various pamphlets and reprints are produced for resale to branches and chapters. (See samples attached.)[3]

C. (1) Our legislative interest will continue so long as Congress considers or enacts legislation affecting our industry and the individuals of which it is comprised, or so long as we are afforded the right of petition under the Constitution.

C. (2) Our immediate current interests are centered in repeal of the excise taxes on communications and transportation, the congressional inquiry into United States transportation conditions, and in strengthening the enforcement arm of the United States Department of Agriculture in administering the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act.

C. (3) We have prepared stories for the fresh fruit and vegetable industry trade press (the packer, of Kansas City, Mo.; and the Produce News, of New York, N. Y.) advocating the aforementioned legislative interests and reporting on developments over a yearly period. We issue a general trade association bulletin to our members every week covering the same ground.

A. Stephen M. Walter, 1200 Eighteenth Street NW., Washington, D. C.; registrant is employed by the National Association of Electric Cos., a trade association whose members are 100 operating electric companies. Mr. Stephen M. Walter, employed by the National Association of Electric Cos., is filing this form for the information of the Congress of the United States under title 3 of the Legislative Reorganization Act of 1946, but questions whether and to what extent that act applies to him. This form has been prepared without the benefit of official interpretations of that statute. The amount stated in item (D) of the form is the total salary registrant receives as an employee of the Association in the performance of all his duties as they arise in carrying out the purposes and activities of the association (see appended statement, p. 4).

B. National Association of Electric Cos., 1200 Eighteenth Street NW., Washington, D. C.; the National Association of Electric Cos. is a trade association whose members are 100 operating electric companies. The preamble of its articles of association describe the functions to be engaged in by the association as follows: "In order to further the interests of the electric utility companies that are members of this association and their investors, employees and customers; to maintain the integrity and credit of the industry; to present to the public the essential facts about the industry to the end that there may be a better understanding between the utility companies and the public and a better appreciation of utility progress, achievements and problems; to coordinate regional activities among member companies; to furnish member companies information, reports, and statements concerning various phases of electric utility operations and developments; to further cooperation with all agencies and organizations interested in the supply and purchase of electric light and power; to furnish such agencies and organizations with information, reports, and statements concerning member companies and the electric utility industry; to present the facts to the public concerning the public benefits resulting from the operation of electric utility companies by businessmen under governmental regulations and, generally, to engage in those practices recognized as being legal and proper to further said ends, certain electric utility companies do hereby establish a national association which shall be adequately qualified and empowered to act in every lawful way when concert of policy and action would be helpful." Thus the association functions for the following principal purposes: (1) To keep member companies informed of Washington developments affecting them as operating businesses, including information and analyses of governmental hearings, orders, and regulations, both legislative and administrative; (2) to keep the public, including employees, consumers, and investors, informed concerning the accomplishments of the industry, its achievements in serving the public, and the plans of this industry for the future; (3) to furnish, and aid in furnishing, technicial information to the instruments of government and to provide a readily available contact between government and the industry; (4) to provide the members of the association with a medium through which they can exchange ideas on problems of mutual concern and interest in order to better serve the public; (5) to act for the member companies in matters of common and national concern.

C. (1) Of indefinite duration.

C. (2) Registrant is employed by the National Association of Electric Cos. One of the purposes of this association as set forth in previous registrations and reports filed pursuant to title 3 of the Legislative Reorganization Act of 1946 is to provide its members with a medium through which they can develop and exchange ideas and take appropriate action on problems of mutual concern and interest, including matters involving legislation. The association, therefore, is generally interested in all developments in and of Federal legislation that might affect its members as going electric utilities, including, but not limited to, the following bills and statutes and amendments thereto:

(a) H. R. 7786, a bill making appropriations for the support of the Government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1951, and for other purposes.

(b) H. R. 5472, a bill authorizing the construction, repair, and preservation of certain public works on rivers and harbors for navigation, flood control, and for other purposes.

(C) Internal Revenue Code (53 Stat. 1); TVA Act (48 Stat. 58); Federal Power Act (49 Stat. 803); Rural Electrification Act of 1936 (49 Stat. 1363); Reclamation Acts (25 Stat. through 45 Stat.); Flood Control Act, 1944 (58 Stat. 887); Administrative Procedure Act (60 Stat. 237).

For specific details concerning the policy position of the National Association of Electric Cos., see the document entitled "Opinions, Recommendations, and Answers to the Power Policies Questionnaire, 1948," filed with the Secretary of the Senate and the Clerk of the House by the National Association of Electric Cos. A similar document now being prepared in response to a request of the Chairman of the President's Commission on Water Resources Policy dated March 2, 1950, requesting the association's views on certain policy questions will be forwarded to the Clerk of the House of Representatives and the Secretary of the Senate by the association when it is completed.

Registrant has no reportable receipts and expenditures for the period covered by this report. There is no separation of salary as between principal employment and possible incidental concern with matters of Federal legislation. Registrant is of the opinion that his acivities for the period covered by this report do not fall within the scope of the Lobbying Act. He is employed on an annual basis, primarily for services not related to Federal legislation. Matters of Federal legislation are other and different from and only incidental to principal employment and purpose.

A. Newton Patrick Weathersby, room 303, Machinist Building, Washington, D. C.; assistant legislative representative, District Lodge No. 44, International Association of Machinists.

B. District No. 44, International Association of Machinists.

C. (1) Until my present term of office expires, December 31, 1951.

C. (2) Lobbying, i. e., supporting or opposing as the case may be, legislation affecting working conditions of Government employees and incidentally organized labor in general. Not more than 5 percent of my time is spent on direct legislative work. For instance, during the last quarter, my full time was used in directly dealing with the executive departments on labor relations and all other general conditions for the benefit and welfare of Government employees.

D. (5) $1,499.94; (7) $1,499.94; (13) no.

Explanation of item D (5): $1,499.94 was the salary due me during the first quarter of 1950 as secretary-treasurer and assistant to the president of District Lodge, No. 44, International Association of Machinists. This is compensation for my services as secretary-treasurer of District Lodge, No. 44, I. A. of M.; and, as you will note, as assistant to the president of District Lodge, No. 44, I. A. of M., I am subject to be called upon by him to do lobbying on any legislation affecting working conditions of Government employees or organized labor in general.

Comments on item D (14): My entire salary and expenses are paid by one person, i. e., District No. 44, of the International Association of Machinists. You will note as stated above, that a large majority of my time as an employee of District No. 44, I. A. of M., is spent organizing Government employees and dealing with various Government agencies such as the Army, Navy, and Air Force, and other branches of the Government departments. In order though, to comply with the Lobbying Act it was necessary for me to register and make my reports quarterly, due to the fact that I am subject to be called upon by my superior to do lobbying work at various times. In other words, it is possible that I will spend 10 percent of my time during one quarter and none during another quarter. The affidavit attached requires me to swear that my statement to the questions propounded are complete, as I verily believe. It would be impossible within the limit of time I have at my disposal to make a complete statement covering all details. A. Clifton A. Woodrum, 910 Seventeenth Street NW., Washington, D. C.; president, trade association representing a segment of fertilizer industry.

B. American Plant Food Council, Inc.

C. (1) Legislation interest is incidental but continuous.

C. (2) Generally interested in legislation affecting the fertilizer industry. Specifically, Eighty-first Congress: H. R. 323, H. R. 207, H. R. 855, H. R. 3045, S. 139 (none of the above proposals are active).

C. (3) No publication issued dealing with legislation.

Difficulty is experienced in supplying the detailed information called for because of the following reasons:

1. The American Plant Food Council is a trade association representing a segment of the fertilizer industry. It is not a lobby organization, and any interest in legislation is purely incidental. It does not receive or expend money or anything of value for the purpose of influencing legislation directly or indirectly. Its funds are derived solely from trade association dues paid annually by its members on the basis of the tonnage of fertilizer sold. The dues are paid to a trust company, as trustee, and the council periodically draws upon this fund for its expenditures. The annual dues of the association are between $250,000 and $300,000. The American Plant Food Council does not know the specific amount of dues paid by any member. No funds are expended by the council or its agent for the specific purpose of influencing legislation.

2. The activities of this trade association are educational. It publishes a quarterly magazine and it has published and promulgated a text book on land management neither of which deal with legislative matters; it issues periodically informational bulletins to its membership, the industry, land-grant colleges and soil scientists and others. The council has produced and distributed an educational motion picture dealing with land management practices which is currently in circulation.

3. As a trade association the organization is interested in certain legislative proposals. These have been set out in the printed form attached and none of the legislation mentioned is active at the present time requiring any action by the organization. On January 13, the Federal Trade Commission filed with the Congress a report on the fertilizer industry. This report is of interest to the council but does not contain legislative proposals. As of this date, the report has not been printed by the Government Printing Office, and in order to make the same availble to its membership the American Plant Food Council had the same mimeographed and bound and the approximate total cost of such is listed under expenditures on this report.

4. There have been no other expenditures during this quarter by this organization directly or indirectly relating to legislative interests.

5. Under D, receipts, the sum indicated is the portion of salary that might be allocated to legislative interests.

6. Additional information will be furnished if required.

A. Guy H. Woodward, attorney at law, 605 Commonwealth Building, Washington, D. C., and 302 Public Service Building, Tulsa, Okla.

B. Mid-Continent Oil & Gas Association. The attached report is filed by Guy H. Woodward, attorney at law, with principal offices located at 302 Public Service Building, Tulsa, Okla., and a Washington office at 605 Commonwealth Building, in order to comply with the Federal Lobbying Act, if any of the activities of the undersigned are covered by such act. As attorney, the undersigned represents, among other clients, Mid-Continent Oil & Gas Association, with offices at 308 Tulsa Building, Tulsa, Okla., which is composed of individuals engaged in the oil and gas business in the mid-continent area. As such attorney and as the principal part of his employment, he consults with and advises the officers and directors of the association on industrial problems and numerous local, State and Federal matters affecting the oil industry. Although the undersigned also analyzes and reports on legislative matters pending in the Congress affecting the oil industry and from time to time prepares statements with respect to the merits of such legislation for use before congressional committees and otherwise, the undersigned's principal purpose is not the passage or defeat of any legislation by the Congress or to influence directly or indirectly the passage or defeat of any legislation by the Congress. It is impossible to allocate receipts and expenditures solely in connection with legislative interest; therefore, total receipts and expenditures, any part of which may be attributable to such legislative matters, are shown.

A. Mrs. C. D. (Leslie) Wright, 4620 Thirtieth Street NW., Washington, D. C.; chairman of legislation, General Federation of Women's Clubs.

B. Not employed for pay. The chairman of legislation of the general federation is a volunteer worker. The organization supports legislation which pertains to the welfare of the home and to the general welfare, after given authority through the adoption of resolution by the delegate body. The General Federation of Women's Clubs is a national and international organization, with an affiliated membership of some 11,000,000. One-half of the members are in the United States, the Territories, and possessions, and in 14 affiliated national organizations. The general federation does not represent or dictate the policies of these national organizations. The object of the general federation is to unite the women's clubs and like organizations throughout the world for the purpose of mutual benefit, and for the promotion of their common interest in education, philanthropy, public welfare, moral values, civics, and fine arts. The general federation is nonpartisan and nonpolitical. The major interests of the clubs are along educational and welfare lines—to provide adequate educational opportunities for children and adults; to promote better care for the mentally and physically ill; to conserve natural resources; to further interest in music, literature, and art; and to foster better international relations. The General Federation of Women's Clubs employs no professional lobbyist. What active interest the organization takes in legislation at any time is only incidental to the general policies. Authority for supporting or opposing legislation is provided through the adoption of a resolution in national convention. During the first quarter of 1950 the general federation submitted statements in support of ERA, forest conservation, the International Trade Organization appropriations, and Alaska statehood. The department of legislation is one of the seven departments of the general federation. This department, together with 20 standing committees, the Council of International Clubs, and the junior clubs, receives supervision, counsel, and aid from the president. Much of the president's time is necessarily spent visiting State organizations. In the interest of international good will, foreign clubs throughout the world have been visited. The general federation president and the chairman of legislation are volunteer workers. For all the activities of the general federation the operating income—received mainly from dues—was approximately $162,000 for the fiscal year ending March 1950. The general federation receives no contributions to be used for lobbying. It is impossible to evaluate how much of the income is used for the comparatively small amount expended in submitting statements to Congress, for telegrams, postage, and miscellaneous.

SENATE

MONDAY, JULY 17, 1950

(Legislative day of Saturday, July 1, 1950)

The Senate met at 12 o'clock meridian, on the expiration of the recess.

Rev. Gaston Foote, D. D., minister of Grace Methodist Church, Dayton, Ohio, offered the following prayer:

O God our Father, we are grateful for a nation where, in her legislative halls, men pause to ask for divine guidance.

Teach us the futility of procedure without Thy benediction. May the gigantic powers of our Nation be baptized by the spirit of Thy divine love. May our ultimate faith be not in the brute forces of material power, but in the creative forces of justice, mercy, and truth.

May we ever be careful lest we stand for principles of righteousness abroad and deny them at home. Strengthen the arm of the United Nations that we may move forward under God toward a world in which little babies may be safely born, in which homes may be made secure from invasion, and wherein the laws of God may become the ways of men.

Cure Thy children's warring madness by the deeping of our personal devotions to the principles of peace, we pray in the name of the Prince of Peace. Amen.

THE JOURNAL

On request of Mr. LUCAS, and by unanimous consent, the reading of the Journal of the proceedings of Friday, July 14, 1950, was dispensed with.

A letter from the Attorney General, withdrawing the name of Irene Psaros, nee Irene Evangelos Pagonis, from a report relating to aliens whose deportation be suspended more than 6 months ago, transmitted to the Senate on January 16, 1950 (with an accompanying paper); to the Committee on the Judiciary.

REPORT OF COMMISSION ON RENOVATION OF EXECUTIVE MANSION

A letter from the acting chairman of the Committee on Renovation of the Executive Mansion, reporting, pursuant to law, on preservation or appropriate disposition of all materials removed from the Executive Mansion (with an accompanying paper); to the Committee on Public Works.

PETITIONS AND MEMORIALS

Petitions, etc., were laid before the Senate and referred as indicated:

By the VICE PRESIDENT:

A concurrent resolution of the Legislature of the State of New York; to the Committee on Finance:

"Concurrent resolution of the Senate and Assembly, memorializing the Congress of the United States to enact legislation returning to the several States excess amounts collected by the Federal Government for administration costs of the employment insurance and employment service programs

"Whereas under existing law, the several States of the Union bear the responsibility for the administration of the unemployment insurance and employment service programs; and

"Whereas the Federal Government levies a payroll tax of three-tenths of 1 percent on employers of eight or more persons to pay the administrative cost of such programs by the States; and

"Whereas each State has no control over the amount it receives for the administration of such program and must accept whatever amount is allowed to it by the Federal Government; and

"Whereas since the inception of unemployment insurance and employment service program, the Federal Government has collected from the employers of this State for the administration of this program $150,000,000 more than has been returned to the State for this purpose, and the amounts so returned to the State of New York have been consistently and grossly inadequate; and

"Whereas it was never intended that the Federal Government should divert the proceeds of this tax for its own general purposes, which it has done to the extent of $1,000,000,000; and

"Whereas the continued inadequacy of operating moneys and personnel makes the detection of improper and fraudulent benefit claims exceedingly difficult and impedes efforts to cope with tax evasions; and

"Whereas the failure to make adequate moneys available for efficient administration, to the extent that it weakens control over disbursements from the unemployment insurance fund, jeopardizes the effectiveness and stability of the entire program and brings it into disrepute; now, therefore, be it

"Resolved (if the assembly concur), That the Congress of the United States be and hereby is respectfully memorialized to enact legislation which will—

"1. Earmark the taxes collected under the Federal Unemployment Tax Act to assure adequate funds for administration by each State of the unemployment insurance and employment service program;

"2. Transfer any excess over the amounts allocated by the Federal administrative agencies to the States for use in the unemployment insurance and employment service program with full responsibility resting on each State for the proper use thereof free from Federal control;

"3. Make reasonable provisions assuring all States equitable participation in such allotment; and be it further

"Resolved (if the assembly concur), That copies of this resolution be transmitted to the Secretary of the Senate of the United States, the Clerk of the House of Representatives of the United States, the chairman of the Committee on Ways and Means of the House of Representatives, the chairman of the Committee on Appropriations of the House of Representatives, the chairman of the Finance Committee of the Senate of the United States, the chairman of the Committee on Appropriations of the Senate of the United States, and each Member of the Congress duly elected from the State of New York.

"By order of the senate.

"WILLIAM S. KING,
"Secretary.

"In assembly, March 22, 1950; concurred in without amendment.

"By order of assembly.

"ANSLEY B. BORKOWSKI,
Clerk."

A concurrent resolution of the Legislature of the State of New York; to the Committee on Foreign Relations:

"Concurrent resolution of the senate and assembly memorializing Congress to enact appropriate legislation to bring to the attention of various countries the world-wide revulsion at the forcible detention of 28,000 children from their homes in Greece to countries alien to their nature, custom, and birthright

"Whereas the abduction of approximately 28,000 children from their homes in Greece and their forcible detention in countries alien to their nature, customs, and birthright has profoundly shocked the civilized world; and

"Whereas the countries of Yugoslavia, Bulgaria, Rumania, Poland, Hungary, Czechoslovakia, and the Soviet occupation zone in Germany have ignored unanimous resolutions adopted by the United Nations General Assembly on November 27, 1948, and on November 17, 1949, and refused to cooperate in securing the release of these children and their return to the arms and hearts of their parents, and the comfort and security of their homes; and

"Whereas forcible detention of these children and the attempted severance of all their ties of family, home, and country is tantamount to the horrible crime of genocide, and an abominable crime against humanity: Now, therefore, be it

"Resolved (if the assembly concur), That the Congress of the United States is hereby respectfully memorialized to take appropriate steps and to enact such legislation and adopt such measures as may be necessary and expedient to bring to the attention of the aforementioned countries the feeling of world-wide revulsion at this infamous crime and to demand the liberation of these children and their prompt repatriation; and it is further

"Resolved (if the assembly concur), That copies of this resolution be transmitted to the President of the United States, the Secretary of State of the United States, the Secretary of the Senate, and the Clerk of the House of Representatives of the United States, and to each Member of Congress duly elected from the State of New York and that the latter be urged to do all in their power to accomplish the purpose of this resolution.

"By order of the senate,

"WILLIAM S. KING,
"Secretary.

"In assembly, March 22, 1950; concurred in without amendment.

"By order of assembly.

"ANSLEY B. BORKOWSKI,
"Clerk."

A resolution of the Constitutional Convention of Hawaii of 1950; to the Committee on Post Office and Civil Service:

"Resolution 44

"Whereas the issuing of stamps and minting of coins in commemoration of historic events is a practice long established in the United States of America; and

"Whereas the admittance of the State of Hawaii to the Federal Union will be an event of both national and international importance: Now, therefore, be it

"Resolved by the Constitutional Convention of Hawaii of 1950, That the Postmaster General of the United States, upon the admission of Hawaii as a State of the Union, is respectfully requested to cause a 6-cent airmail stamp to be designed, embodying therein the proposed seal of the State of Hawaii, and to issue said stamps in commemoration of the admission of Hawaii into the Federal Union; and be it further

"Resolved, That the Secretary of Treasury of the United States is respectfully requested, upon the admission of Hawaii as a State of the Union, to cause a 50-cent coin to be designed, embodying thereon the Proposed

Seal of the State of Hawaii and other appropriate designs, and to have said coin struck and issued in commemoration of the admission of Hawaii into the Federal Union; and be it further

"Resolved, That certified copies of this resolution be forwarded to the President of the United States, the Secretary of Treasury of the United States, the Postmaster General of the United States, the President of the Senate, the Speaker of the House of the Congress of the United States and to the Delegate to the Congress from Hawaii."

A resolution adopted by the annual convention of the Hawaiian Junior Chamber of Commerce, Wailuku, Maui, T. H., favoring the enactment of legislation to make effective the recommendations of the Hoover Commission on Reorganization of the Executive Branch of the Government; to the Committee on Expenditures in the Executive Departments.

A resolution adopted by the annual convention of the Hawaiian Junior Chamber of Commerce, Wailuku, Maui, T. H., relating to the repeal of the excise tax on transportation; to the Committee on Finance.

A resolution adopted by the Associated Townsend Clubs of Pinellas County, Fla., at Clearwtaer, Fla., favoring the enactment of the so-called Townsend plan, providing old-age assistance; to the Committee on Finance.

A resolution adopted by the Old-Age Pension Association, Inc., and the Alabama State Committee of the National Pension Committee, Gadsden, Ala., favoring all-out support to the South Korean resistance against the Communist attack of North Korea, with accompanying papers; to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

A resolution adopted by the Bloomsburg branch of the American Association of University Women, Bloomsburg, Pa., protesting against the enactment of legislation providing compulsory health insurance; to the Committee on Labor and Public Welfare.

A letter in the nature of a memorial from the Junior Women's Club, Danville, Pa., signed by Jean J. Marshall, president, and Lois L. Wintersteen, remonstrating against the enactment of legislation providing compulsory health insurance; to the Committee on Labor and Public Welfare.

A telegram in the nature of a petition from the national board of the YWCA, New York, N. Y., signed by Mrs. Arthur Forrest Anderson, president, favoring the amount originally authorized for point 4 program appropriations; ordered to lie on the table.

A cablegram in the nature of a petition from Club Hui Makaala, Honolulu, T. H., signed by John Gushiken, president, favoring the enactment of legislation providing statehood for Hawaii; ordered to lie on the table.

A letter in the nature of a petition from the Republican Precinct Club, tenth precinct, fourth district, Island of Oahu, T. H., signed by John T. Jenkins, president, favoring the enactment of legislation providing statehood for Hawaii; ordered to lie on the table.

RESOLUTIONS OF AMERICAN DEFENDERS OF BATAAN AND CORREGIDOR, INC., NEWARK, N. J.

Mr. LANGER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to have printed in the RECORD a list of resolutions adopted by the American Defenders of Bataan and Corregidor, Inc., at their recent convention at Pittsburgh, Pa.

There being no objection, the list of resolutions was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

1. That the word "legal" be substituted for the words "dependent" wherever they occur in paragraphs (1), (2), (3), and (4) under section (c) of United States Senate bill 3006 and House of Representatives bill 7249, and urge the prompt passage of these bills.

2. Recommends the passage of proper legislation by the United States Congress recommended by the War Claims Commission under section 8 of the War Claims Act of 1948 for the purpose of reimbursement to any exprisoner of war or internee, their family, widows, orphans, or other rightful heirs, who suffered from any prisoner-of-war or interment disability; said reimbursement to be paid out of impounded Japanese and German assets as the ration allowance heretofore allowed.

3. Opposes the Hoover Commission report respecting the dismemberment of the Veterans' Administration.

4. That immediate release of assets in the hands of the Alien Property Custodian to United States Treasury for incorporation into the war-claims fund and requesting emergency legislation to stop the further dissipation of the alien-property funds until the claims of the American prisoners of war and civilian internees are given priority in payment.

5. That the appropriate Federal agency be authorized by Congress to undertake an adequate survey to determine the long-term effects of malnutrition among former American prisoners of war of the Imperial Japanese Government.

6. Urges Congress to pass legislation on S. 1102 with an amendment to include civilians attached to the military.

7. That the President of the United States, the Congress of the United States, and every citizen of the Nation stand united in our Government's effort to solve the present international problems and to establish a permanent world peace.

8. That we meet the threat of communism by greater and greater participation in our free elections and expending every effort to make our democracy function in the interest of all our people in accordance with the principles of the Constitution of the United States.

9. Recommends an amendment to the United Nations Charter to meet world conditions of today; by eliminating the veto provision or drastically revising the same; by tightening the joint procedures of the democracies in cases of aggression or threatened aggression.

SAFEGUARDING MILITARY INFORMATION

Mr. BUTLER. Mr. President, I am in receipt of a resolution adopted by Nebraska Post, 3704, VFW, Lincoln, Nebr., with reference to the safeguarding of military information, especially that which pertains to the alerting of American units. The resolution is very appropriate in the present international situation, and I ask unanimous consent that it may be printed in the RECORD at this point.

There being no objection, the resolution was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

Whereas the American armed services are now participating in hostilities in North Korea; and

Whereas it may become necessary for the American armed services to engage in operations in other sectors of the world to counteract Communist aggression; and

Whereas specific information in the hands of the enemy pertaining to the movement of troops, material, and equipment will enable the enemy to appraise our tactical plans far in advance and to make preparations to meet them; and

Whereas such information in the hands of the enemy may also endanger the lives of our servicemen by exposing them to sabotage of the transportation facilities, the attack of troopships by submarines and planes, and carefully planned defensive and offensive measures on the part of the enemy in the combat zones: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved by Post 3704, Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States, That the Department of Defense be urged to take steps to safeguard information pertaining to the alerting of American units, the destinations of and routes to be taken by alerted units, the names and types of ships bearing troops overseas, and the types and capabilities of new weapons to be sent to the combat zones.

ENROLLED BILLS PRESENTED

The Secretary of the Senate reported that on today, July 17, 1950, he presented to the President of the United States the following enrolled bills:

S. 441. An act to redefine the units and establish the standards of electrical and photometric measurements;

S. 2046. An act to provide authority for certain functions and activities in the Department of Commerce, and for other purposes;

S. 2201. An act to amend section 2 of the act of March 3, 1901 (31 Stat. 1449), to provide basic authority for the performance of certain functions and activities of the Department of Commerce, and for other purposes; and

S. 2507. An act to authorize the Secretary of Commerce to grant to the East Bay Municipal Utility District, an agency of the State of California, an easement for the construction and operation of an interceptor sewer pipeline in and under certain Government-owned lands comprising a part of the Maritime Alameda Shipyard, Alameda, Calif.

BILLS INTRODUCED

Bills were introduced, read the first time, and, by unanimous consent, the second time, and referred as follows:

By Mr. GREEN:

S. 3924. A bill authorizing the naturalization of Daniel Rhee; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. JOHNSON of Colorado:

S. 3925. A bill for the relief of Tsuneko Vemura; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. JENNER:

S. 3926. A bill for the relief of George Telita Florica; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. IVES:

S. 3927. A bill to amend section 3 of the Merchant Ship Sales Act of 1946 in certain respects, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

GENERAL APPROPRIATIONS—AMENDMENTS

Mr. McKELLAR. Mr. President, by direction of the Committee on Appropriations, I submit amendments intended to be proposed to the bill (H. R. 7786) making appropriations for the support of the Government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1951, and for other purposes, and I ask unanimous consent that a letter I have received from the President, dated July 13, 1950, together with accompanying papers, be printed in the RECORD.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The amendments will be received, printed and lie on the table, and, without objection, the letter and papers will be printed in the RECORD. The Chair hears no objection.

The letter and papers are as follows:

THE WHITE HOUSE,
Washington, July 13, 1950.

Hon. KENNETH MCKELLAR,
United States Senate,
Washington, D. C.

DEAR SENATOR MCKELLAR: In furtherance of the discussion we had Tuesday concerning the point four appropriation, I am enclosing for your consideration a draft of an amendment to the pending appropriation bill (H. R. 7786) which would be appropriate to accomplish the purposes about which I talked with you and your colleagues.

You will recall that I said at that time that I hoped the $10,000,000 item included in the bill could be increased to $25,000,000. I find that the actual figure involved is $26,900,000 rather than $25,000,000, and I hope the Senate will see fit to accept that figure. However, if you find that the figure cannot be increased beyond $25,000,000, I would regard that as being sufficient to meet the most vital needs of this important program.

As I promised to do at that time, I am having a statement prepared to explain the justification for this appropriation. I expect that statement will be completed very shortly and I shall have a copy sent to you and each of the other Senators who met with us on Tuesday. In the meantime, I will appreciate it if you will talk with your colleagues about arrangements to have this amendment brought before the Senate, with the hope that we may get favorable action upon it.

With best regards,

Very sincerely yours,

HARRY S. TRUMAN.

SUGGESTED LANGUAGE CHANGES—COMMITTEE PRINT

Page XB–5, line 12, substitute "$26,900,000" for the figure "$10,000,000"; line 25, insert after "any project", "except for demonstration or instructional purposes."

Page XB–6, lines 1 and 2, delete "(not to exceed 10 per centum)."

The attached contains the following requested changes in appropriation language for the international development program (chapter XB—Foreign aid title I—Funds appropriated to the President):

1. Page XB–5, line 12, substitute "$26,900,000" for "$10,000,000"; line 25, insert after "project" the following: "except for demonstration or instructional purposes."

The experience of the Institute of Inter-American Affairs has demonstrated that in connection with projects in such fields as health, sanitation, basic education and food supply, it is extremely helpful to provide demonstrations or pilot plants. These are generally financed by the local government with some help from the United States. This stimulates further activity by the local government and provides a basis for expansion at its own expense.

The change in language suggested above would permit a nominal expenditure for this purpose where it is deemed practical. The change would be consistent with the provisions of the act for international development (title IV of Public Law 535, approved June 5, 1950).

2. Page XB–6, lines 1 and 2, omit the parenthetical provision "(not to exceed 10 percent)."

The economic-development program is a program of providing technical training and technicians. Appropriated funds will be expended almost entirely, therefore, for salaries, travel, and allowances of technical personnel and trainees. Under such a program it is difficult to define and isolate "administrative" costs as distinct from "program" costs.

A number of agencies of the United States Government as well as international organizations will be cooperating in the program. During the first year of operation a considerable amount of effort will go into program planning and development and negotiations with foreign government.

It is believed that the present language of the bill may be construed as a limitation not only upon general overhead and upon such items as communications, printing and binding, and equipment which will represent very small expenditures, but also upon preliminary technical planning with foreign governments, technical review of project proposals, preprogram technical surveys and negotiations.

The present language would appear also to limit expenditures for program administration by the UN and other international organizations. Such limitations have not been placed upon previous contributions to UN programs.

The 10 percent expenditure for administration would appear also to include the planned program of "service to business" to be carried out by the Department of Commerce involving an expenditure of $398,000.

It is feared that the inclusion of this limitation on administrative expenditures would greatly complicate and confuse program procedures and operations. The Department of State will make every effort to hold overhead costs to an absolute minimum. It is urged, however, that for the first year of operation and pending a detailed analysis of costs based upon experience that no such limitation be provided.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

For expenses necessary to enable the President to carry out the provisions of the Act for International Development (title IV of Public Law 535, approved June 5, 1950), including personal services in the District of Columbia; expenses of attendance at meetings concerned with the purposes of this appropriation; purchase (not to exceed 12), and hire of passenger motor vehicles for use outside the continental limits of the United States; printing and binding; payment of tort claims pursuant to law (28 U. S. C. 2672); health-service programs as authorized by law (5 U. S. C. 150); insurance of official motor vehicles in foreign countries when required by law of such countries; acquisition of temporary quarters outside the continental limits of the United States to house employees of the United States Government by rental without regard to section 322 of the act of June 30, 1932, as amended (40 U. S. C. 278a), lease, or construction, and necessary repairs and alterations to such temporary quarters; exchange of funds without regard to section 3651 of the Revised Statutes (31 U. S. C. 543); entertainment (not to exceed $2,000); health and accident insurance for foreign trainees and technicians while absent from their own countries participating in activities authorized under this appropriation, and actual expenses of preparing and transporting to their former homes the remains of such persons who may die away from their homes while participating in such activities; services of commissioned officers of the Public Health Service and of the Coast and Geodetic Survey, and for purposes of providing such services the Public Health Service may appoint not to exceed 20 officers in the Regular Corps to grades above that of senior assistant, but not above that of director, as otherwise authorized in accordance with section 711 of the act of July 1, 1944, as amended (42 U. S. C. 211a), and the Coast and Geodetic Survey may appoint for such purposes not to exceed 20 commissioned officers in addition to those otherwise authorized; [$10,000,000] $26,900,000; and, in addition, there may be transferred to this appropriation for the purposes hereof not to exceed $2,600,000 from the appropriation to the Department of State for international information and educational activities, fiscal year 1951: Provided, That this appropriation shall be available for contracts or agreements entered into during the fiscal year 1951, pursuant to section 405 (e) of the Act for International Development which entail commitments for the expenditure of funds for not to exceed 3 years: Provided, however, That no part of this appropriation may be expended for the duplication of any program being carried on by any other agency of the United States Government or any international agency to which the United States is a major contributor, nor for the construction of any project except for demonstration or instructional purposes, nor for any purpose except administrative expenses (not to exceed 10 percent), and preliminary surveys and technical cooperation programs upon which reports shall be made to the Congress of the United States quarterly: Provided further, That the making of any survey or the advancement of any technical cooperation program or the prepartion of plans for projects does not constitute any obligation whatsoever on the part of the Government of the United States to make any loan or grant for the execution or construction of any project or for the completion of any program devised under title IV of Public Law 535, approved June 5, 1950: Provided further, That it shall be the duty of the Secretary of State to give written notice to each recipient of funds or beneficiary under said title that such assistance shall not be construed as an obligation on the part of the United States to make funds available for the construction or execution of any project and to report such action to Congress.

GENERAL APPROPRIATIONS—AMENDMENTS

Mr. KEM submitted amendments intended to be proposed by him to the bill (H. R. 7786) making appropriations for the support of the Government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1951, and for other purposes, which were ordered to lie on the table and to be printed.

Mr. BRIDGES submitted an amendment intended to be proposed by him to House bill 7786, supra, which was ordered to lie on the table and to be printed.

NOTICE OF MOTION TO SUSPEND THE RULE—AMENDMENT TO GENERAL APPROPRIATIONS BILL

Mr. THOMAS of Oklahoma submitted the following notice in writing:

In accordance with rule XL of the Standing Rules of the Senate, I hereby give notice in writing that it is my intention to move to suspend paragraph 4 of rule XVI for the purpose of proposing to the bill (H. R. 7786) making appropriations for the support of the Government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1951, and for other purposes, the following amendment, namely: On page 200, line 14, before the period, insert the following: ": Provided further, That of the funds available herein, not in excess of $7,880,000 may be expended in watersheds heretofore authorized by section 13 of the Flood Control Act of December 22, 1944, for necessary gulley control, flood water detention, and floodway structures in areas other than those over which the Department of the Army has jurisdiction and responsibility."

Mr. THOMAS of Oklahoma also submitted an amendment intended to be proposed by him to House bill 7786, making appropriations for the support of the Government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1951, and for other purposes, which was ordered to lie on the table and to be printed.

(For text of amendment referred to, see the foregoing notice.)

GENERAL APPROPRIATIONS FOR 1951—MOTION TO RECONSIDER

Mr. DOUGLAS. Mr. President, does this period include presentation of motions for reconsideration?

The VICE PRESIDENT. Motions may be entered, but not considered.

Mr. DOUGLAS. Mr. President, I move that at the appropriate time the Senate reconsider the vote by which the amendment on page 42, line 18, was agreed to.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The motion will be entered.

Mr. WHERRY subsequently said: Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that I may address a question to the distinguished junior Senator from Illinois.

The VICE PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none, and the Senator may proceed.

Mr. WHERRY. A few minutes ago the Senator entered a motion to reconsider a vote. I could not hear what the motion involved, to what line or page of the bill it related.

Mr. DOUGLAS. Mr. President, my motion had reference to the vote on the amendment on page 42, line 18, of the appropriation bill, providing for salaries and expenses for the Department of State. As the House passed the bill, it carried an appropriation of $77,300,000. The Senate committee recommended an increase of a million dollars, to make the amount $78,300,000. The amendment was agreed to, but I was not on the floor at the time. I am now asking that the vote by which the amendment was agreed to be reconsidered at the appropriate time.

Mr. WHERRY. The amendment was on page 42, line 18?

Mr. DOUGLAS. Yes.

Mr. WHERRY. I thank the Senator.

DEATH OF SENATOR KNOWLAND'S MOTHER

Mr. CHAVEZ. Mr. President, what I am going to do is under instructions given me this morning by the Committee on Appropriations.

Through the processes of American opportunity, I happen to be the chairman of the Subcommittee on Appropriations for the Department of Labor and Federal Security. Through those same processes, the Senator from California [Mr. KNOWLAND] is the ranking minority member. Word reached the committee during the day of the demise of our colleague's mother at her home in California. We who know the able junior Senator from California feel confident that, being the son of a worthy mother, he can and will, in his sorrow, say, "Thy will be done."

THE KOREAN SITUATION

Mr. MCCARTHY. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to have printed in the RECORD a letter, dated July 10, 1950, addressed to me, by Paul Mitchell, a member of the American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars, and Fleet Reserve Association, together with an editorial by Walter Winchell of July 9, 1950, on the same subject.

There being no objection, the matters were ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

SACRAMENTO, CALIF., July 10, 1950.

The Honorable JOE MCCARTHY,
Senate Office Building,
Washington, D. C.

MY DEAR SENATOR MCCARTHY: As a veteran of two wars, member of the American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars, and Fleet Reserve Association I respectfully request that you enter the enclosed editorial in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD for the information of those sophisticated idiots who cannot see beyond their noses.

From what I have heard inside closed meetings of all veterans organizations, I believe 90 percent of all the veterans in the United States are behind you in your superhuman efforts to expose the enemies within our lines.

If Mr. Acheson and the entire staff of the Eastern Affairs Section of the State Department had any self-respect they would have resigned in a body within 24 hours after the invasion of Korea.

But as long as they are selfish individuals they should be ousted by the Senate immediately for the good of our national unity.

I believe many million veterans are wondering how many more wars we will have to fight in order to make this world safe for democracy as long as we have such potentional quislings in the State Department.

You may enter this letter also in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD if you wish.

As a father of three boys I would like to see all of them give the best years of their lives to the service of their country without waiting for Congress to draft them to do their duty. But I most certainly will demand that Congress, regardless of party lines, destroy now and for all time potential traitors in every Government department.

Respectfully yours,

PAUL MITCHELL.

Mr. WINCHELL. Mr. and Mrs. United States, under our American system the strongest form of loyalty is fair criticism based on brutal truth. No administration ever needed it more desperately and none has accepted it less graciously. But it continues to be the birthright of every American citizen to pay homage to his country without swearing allegiance to the Kansas City politicians. The very day that the first casualty list was published last week, Washington stated that the Korean situation was not serious. The very next day, however, reversing itself, the administration prepared to call up all men 19 to 26. The Air Force announced this week that it would hire private commercial airliners to rush support to our men in Korea. During the war we built 250,000 planes and we have spent billions for them every year since. If we could run an airlift for Berlin, why can't we run one for our own men in bloody Korea? Far more important, however, than where the money has gone, is this question: Why aren't the planes we need ready? The truth is, that the 70-group Air Force twice authorized by Congress was pigeonholed by Mr. White House himself. The President's own commission reported to him that 70 groups was the minimum necessary to defend our own cities from enemy attack. Gen. Toohey Spaatz resigned because he would not take the responsibility without them. But it was the late Secretary of Defense, James Forrestal, who stopped the 70-group Air Force by warning that it would mean rationing and price ceilings. Now, you are about to get rationing and price ceilings without a 70-group Air Force. The very same Navy which was all but officially declared obsolete last fall is right now saving the State Department's Far East Munich from turning into a sickening American Dunkirk. And the irony of it, the State Department's 91 pansies are exempt from active duty and do not have to face the enemy panzers, but their dirty diplomatic linen is being washed, in American blood.

GENERAL APPROPRIATIONS, 1951

The Senate resumed the consideration of the bill (H. R. 7786) making appropriations for the support of the Government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1951, and for other purposes.

Mr. LUCAS. Mr. President, a parliamentary inquiry.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The Senator will state it.

Mr. LUCAS. I inquire of the Chair as to the point we have reached in the pending appropriation bill, H. R. 7786.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The Senate had completed the chapter on Treasury and Post Office appropriations when it recessed on Friday. The next chapter in regular order would be that on Labor, Federal Security, and so forth.

Mr. LUCAS. It is my understanding that the Senator from New Mexico [Mr. CHAVEZ], who is in charge of that portion of the appropriation bill, desires to have it passed over for the present.

Mr. CHAVEZ. Mr. President, the junior Senator from California [Mr. KNOWLAND] is unavoidably absent from the Senate. His mother passed away a day or so ago, and she is to be buried tomorrow. As the ranking member of the subcommittee which considered the Labor, Federal Security appropriations, he has requested that that portion of the bill be passed over until later. I understand that the Senator from Georgia [Mr. RUSSELL], who is in charge of the next feature of the bill, that relating to Agriculture, is ready to go forward.

Mr. WHERRY. I thank the distinguished Senator from New Mexico, the chairman of the subcommittee, for making the request. It is deeply appreciated. I am quite satisfied that while the remainder of the bill will be taken up a little out of order, beginning with the agricultural appropriations, complying with the Senator's request will not hold up the bill at all. In behalf of the junior Senator from California, who is the ranking member of the subcommittee, as the Senator from New Mexico has stated, we deeply appreciate his holding up the Labor-Federal Security chapter of the appropriation bill until the Senator from California is able to return.

Mr. FLANDERS. Mr. President, an amendment to the pending appropriation bill has been offered which calls for a 10-percent cut in peacetime expenditures of the budget. I wish to add my name as a cosponsor of that amendment, with the reservation that I shall submit or support an amendment eliminating the ECA from that 10-percent cut.

The VICE PRESIDENT. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. WHERRY. Mr. President, the distinguished junior Senator from New Hampshire [Mr. TOBEY] has asked that his name be added as a cosponsor to the amendment submitted by the senior Senator from New Hampshire [Mr. BRIDGES] for himself and 34 other Senators, that being an amendment to the appropriations bill, calling for a 10-percent rescission.

The VICE PRESIDENT. Without objection, the addition will be made.

MOBILIZATION OF AMERICAN MANPOWER AND INDUSTRY TO MEET WORLD CRISIS

Mr. LODGE. Mr. President, it is now crystal clear that the Soviets have developed a foolproof procedure whereby, unless we intervene effectively, they cannot lose and we cannot win. The procedure is simply that, with no cost in manpower to themselves, they impel a mercenary native army to aggression and thus confront the United States with two alternatives, one of which is ruinous and the other of which, though necessary, is bad.

The ruinous alternative of ignoring the agression—of turning our back on an international rape—we properly rejected. The other alternative was to send our armed forces to stop the aggression and liberate the invaded country. This we are rightly now trying to do. At best, however, this is a bad, though unavoidable, alternative because it commits thousands of our young men for at least many months until local victory is secured, after which forces must remain to prevent repetition of aggression. At worst, it could mean thousands of casualties without victory. In any case the cost to the Soviets has been nil.

If the procedure which has been used by the Soviets in Korea is repeated in Indochina or Iran or other places on the rim of the Soviet Empire, we would have even larger numbers of young men bogged down in equally unprofitable adventures. The Soviets would then be in a perfect position to make their main effort at the No. 1 objective, which is probably the Ruhr, or at their No. 2 objective, which is probably Japan. And we would be unable even to send significant reinforcements because of being bogged down in these peripheral theaters.

With the Ruhr and Japan in their grasp the Soviets would have an industrial potential under their control which might well convince them that they could go to war with the United States with a good chance of success. It is generally accepted that the Soviets will have enough atomic bombs to strike a rugged blow at the United States in 1952–53. The Korean aggression, therefore, followed by a similar procedure in other places, and leading up to the seizure of the Ruhr and Japan later on, would conclude with the atomic climax of 1952–53. It all fits neatly into the time schedule and coincides with what we are told about the Soviet plane-gun-tank-building program.

The United States would then be just about isolated enough and weakened enough to be ripe for the plucking. The Soviets would thus, if we let them, have won world war III without even fighting one major engagement with the United States with their own troops—and without our having had a chance to use our superiority in atom bombs and other weapons. No wonder that former Prime Minister Churchill says: "I do not see how the passage of 2 or 3 years during which the Soviets will be building up a large stock of atomic bombs is going to make our problems simpler or our dangers less." Indeed not, Mr. President; neither do I. Nor have I heard a convincing explanation from any source that this would be the case.

We therefore face this question. Must we sit idly by and stupidly watch such a grim tragedy unfold before our frightened eyes? Or can we prevent the tragedy; and, if so, how?

We do not need to sit idly by. We can prevent the tragedy; and here is how:

We must recognize that we are this moment in a major war, and that Korea is one part of a world war picture. This is true, although no one has declared war and perhaps no one will. We must thus quickly create a situation of military strength. This means nothing less than the immediate mobilization of American manpower and industry.

But we must not do this job alone. We must galvanize our allies and make sure that they work with us in building military strength. Every time we add to the military strength of one of our allies, whether through equipment or through American troops, we should have assurances that they add the utmost of which they are capable. This is the objective of the Atlantic Pact, but the pace of preparedness under the Atlantic Pact is woefully leisurely and it must be and can be enormously speeded. It has well been said within the last 10 days by certain statesmen that today Europe is in mortal peril. We probably do not need to have 12,000,000 men under arms in order to have men in even larger numbers in the armed forces of ourselves and our allies.

Thus could we regain the initiative and demand that the international brigandage, imposture, and subversion by the Soviet imperialists stop at once. We need make no demands on the Russian people, but we would put the ruthless men in the Kremlin in their place and would tell them in unmistakable language that they will not be allowed to play their merciless chess game to the final, tragic checkmate. Then the world could go on to lasting peace.

I know that this course would require an immense expenditure of treasure and human toil and immediate inconvenience, particularly to all our men of military age. But it should be possible, with God's help, to do it without great bloodshed, because the Soviet leaders have often shown their respect for strength.

One thing is clear: the present procedure of "heads you win; tails I lose" must stop, and stop at once. If we are getting pushed around to such an extent in Korea, what will it be, with our present procedures, when we come up against the Communists' first team? Certainly we would be faithless to those who have already sacrificed themselves in Korea and we would be negligent of our own interests if we regarded Korea as an isolated, purely local, action. It is better to be ready—hugely expensive though it is—and not to need it, rather than to need it and not be ready. In sober truth our very national existence is at stake. We have not a minute to lose. We must not stumble around at the threshold of disaster.

The Senate resumed the consideration of the bill (H. R. 7786) making appropriations for the support of the Government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1951, and for other purposes.

Mr. KEM. Mr. President, I wish to associate myself with what the distinguished Senator from Massachusetts [Mr. LODGE] has just said about the necessity of our galvanizing our allies into action. What I am going to say is with that idea in mind.

I am proposing a substantial reduction in the amount provided for ECA in the pending bill. I believe that amount, from our standpoint, is entirely unrealistic. If the Senate will bear with me, I shall explain why I believe that is so.

Mr. President, I am offering an amendment to the foreign aid section of the pending measure, and I ask that the amendment be read at this time, for the information of the Senate.

The VICE PRESIDENT. Without objection, the amendment will be read.

The LEGISLATIVE CLERK. On page 447, line 18, in lieu of "$2,391,930,000" it is proposed to insert "$1,950,000,000."

Beginning with the word "Provided", in line 2, page 448, it is proposed to strike out all to and including the words "limitations herein specified:", in line 7, page 448.

On page 448, lines 8 and 9, it is proposed to strike out the word "consolidated."

The VICE PRESIDENT. The amendment will be printed and lie on the table.

Mr. KEM. Mr. President, as Senators will observe, this amendment, if adopted, will reduce the amount to be appropriated to the Economic Cooperation Administration for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1951, to $1,950,000,000. The amendment in addition will also eliminate from the appropriation bill the sum of $276,761,473 carried over from last year's appropriation. The total saving that would be effected by this amendment to the bill is $718,691,473. A saving of approximately $1,000,000,000 in the original budget estimate would be accomplished.

This amendment would in no way affect the appropriations for assistance to the Republic of Korea, the military-aid program, or several other programs included in the foreign-aid section of the pending measure. My amendment applies solely to the economic recovery program for western Europe.

The unexpended balance for the fiscal year 1950, amounting to more than $276,000,000, was not needed in that 12-month period. There now appears to be no justification for reappropriating it. Administrator Hoffman is to be congratulated on not spending all the money that was made available to him. The amount should be saved to the United States. It should not be made available for the following year just because it was nct spent in the year for which it was appropriated.

Mr. President, I wish to say that I have confidence, as do all other Members of this body, in the Senate Appropriations Committee. I know that each member of the committee has given careful and painstaking consideration to every section of this important bill. I know that my distinguished friend, the Senator from Tennessee [Mr. McKELLAR] the chairman of the committee, will not think it amiss for me to suggest that the amount allocated to foreign aid should be reexamined in the light of the facts that have developed since the bill was reported.

What is this change of status? The difference between the way the job ahead of us looks now, and the way it looked a few days ago, is well summarized in the following editorial review which appeared in the New York Times of yesterday, July 16:

THE UNITED STATES FACES IT

On June 27—the day President Truman ordered American sea and air forces to go to the aid of South Korea—this was the estimate of the job:

North Korea: Six to nine divisions—probably 95,000 men. Seventy to 100 tanks. Morale probably low. United States: Sea and air forces probably sufficient.

On July 16, after 19 days of bitter fighting in Korea, this is the estimate of the job:

North Korea: Ten to 15 divisions—150,000 to 250,000 men. Two hundred and twenty tanks, almost unlimited supplies behind lines, in Siberia and in Manchuria. Morale and leadership excellent. United States: Eight full divisions, perhaps 250,000 men in all, needed. Manpower, tanks, heavy artillery, planes in Pacific woefully inadequate. Vast supplies needed from home bases 7,000 miles away.

The difference between these two estimates is a measure of the problem that now confronts the United States. At the outset of the fighting the United States had envisaged a fast, mechanized campaign in which planes would play a major role. Then began the battle of the build-up on both sides—the battle to bring up the supplies, the weapons, and the men. It was the big battle—although fought far behind the lines—and the United States lost. Now the United States is faced with the grim possibility that it may be pushed into the sea and forced to mount a counterattack from Japan.

And what about possible Communist aggression elsewhere in the world? The 9 days that has gone by since this bill was reported on July 8 have brought us nothing but disillusionment.

It is time now for some new thinking, some clear thinking in the light of the unpleasant truths that we have had to swallow.

Last week the Senate gave clear indication in a relatively minor incident that it fully recognizes the gravity of the international situation. The Senate rejected the appropriation to build a much needed addition to the Senate Office Building. And yet, in the ECA appropriations of this omnibus appropriation bill, huge sums are provided for the construction of a wide variety of public works and other projects in foreign lands. These programs look to the future development of their respective countries. They have little or no bearing upon the present emergency. The proposed ECA appropriations are said to be for the purpose of overcoming so-called "dollar gap." Many of us are concerned today about the danger of a gap between our obligations and our ability to respond to them. In the field of national security we cannot entertain the slightest possibility of a deficit in performance.

NATIONAL DEFENSE IS OUR FIRST CONSIDERATION

It is becoming increasingly clear that the Korean war is likely to be long and costly, even if the Russians decide not to intervene directly. It is also apparent that the United States will have to bear the brunt of the fighting.

We must back up our boys on the fighting front to the limit. Upon this we are all agreed. This is the first consideration in the minds of all of us.

I should like to say, Mr. President, that since I have been a member of this body I have supported without exception appropriations for our military establishment. I shall continue to do so as long as I am here. It has been my belief that we should build a national defense so strong that no nation in the world would be under the slightest temptation to attack us. I supported the supplemental national defense appropriation bill of 1948 providing funds for a 70-group Air Force. I was pleased when the present Congress approved the bill authorizing a 70-group Air Force.

Senators will recall that the program for the 70-group Air Force came before the Senate in 1948 following the passage of the Marshall Plan bill. The Congress had approved the Marshal Plan, and had then set about determining what we could afford to do for our military establishments. I asserted in course of the discussion in the Senate that we were putting the cart before the horse. I said that we should first adequately arm ourselves and then, after that, consider what amounts our economic resources would permit us to send out of the country as gifts to other countries, however praiseworthy. I think now as I thought then.

At a press conference only last June 22, 5 days before giving giving his historic order that our air and naval forces should go to the aid of Korea, President Truman said, at a press conference, that our country cannot pay for a 70-group Air Force. In view of the serious foreign situation, we need that 70-group Air Force. Our soldiers in Korea need it now. We can pay for it. We should provide for our own needs first, and then make gifts out of our remaining resources.

How shall be explain to the mothers and wives of our soldiers fighting in the rice paddies of Korea that we cannot pay for needed guns, tanks, and planes of the right type for air cover?

The South Koreans have had the benefit of economic cooperation—plenty of it. Between 1946 and 1948, inclusive, we invested $360,000,000 in relief and technical assistance in South Korea, approximately $18 for each man, woman, and child in South Korea.

OUR PRESENT FINANCIAL SITUATION

Today the Korean war finds us in a state of unpreparedness. We are unprepared from a military standpoint. We are unprepared from a financial standpoint. Our national debt is more than $257,000,000,000. During the fiscal year which ended June 30, 1950, the Federal Government went into the red more than $3,000,000,000. It is estimated that the deficit for the current fiscal year will amount to $5,000,000,000, excluding any additional expenditures in connection with the war in Korea.

What will be the impact of the Korean crisis on our economy? How large is our military effort to be? Are the additional military appropriations that will be required to pay for the Korean war and to strengthen our Armed Forces $1,000,000,000, or $5,000,000,000, or more?

No one knows the answers to these important question.

But we do know this: It is imperative that we eliminate all unnecessary expenditures, both foreign and domestic, not directly connected with our military effort. We cannot ignore the fact that there is a very definite limit to our financial resources. We know very well that we cannot bankrupt our Government and at the same time maintain our free institutions. Since American troops started fighting in Korea, the only communications regarding the war which the Senate has received from the President, so far as I know, are copies of his press releases. I am glad that if reports are true the President plans to address the Congress in person this week. Every member will listen to the words of the President with profound attention.

WE MUST USE OUR RESOURCES TO BEST ADVANTAGE

Equally important are the limitations on our material resources, such as iron and steel. We must provide the dollars required by an all-out war effort. We can do that. We can pledge the credit of the United States. But I seriously question whether we can continue to make extravagant gifts of raw materials to western Europe and still have enough to provide for our own requirements. If and when we run out of essential raw materials can we depend on our European friends to reverse the flow of gifts across the Atlantic?

The Korean war—whether or not Russia intervenes—is bound to make a serious drain on our resources, particularly industrial products, manufactures, and raw materials vitally needed for the war effort.

ECA has proposed to give away during the next year to Marshall-plan countries more than $200,000,000 worth of industrial materials produced in the United States, including iron, steel, aluminum, copper, zinc, and industrial chemicals. ECA also would give away $448,700,000 worth of industrial machinery and equipment, $7,500,000 worth of rubber and rubber products, and more than $77,000,000 worth of petroleum and petroleum products.

All available reports indicate that our soldiers in Korea need desperately more tanks, more planes, and more heavy artillery. They need weapons to be made from iron, steel, aluminum, copper, and zinc.

Mr. President, I am bold enough to say that it is not in the interest of the United States, it is not in the interest of our boys on the fighting front, for us at this point to give away vast quantities of critical war materials which may be needed by us to prosecute war, and which may soon be in short supply. I mean the war in which we are now engaged and any other war which may be forced upon us. Increased military production, as well as the mobilization of military manpower, will draw men from civilian production. Civilian producers will then start bidding against each other for goods and labor. Whether or not controls become necessary depends upon many imponderables. One of these is what we do with our available supply of goods. Certainly the shipment of vast quantities of our goods as gifts to foreign countries will bring shortages, controls, and rationing that much nearer to our people. I am sure Members of the Senate will understand this when they vote on the pending measure.

We must not make the mistake of spreading our resources so thin around the world that they will not do anyone any good. We must husband what we have and put it to the best possible use.

Steel is a good example of what I mean. Our steel works were operating at full capacity even before the Korean war broke out. No material is more vital to the war effort than is steel for guns, planes, tanks, and ammunition.

On April 17, 1950, Secretary of the Interior Chapman told a House committee that iron-ore resources in the United States were being depleted at a rate that raised the possibility of restricted steel production within the foreseeable future. He predicted that Great Lakes ore production would fall 50 percent below present levels in 15 years.

Dr. James Boyd, Director of the Bureau of Mines, told the committee that the steel industry would be 3,400,000 tons short of our iron-ore requirements by 1959, even if all present foreign sources still were available.

Of course, Mr. President, it is unnecessary to say that in April 1950 Secretary Chapman and Director Boyd were not speaking with the Korean war in mind. They were talking about what would happen to this country, independent of any war effort.

It is impossible to say at this time just how much additional steel will be required for the Korean war. No doubt the demand will be great. The gifts of steel ECA contemplates making to western Europe might well cripple our economy and endanger our war effort.

It is becoming increasingly clear that our overgenerous gifts to western Europe during the past 2 years could have been put to much better advantage if they had been utilized in building up our own national defenses—turning out, let us say, heavy tanks now so sorely needed by our boys in Korea.

I need not remind the Senate that our first responsibility is to provide whatever is needed to enable our fighting men to drive the North Korean Reds back of the thirty-eighth parallel. What is it to be? Tanks for young Americans battling for their lives, or steel for the Marshall-plan countries, which have shipped, and are continuing to ship, large quantities of steel to the Russians? I shall have more to say about that in a little while.

ECONOMIC CONDITIONS IN MARSHALL PLAN COUNTRIES

I have found it hard to justify the proposed expenditure of $104,100,000 for gifts of tobacco to western Europe next year. According to ECA officials, Greece and Turkey, both of which participate in the Marshall plan, now have surplus stocks of tobacco.

ECA officials report that the level of productivity of the Marshall-plan countries generally is more than 20 percent above the prewar level of 1938.

On May 25, 1950, during the hearings before the Senate Committee on Appropriations, the Senator from Michigan [Mr. FERGUSON] questioned Richard M. Bissell, Jr., ECA Assistant Administrator, concerning this matter. Here is the colloquy which occurred:

Senator FERGUSON. Have they—

Referring to the Marshall-plan countries—

any surplus out of this 20-percent increase?

That is the increase in production.

Mr. BISSELL. There are certainly a few spot surpluses, sir, of manufactured goods and a few even of agricultural goods. I would guess that a number of luxury products in Europe are in surplus and that they cannot market their whole amount.

Mr. President, even ignoring for a moment the situation in Korea, is it wise, is it sound, for us to continue to draw off our resources to increase further the rate of production in western Europe, when those countries are beginning to be plagued with surpluses? Does it make sense for us to continue to give away fertilizer to the Netherlands, for example, when ECA has advised us that the Netherlands is concerned about disposing of its current output of fresh vegetables.

On July 13, the Senator from Ohio [Mr. TAFT] put in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD a statement from the British Economic Record showing the improvement in the British gold and dollar position during the last year. I hope Senators will study this document. The dollar position has steadily improved since devaluation of the pound in September 1949, and has made American goods expensive in sterling areas. In the 9 months since September there has been a surplus of $189,000,000, compared with a deficit of $1,501,000,000 in the 9 months before. The British have balanced their budget, while our national debt continues to mount. Britain to date has received $2,500,000,000 in aid under the Marshall plan. In the name of common sense our British gifts should be discontinued. This would save about $500,000,000 in this bill. The British figures show why less is being heard these days from the advocates of foreign spending about the dollar gap. As a matter of fact, even before the Korean crisis, substantial progress was made by several important countries in improving their dollar position.

Imports into the United States—that is what we are buying from these countries—will set a new high record this year. The total is likely to exceed $7,500,000,000 if the trend for the first 5 months continues. The gain over the corresponding period in 1949 has been about 10 percent.

The Korean crisis is increasing the import volume from the standpoint of both quantity and higher prices. Foreign countries benefit from this higher price trend on raw materials and other goods we buy from them.

In view of these considerations a new ECA appropriation of $1,950,000,000 should be, entirely sufficient to continue the Marshall plan another year.

THE MARSHALL PLAN NO INSURANCE AGAINST WAR

Senators will recall that the Marshall plan was first presented to the Congress as insurance against war. Either adopt the Marshall plan, we were told, in effect, or prepare for war.

On December 19, 1947, President Truman in a special message to the Congress, said:

I recommend this program of United States support for European recovery to the Congress in full confidence of its wisdom and necessity as a major step in our Nation's quest for a just and lasting peace.

The then Secretary of State Marshall, testifying before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee on January 8, 1948, declared:

This program will cost our country billions of dollars. It will impose a burden on the American taxpayer. It will require sacrifices today in order that we may enjoy security and peace tomorrow.

On January 14, 1948, the then Secretary of the Army Royall said:

Without such effort the Army budget and the Army itself should be increased.

On the same day, the then Secretary of Defense Forrestal, testifying on the Marshall plan, declared:

Our purpose and object is totally and exclusively to prevent another war.

Mr. President, the object was totally and exclusively to prevent another war.

And on March 12, 1948, the Senator from Texas [Mr. CONNALLY], speaking on the initial Marshall plan authorization bill, said: "We are voting upon the peace of the world."

The Marshall plan was approved and carried out, substantially as recommended by the administration. I ask in all seriousness: Are the prospects for peace any brighter than they were 2 years ago, when the program went into effect? We now find ourselves engaged in a full-fledged war in Korea, although officially characterized, I believe, as a police action. Who among us will say that the chances for peace in western Europe are more favorable today than they were in 1948, when we started to pour out these vast sums of money belonging to the American taxpayers?

NO MORAL COMMITMENT TO CONTINUE THE MARSHALL PLAN

Mr. President, we often hear it said that we have a moral obligation to continue these appropriations. The fact is that the Congress is under no obligation, moral or otherwise, to appropriate any particular sum to continue the Marshall plan. Indeed, we are under no obligation to continue the program at all. This was clearly understood at its inception.

On March 2, 1948, during the Senate debate on the initial Marshall plan authorization bill, the then chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, the distinguished Senator from Michigan [Mr. VANDENBERG] had this to say:

> Under the terms of the bill, every Congress—even broader, every session of every Congress—is a free agent to pass its own judgment on the question of whether or not foreign cooperation is justifying the basis upon which the enterprise was launched.

Let me repeat those words. The distinguished Senator from Michigan said that every Congress is a free agent to pass on the question of whether foreign cooperation is justifying the basis upon which the enterprise was launched.

Then the Senator from Michigan declared:

> Next January the Congress will be as free as the air to do what it pleases in respect to what has happened during the intervening months, and in respect to what may happen in the days that lie beyond that point.

Several days after the statement of the Senator from Michigan, I questioned the Senator from Texas [Mr. CONNALLY], who was then the ranking minority member of the Committee on Foreign Relations, concerning this matter. I thought it would be well that we understood from the official spokesman for each party what their understanding was of this important point. Here is the colloquy which occurred on March 13, 1948:

> Mr. KEM. I should like to ask the Senator from Texas whether, in his opinion, there is any moral commitment extending beyond a 1-year period.
> Mr. CONNALLY. Not so far as I am concerned. * * * We are here as Members of Congress, with a perfect right to discontinue the appropriation whenever we wish to do so.

Yes, Mr. President; we have a perfect right to discontinue the appropriation whenever we wish to do so.

These are gifts. They are the most princely gifts in all history. No refinement of reason can turn them into an obligation, moral or otherwise.

Mr. WHERRY. Mr. President——

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. MCCLELLAN in the chair). Does the Senator from Missouri yield to the Senator from Nebraska?

Mr. KEM. I am glad to yield.

Mr. WHERRY. The junior Senator from Nebraska has been listening with great interest to the very forceful address being made by the junior Senator from Missouri. I remember very distinctly the colloquy that was engaged in by the junior Senator from Missouri and the two members of the Foreign Relations Committee to whom the Senator has referred. I agree completely that one Congress cannot bind a succeeding Congress; we all understand that. But so far as a moral commitment is concerned, if there are those who contend that there is involved a moral commitment to continue appropriations for ECA, is it not a fact that this Congress will have to use its judgment and carefully consider not merely the appropriations, because the appropriations mean materials.

I ask the Senator to emphasize the point he so forcefully made. Does it not behoove the Congress to exercise its best judgment relative to continuing ECA, in the light of the experiences through which we are now passing, with the idea in mind that it is no longer a question of dollar gaps? The question confronting the Congress at this time is a decision as to whether or not the money should be granted, not as dollars, but for the materials it represents, since furnishing the materials might deprive the United States and the national defense of the very things we must have, regardless of how we may feel about aiding countries throughout the world. Is not that the vital question that is running through the Senator's mind as he addresses the Senate this afternoon, and as we consider further appropriations for ECA?

Mr. KEM. The distinguished minority leader has placed the matter clearly before the Senate in language which no one can misunderstand. Those who proposed the ECA plan, with commendable wisdom and foresight, provided that it should not be a commitment for any particular period of time. Instead, they left the Congress as free as the air, as the Senator from Michigan said, to decide, in view of developments and exigencies which might occur from time to time, what could and ought to be done with the money of the taxpayers of the United States.

Mr. President, the record is clear on that point for all to read. I believe that many of our people are a little impatient about the suggestion now advanced that there is a moral obligation which must be carried out. We should decide whenever this matter comes before the Senate as of then, whether it is to the best interest of the United States for gift shipments to be made out of the country of essential war materials. We will be called on to answer to the people of the United States, if we are not reasonably prudent about these shipments. We ought to be called on to answer if we act without prudence, without foresight, without careful thought as to the effect of what we are doing.

Mr. WHERRY. Mr. President, will the Senator yield further?

Mr. KEM. I yield to the Senator from Nebraska.

Mr. WHERRY. There is another question I should like to raise, which is indirectly brought to the attention of the Senate by the Senator's remarks, but which was forcefully brought to our attention by an amendment which the junior Senator from Missouri offered during the debate on the authorization of ECA, namely, that the shipments of strategic materials referred to find their way into the hands of the aggressor through satellite countries. In view of what we read in the press—and in these days that is, apparently, the source we have to rely upon for information—what does the Senator feel about restricting or limiting the amount of money which goes to an ECA beneficiary country, that is, the beneficiary country itself, if it continues to ship strategic materials, such as oil, so that they find their way into the hands of the Communists, and finally into the hands of the Red Koreans, and are used in the battle against American boys who are trying to stop the expansion of communism in South Korea?

Mr. KEM. Mr. President, it is unthinkable that the Congress should permit the resources of the United States to be used for the purpose of making war against it, for the purpose of shooting down and killing the young men of America who are engaged in the fight for freedom.

Mr. WHERRY. Does not the Senator feel that the amendment he offered during the consideration of the authorization bill for ECA is more important now than ever, that no country which is a recepient of ECA aid should receive assistance any longer if that country continues the practice to which I have referred?

Mr. KEM. I agree entirely. When that matter was before the Senate on the previous occasion, the figures I presented were for the year 1948. I think the question may well be raised today: That was in 1948; what is going on now?" I have investigated that matter and I am now prepared to shed some light on the situation.

SHIPMENT OF WAR MATERIALS BY MARSHALL PLAN COUNTRIES BEHIND THE IRON CURTAIN

Officials of the Department of Commerce have advised me that the British have shipped, and so far as is known, are still shipping quantities of petroleum and petroleum products, including motor gasoline, to Red China.

Recently, upon the request of our State Department, American oil companies agreed to shut off supplies of petroleum products to the China Reds, and they have done so.

Under the Marshall plan, more than $245,000,000 worth of petroleum and petroleum products have been sent to Great Britain, which is shipping these products now to Red China. Of these gifts, $95,000,000 worth was made up of shipments from the United States.

Next year ECA wants to give away $90,000,000 worth of petroleum and petroleum products to Great Britain, part of which would no doubt come from the United States.

So we are faced with this question: Which shall it be? Fuel to Great Britain, which in turn is sending it to Communist China for possible use in the tanks now crushing our troops in Korea? Or fuel for our own tanks, trucks, and planes on the fighting front?

Mr. WHERRY. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. KEM. I yield to the Senator from Nebraska.

Mr. WHERRY. If I recall the colloquy in which the junior Senator from Nebraska and the junior Senator from Missouri were engaged during the debate upon the authorization of ECA, when the question of the shipments of petroleum arose, it was about the time, as I recall, when there was a deficit of oil in this country, and if I remember the figures correctly, nearly 600,000 barrels of petroleum products were being shipped into the United States daily at that time. The amount varies, I understand, and at times the slack is taken up, but in the light of the statement just made by the junior Senator from Missouri, and the conditions we now face from a military point of view, does he not feel that every ounce of gasoline which could be used in our national defense, and in the front line, wherever it may be, should be conserved, and that we should look with care on appropriations which take away from us and our national defense the very products the distinguished Senator has been discussing?

Mr. KEM. I definitely feel so; and I do not confine it to petroleum and petroleum products. I extend it to all materials of war, and I am now going to present some figures about other war materials which are being funneled through Marshall plan countries to the other countries behind the iron curtain.

Earlier during this session, when the foreign aid authorization bill was being considered, I presented to the Senate evidence that certain Marshall plan countries, namely Great Britain, France, and Belgium-Luxemburg, were making large shipments of war material to Russia and her satellites. This information was official information—made available to me by the Office of International Trade, Department of Commerce. Last year, for example, Great Britain sent more than $12,000,000 worth of iron, steel, and manufactures to Russia and her satellites, and more than $240,000 worth of ball and roller bearings.

I know the Senator from Vermont [Mr. FLANDERS], as a great machine-tool manufacturer himself, will appreciate the importance of those shipments.

I ask unanimous consent to have inserted in the RECORD at this point tables containing a partial list of exports from Belgium-Luxemburg, the United Kingdom, and France, to Russia and the satellite countries during 1949.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. HILL in the chair). Without objection, it is so ordered.

The tables are as follows:

Mr. KEM. Mr. President, many of the same materials which are being sold to Russia and her satellites by Marshall plan countries are being given to these same countries by the United States under the Marshall plan.

For example more than $26,000,000 worth of iron and steel mill materials and products have been sent by the United States to France under the Marshall plan. And last year, France shipped more than $7,000,000 worth of steel-mill products, including hot rolled sheets and plates, to Russia and her satellite nations.

It may be said that that was last year; that that is water over the dam. What about this year?

A few days ago, I contacted officials of the Department of Commerce as to what progress had been made toward correcting the situation. The report I received was not encouraging. While I was advised that some progress had been made, Commerce Department officials made it clear that Marshall plan nations in Europe are still making substantial shipments of war materials to Russia and her satellites—materials which we are refusing to ship to those countries.

On Friday, July 14, two members of my staff inspected the latest statistics in the Department of Commerce on exports from Marshall plan nations to countries behind the iron curtain. They took some notes. Here are only a few of the things they found.

During the first 4 months of this year, the United Kingdom exported more than $6,800,000 worth of electrical machinery to the Soviet Union. This represents nearly a 50 percent increase over British exports of electrical machinery to Russia during the first 4 months of 1949.

During the 4 months which ended April 30, 1950, the United Kingdom also sent to Russia more than $1,087,000 worth of machine tools. This is almost 10 times as many machine tools as were exported by the United Kingdom to Russia during the first 4 months of 1949. In other words, in the first 4 months of this year, the United Kingdom accelerated her sales of machine tools to Russia 10 times over.

Mr. FLANDERS. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. KEM. I yield to the Senator from Vermont, who, I am aware, knows more about machine tools than probably any other Member of this body.

Mr. FLANDERS. I should like to suggest that there is a difference perhaps between the principle of the thing and the amount involved. It is not satisfactory to us to see Great Britain increasing her machine-tool export to Russia. I might suggest, however, that the amount of that export would do little more than equip a two- or three-hundred-man plant. So that the amount is inconsiderable. I do agree with the Senator as to the principle.

Mr. KEM. Could the Senator advise us how long it would take a two- or three-hundred man plant to turn out a 60-ton tank for shipment to Korea?

Mr. FLANDERS. I do not have the figures as to the number of man-hours that go into the making of a tank. But I surmise that it would not make much difference to the Korean campaign.

Mr. KEM. Does the Senator mean that a few tanks would not make much difference in the Korean campaign?

Mr. FLANDERS. What I am saying is that the export of machine tools is in amount very small indeed. But I agree with the Senator as to the principle.

Mr. KEM. I defer to the knowledge of my distinguished friend from Vermont as to what constitutes a substantial amount of machine tools. As a mere layman, not being among the intelligentsia in that business, I should think that a shipment of a million dollars' worth of machine tools in 4 months was quite a considerable amount. Regardless of that, what does the Senator from Vermont say about Great Britain increasing her shipments 10 times over in the 4 months which followed January 1, 1950?

Mr. FLANDERS. I have already agreed with the Senator from Missouri that the principle is more than doubious—it is bad. But the amount involved was inconsiderable.

Mr. KEM. To me it is shocking, literally shocking, that such traffic should be going on when at the same time we are sending as gifts to Great Britain, great quantities of steel, some of which no doubt could be manufactured into the same kind of machine tools that are being sent to Russia.

Mr. FLANDERS. I should like to ask the Senator whether he has the figures of our shipments of steel to Great Britain.

Mr. KEM. The gifts?

Mr. FLANDERS. Yes.

Mr. WHERRY. Mr. President, while a search is being made for the figures of the amount of steel sent by us to Great Britain, I should like to make an inquiry of the distinguished Senator from Missouri—and I should be glad to have him relay the question to the Senator from Vermont, because I also am a layman when it comes to knowledge of this particular subject. I have received information from the Appropriations Committee respecting some of the evidence presented to it. Cannot machine tools be used to provide other machine tools? Cannot the original machine tools be used as the seed, so to speak, for the development of machine tools which could be produced in abundance? I do not know how this procedure can be carried through unless the Senator from Missouri asks unanimous consent that he may yield for that purpose.

Mr. FLANDERS. Mr. President, I should like to interrogate the Senator from Missouri.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Does the Senator from Missouri yield to the Senataor from Vermont for that purpose?

Mr. KEM. Before the Senator from Vermont puts his question, I should like to give him the figure of the shipments from the United States, as shown by the ECA report for the period from April 8, 1948, to April 30, 1950. The shipments in that period, that is the gifts of steel by the people of the United States to the Government of Britain, were $27,528,000 worth.

I shall now be glad to have the Senator from Vermont propound any question he has in mind.

Mr. FLANDERS. I should like to inquire of the Senator from Missouri whether he will permit me, through his intermediation, to furnish some information to the Senator from Nebraska.

Mr. KEM. I shall be glad to. The only thing any of us is interested in is the truth. I shall be glad to waive any rights I have under the Senate rules, in the interest of our joint search for truth.

Mr. FLANDERS. I should like to enunciate, sir, a profound truth, which is that the only inanimate thing which reproduces itself is a machine too. That is in response to a request from the Senator from Nebraska.

Mr. KEM. Can the Senator from Vermont estimate the rate of fecundity on the part of this million dollars' worth of machine tools sent from England to Russia in the first 4 months of the present year?

Mr. FLANDERS. Of course, no one knows what those machine tools are to be used for. They can be used to make other machine tools. They can be used to make tanks. They can be used for repair shops on railroads. They can be used on hundreds and thousands of projects.

Mr. KEM. Could they not be used as models for other machine tools?

Mr. FLANDERS. That has been done long since. The Russians have their models and have made their copies.

Mr. KEM. We can feel sure then that our British friends are keeping them up to date.

Mr. FLANDERS. If they are searching for models, they had better not go to Great Britain; they should come here to the United States.

Mr. KEM. The Marshall plan has taken care of that, for under the Marshall plan we are not only making regular shipments of machine tools to Great Britain, but we are also sending Great Britain technical assistance; are we not?

Mr. FLANDERS. Not so far as I know, in the lines with which I am best acquainted.

We are inviting them to come here and watch our methods of production and our methods of organization and management. We are doing that, and I think it is a good thing.

I simply wish to return to the point that I agree completely with the Senator from Missouri that the principle of such shipments is wrong. I was only rejoicing—insofar as one can rejoice over something that is wrong—that the operation has not yet attained vast proportions.

Mr. KEM. Mr. President, I should simply like to say to my distinguished friend, the Senator from Vermont, that I hope we shall be in equal agreement when the vote is taken on this amendment.

Mr. WHERRY. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. KEM. I yield.

Mr. WHERRY. The information I sought has been provided by means of the statements made by the Senator from Missouri, in response to the questions which have been asked by the Senator from Vermont—which is a rather roundabout means of obtaining information, I admit. What they have said is conclusive proof, it seems to me—and it is in accordance with the evidence adduced before the committee—that the shipment of machine tools provides the means not only whereby duplicates can be made, but, what is worse, whereby other machine tools can be made—tools which, in turn, might be capable of producing vast amounts of material which could be used not only on one front but on various fronts throughout the world, if need be.

I do not say that the machine tools the distinguished Senator has mentioned would be used for that purpose, but that is a possibility.

I am satisfied that if the country to which the tools went wanted to use them for that purpose, there would be nothing to stop that country from using them in that way.

Mr. KEM. Mr. President, we all seem to be in agreement about this matter so far as Great Britain is concerned.

Suppose we consider some of the other countries:

Belgium has continued to make shipments of war material to Russia. During the period January through April sizable shipments of iron, steel, and tin plate have gone from Belgium to the U. S. S. R.

Italy is sending iron, steel, and machinery to the U. S. S. R.

Sweden's trade with Russia during January 1950 was nine times greater than it was in January 1949.

All too fresh in our minds is the fact that during World War II our ships and planes were blasted with scrap iron furnished by us to the Japs. Tens of thousands of young Americans were killed or maimed for life. Mr. President, history repeats itself: Now we are again supplying—this time indirectly—materials of war to an unfriendly nation. That nation, it is well known, supplied the tanks and the guns now blasting our young men along the Kum River in Korea. It is entirely possible, even probable, that many of the shipments of iron and steel from Marshall plan countries to Russia went into building the very same guns and tanks now killing our own boys.

When the most recent Marshall plan authorization bill was before the Senate, I made this statement:

> It is essential to our national security that this country continue to ban shipments of war material to the Soviet Union. It is tragically absurd for us to pour into western Europe vast quantities of war materials under the Marshall plan and the arms aid program, only to have our friends export the same materials to Russia and other countries behind the iron curtain.

Mr. President, it is shocking that, in view of the situation in Korea, Marshall plan countries are still permitting substantial shipments of war material to the Reds. Surely our allies will not continue to furnish materials to the Reds to kill young Americans who are fighting for a free world.

THE RESPONSIBILITY OF THE SENATE

Mr. President, if the fighting is confined to Korea, the United States may be able to ride out the present crisis without serious economic strain and the adoption of controls that a major war would entail. But there is no assurance that the fighting will be confined to Korea. Every dispatch from Korea carries a lesson. The dispatches tell a tale of the need for adequate preparedness against acts of Communist aggression not only there but in other parts of the world. Earlier today we heard the distinguished junior Senator from Massachusetts [Mr. LODGE] demand entire, complete mobilization of industry in the United States. If I correctly understand his meaning, that would call for complete controls over our entire economy.

Mr. President, in the last few days we have learned that our aircraft have become obsolete more rapidly than they have been replaced. It is now disclosed that we lack aircraft of a proper type for supporting ground troops. We now make the unhappy and surprising discovery that we lag behind in scientific research and development in certain military fields; for example, in the manufacture of bullet-repelling steel. We know to a certainty that our tanks are inferior.

We may need, and need badly, many things before too long: More manpower, more money, more and better weapons, more basic materials.

As the Washington News said on last Thursday:

> Communism is winning its way by the sword. Why can't our policy makers get that through their heads?

Mr. FLANDERS. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. KEM. I am glad to yield to the Senator from Vermont.

Mr. FLANDERS. The quotation from the Washington News, just read by the Senator from Missouri, touches a point which I cannot let pass unchallenged. It is true that the armed forces of Russia have been a very potent tool in conquering the vast areas which Russia has conquered. Yet in her latest conquests and in those which she has almost made, she has not proceeded by means of the sword at all. To the contrary, her method in those cases has been to use propaganda.

Anyone who at any time says there is nothing but force involved in the Russian advance simply does not know what is going on, does not know what Russia is doing, and pays no attention to her methods and her policies. We should today encounter very much less danger, and have very much less fear of her armed power, had we been as wise, had we been as diligent, had we been as intelligent in the thought war as Russia has been. Let us not be blind to the means by which she has attained her power.

Mr. KEM. Mr. President, I thank the Senator from Vermont for his very interesting comment. He has made some thought-provoking speeches on the Senate floor with reference to the necessity of carrying on propaganda behind the iron curtain. As the Senator knows, I have studied those speeches carefully, I have been very much interested in them, and I have asked the Senator questions about his ideas in that connection.

I think, however, that the Senator from Vermont has misinterpreted the quotation I just made from the Washington News. I think the editor of that newspaper had in mind that, since June 27, 1950, communism was winning its way with the sword. I think the Senator from Vermont will agree the statement as so interpreted is eminently correct.

Mr. LANGER. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. KEM. I am glad to yield to the distinguished Senator from North Dakota.

Mr. LANGER. Is it not true that immediately following World War II Russia acquired 2,000 of the leading scientists of Germany; that, at the very time our country said we did not want them here, and when we were barring them from the United States, the Russians took them to Russia; and that, as a matter of fact, those scientists kept right on developing the weapons which Germany had been creating at the time the war ended?

Mr. KEM. I think that is undoubtedly so. It is as true as is the statement, if we may believe newspaper reports, that the bullet-repellent steel now used in the forepart of 60-ton Russian tanks is a discovery made by the same German scientists to whom the Senator from North Dakota alludes.

Mr. LANGER. Mr. President, will the Senator yield further?

Mr. KEM. I am glad to yield.

Mr. LANGER. The net result is, is it not, that because of the action of our Government in refusing to admit those 2,000 scientists and engineers, or any of them, from Germany, hundreds of our boys are dying today? As the distinguished Senator from Missouri has said, the Russians have developed a steel-resistant tank which is superior to our tanks.

Mr. KEM. I think that conclusion is inescapeable, I may say to the Senator. It made my blood run cold, within the past few days, to read reports from the Korean front, and to learn how our bullets fell off the Russian tanks like paper pellets, because they lacked sufficient size, speed, and power to penetrate the steel. Here we were, giving substance to 16 countries of western Europe, yet we were unable to give our boys, who were risking their lives in Korea, an even chance.

Mr. President, I do not suppose that since the Continental Army marched in the American Revolution has it occurred that the equipment of American troops was not at least equal to that which they were called upon to meet. I think that is a disgrace to this country. I think that that circumstance alone requires that this whole program be reviewed in the light of what we have learned within the past few days.

We have learned, Mr. President, that it is impossible to stop 60-ton tanks with cases of Coca-Cola or with cartons of cigarettes. This is no time for us to be boondoggling in western Europe. It is no time for our Government to be building a gambling casino in Le Harve or running a night club in Rome.

Senators may say that we should leave this to the sound judgment of the ECA. That would be an easy out; but is it sufficient? Would that discharge our constitutional obligation? Mr. President, we are on notice that ECA can err, and err very badly.

On June 13, 1950, William C. Foster, Deputy Administrator of the Economic Cooperation Administration, appeared before the Senate Committee on Appropriations.

Mr. Foster declared:

> I am happy to tell the Appropriations Committee that, in my judgment, the trend of events in South Korea is more favorable than it has been at any time since the liberation of that country in 1945.

Then Mr. Foster said:

> A rigorous training program has built up a well-disciplined army of 100,000 soldiers; one that is prepared to meet any challenge by North Korean forces.

Any Senator who is interested may read Mr. Foster's testimony in the record of the hearings of the Appropriations Committee, at pages 305 and 306.

That, then, was the considered opinion of the Deputy Administrator of the ECA, on June 13, just 11 days before the invasion of South Korea by Red forces. He said that South Korea had a well-disciplined army of 100,000 soldiers, prepared to meet any challenge by North Korean forces.

Subsequent events—the complete rout of South Korean forces—place Mr. Foster's testimony in bold relief. We must ask ourselves: Did the ECA have the slightest conception of the true picture of South Korea?

Other disconcerting question will come to the mind of Senators: Is the ECA better informed as to the situation in Western Europe than it was regarding the situation in Korea? Is the information given to the Congress by ECA regarding western Europe more accurate than it was regarding Korea?

ECA spends nearly $300,000 a year for publicity in this country alone. Press agents and speech writers tell a pretty story of its accomplishments, and what the future will bring, if only the American taxpayers continue to foot the bills. But they find it increasingly necessary to keep up a constant barrage of handouts and addresses. Travelers are arriving home every day to raise grave doubts as to the results of the tinkling jingle of American gold.

The time has come—sooner than some of us anticipated—when the Senate must concern itself with facts—plain, hard, disagreeable facts. We are confronted face to face with the stark, relentless realities of a changing world. I hope that the Senate will examine the ECA appropriation with courage and foresight in light of the world-shaking events that have come about since the bill was reported to the Senate.

Mr. FLANDERS. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. KEM. I yield to the Senator from Vermont.

Mr. FLANDERS. I should like to ask a question of the junior Senator from Missouri. I wonder whether he had any feeling of dichotomy in the first two sentences of his very interesting talk in which he called for reducing ECA contributions and stimulating our allies abroad.

Mr. KEM. I had in mind that both things could be done at the same time, and that there was no inconsistency in the program. I had in mind that the great sum of $1,950,000,000 should be ample to show our friends in western Europe our intention to uphold their hands and to stand by them, shoulder to shoulder and cheek by jowl. I had in mind that our friends in western Europe will have more confidence in our own intelligence and our own ability to stay the course of events if they know we are conducting our own affairs with prudence and foresight. I think the same will be true of our allies who are not beneficiaries of the Marshall plan.

Mr. FLANDERS. However, the difference does require a little explanation, does it not?

Mr. KEM. I do not think so. I think it would be self-evident to as keen a mind as that of the Senator from Vermont.

Mr. FLANDERS. I merely wanted to make sure that the Senator felt he could correctly read the mental processes of our allies on the other side.

I come to another question. I ask the Senator from Missouri whether he has a feeling that the ECA has played no part in maintaining the peace of Europe up to this time.

Mr. KEM. I think it has perhaps done some good. I should like to think it has. But I am sure that the contribution which ECA has made is as nothing compared with the atomic bomb. If the Russians have not overrun western Europe, I am sure it has not been due to Coca Cola, cigarettes, and the casinos and night clubs we supplied in western Europe, but it has been due to the fear of the armed might of the United States, and more specifically to the knowledge which we possess of the atomic bomb, knowledge and the courage to use it, if and when the appropriate time rises.

Mr. FLANDERS. Does the Senator from Missouri, who has a keen eye for the picturesque in our operations abroad, feel that it is the atomic bomb which changed the prospects of the elections in Italy and France?

Mr. KEM. Yes. I am sure it sent many a doubting citizen to the polls to uphold the side espoused by the United States. I feel absolutely certain of that. I should like to say that I think the atomic bomb was the most powerful of all arguments for the American side. Whether the Honorable James C. Dunn, in presenting the matter to the people of Italy, referred to the atomic bomb, I do not know; but I am sure that there was no citizen of Italy so dense that he did not know about the atomic bomb and the effect it had on the entire world picture.

Mr. LANGER. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. KEM. I yield.

Mr. LANGER. I should like to refer my friend to the speech of Winston Churchill which he delivered at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology approximately a year ago, in which he said that the only thing—not the Marshall plan—which has protected Europe has been the atomic bomb of the United States. He repeated the statement several times in the course of his speech.

Mr. KEM. That is quite true. I thank the Senator from North Dakota for his contribution. I should like to say that many reports from Europe indicate that the average citizen in western Europe regards the Marshall plan as evidence of a sort of weak-mindedness on the part of the people of the United States. He thinks we must have some ulterior motive, and he never has been influenced too much by our overgenerous gifts. He has realized, I think, that they were beyond our capacity, that as a matter of prudence we ought not to be sending them in such an amount. He has received our gifts with his fingers crossed. He wonders why we do not balance our own budget, instead of sending such sums to him.

Mr. FLANDERS. Mr. President, will the Senator yield further?

Mr. KEM. I yield.

Mr. FLANDERS. The Senator from Missouri has the floor and has the privilege of yielding or not to the Senator from Vermont. I saw nothing in the press at the time, and nothing in the reports of those who were on the ground, to indicate that the atom bomb was a determining factor of any sort whatsoever in the elections in France and Italy. We do know, without question, as Mr. Churchill said, that it has been a deterrent factor, so far as the armed invasion of western Europe is concerned; but Russia's invasion of western Europe was undertaken not as an armed nvasion, primarily, but as an invasion by Communist ideas and ideals, and we very narrowly escaped the danger of Italy and France going under. I am sure history will show that the Marshall plan was a prime factor in averting that great danger.

Furthermore, I should like to ask the Senator from Missouri whether he thinks it was the atom bomb which increased so greatly and so favorably the productive output of western Europe.

Mr. KEM. I do not think the atom bomb has anything to do with the industrial output. I believe recovery in western Europe has been largely due to the ability of the people of western Europe to recover after a devastating war. That has been shown time and again in the course of history. There is no uniqueness about what the people of western Europe have done this time. France has been devastated time and time again by invading armies, and yet the people of the world have often marveled at the recuperative powers of the French people. The fact that we have spent some money there does not mean that her recovery is entirely due to that. It means that a natural economic process has been carried on.

I have invited the attention of the Senator from Vermont to the fact that whatever I may think about the Marshall plan and whatever I may have said about it in the past, what I am suggesting today is a reduction of the Marshall plan appropriation to $1,950,000,000. I am presenting that as the outside figure of what I think the limit should be, and as far as we should go, in view of the exigencies at home and the demands upon ourselves to equip and maintain our soldiers at the front.

Mr. FLANDERS. I would still like to go back to the previous discussion in order to find out whether or not it is really true that the Senator from Missouri feels the Marshall plan played no important part in the economic recovery of Europe.

Mr. KEM. If it will make the Senator from Vermont feel any better, I shall be very glad to say that it played a part. As a matter of fact, I suppose it did. I never said it did not. It would be strange if the pouring into any land of such tremendous sums of money did not do some good to the economy. To say otherwise would be foolish. I have no ambition to cut that kind of figure on the floor of the Senate.

What I have said and what I say now is that these gifts are no long-time solution to the problem. As soon as we stop making gifts, or as soon as we show any hesitancy in making gifts, the people over there will say to us, "Well, we are sorry, and just as sorry as we can be, but if you don't send us this money, we will have to go Communist." That is inevitable, Mr. President. We shall have to meet this issue. The point I make is that with a debt of $257,000,000,000 the American people cannot continue year after year to bribe the people of the 16 countries in western Europe not to go Communist.

Mr. FLANDERS. I should like to interrogate the Senator still further. My reason for pressing the question as to whether or not the Senator from Missouri felt that the money spent up to now had been well spent was to get some gage for my own use as to the value of his judgment that we could now do with any other certain amount than that proposed. If the Senator belittles the political and economic effect of the Marshall plan in Europe to date, I would have to say to the Senator that I fear I cannot trust his judgment.

Mr. KEM. The Senator from Missouri is very anxious to retain the confidence of the Senator from Vermont. The Senator asked me if I thought the Marshall plan aid had made any contribution to the recovery of western Europe. I admitted it had. Then the Senator undertook to say that the Senator from Missouri admitted that the Marshall plan money had been well spent. Of course that is an entirely different matter. In my opinion, much of the Marshall plan money has utterly been wasted. I believe much of it has gone down the drain forever and has accomplished no appreciable good of any kind. It has made some contribution to the recovery in western Europe. However, if, in order to retain the confidence of the Senator from Vermont, which I am very anxious to do——

Mr. FLANDERS. Not the personal confidence or affection, but merely guidance on this particular legislation.

Mr. KEM. If, in order to do that, it is necessary for me to admit that I think the ECA money has been well spent, the Senator from Vermont and I, in a figurative sense, will have to part company. I cannot go along with him on that. I shall be glad to give him a bill of particulars on that point. I shall show him the many respects in which I feel that money of the American taxpayers has been wasted in western Europe.

Mr. FLANDERS. Does the Senator from Missouri feel that in that respect it is much different from many appropriations which we make on the floor of the Senate for undertakings inside the borders of our own country?

Mr. KEM. I should hate to say that every appropriation we have made has been as ill advised as I regard ECA. I will tell the Senator what I think about ECA. The Senator has spoken about what will be the place of ECA in history. I shall be glad to give the Senator the benefit of my opinion for what it is worth. In my opinion it will be regarded in history as we now regard the tulip craze, the South Sea bubble, the Mississippi bubble, the witchcraft mania in Salem, or the Florida land boom of a few years ago. I think ECA will go down in history as one of the mass delusions which seize upon the minds of men from time to time and which only time will erase, or correct. I have expressed this opinion in the Senate before. I see no reason to change it today.

Mr. FLANDERS. I should like to say to the Senator ffom Missouri that he has completely cleared my mind as to his position, but has done very little to persuade me in joining him in his position. I should like to conclude this little colloquy, so far as I am concerned, by stating as my conviction that had it not been for ECA, and its economic and political results, the Russian Army would now be washing its socks with salt water soap in the Atlantic Ocean.

Mr. KEM. The Senator has explained his position very neatly. When we started our colloquy I did not have the slightest idea that I would change the opinion of the Senator from Vermont. The Senator from Vermont is not a politician. If he were I know he would cling tenaciously to the first principle of a politician, namely, "Never admit that you are wrong." I do not expect to convince the Senator from Vermont. Perhaps I may be more successful in prophecy than in persuasion with respect to some of my other brethern here. At any rate, Mr. President, I have made a record of my views for better or worse. It will be here in the pages of the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD for all time. Those who follow the Senator from Vermont and me may pass judgment.

Mr. LANGER. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. KEM. I am glad to yield to the Senator from North Dakota.

Mr. LANGER. Is it not true that we shall soon find out how much good the Marshall plan has done when we see how many ground troops the countries who have received benefits under the Marshall plan will send to Korea in response to the request of the Secretary General of the United Nations? Does not the distinguished Senator from Missoui believe that in that response we shall have a part of the proof?

Mr. KEM. I do not wish to cast the slightest aspersion on the good intentions of our allies. I believe they will support us. I hope they will. We need their help. I believe we shall get it. We know that in two world wars some of them have been loyal and faithful allies. However, I want to say that I think they would have more confidence in coming to our aid if they believed we are keeping our own economy on a sound basis.

Mr. MARTIN. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. KEM. I am glad to yield to the Senator from Pennsylvania.

Mr. MARTIN. I have not heard all the Senator's very able address, but I have heard enough of it to become very greatly interested in it. Is it not important for America in this critical hour to keep its financial condition as sound as it possibly can?

Mr. KEM. I feel certain that that is so. As I said earlier, there is no point to our trying to maintain free institutions abroad, in the lands beyond the seas, if we are to jeopardize our own free institutions. There is nothing in the record of the past to indicate that we can bankrupt our Government and at the same time maintain our free institutions.

Mr. MARTIN. Mr. President, will the Senator yield further?

Mr. KEM. I am glad to yield further to the distinguished Senator from Pennsylvania.

Mr. MARTIN. Until we can ascertain how serious our present condition is, is it not necessary to economize all along the line, not only in our contributions to ECA, but in our public works and things of that character at home.

Mr. KEM. I think it is necessary, indeed. As I have indicated before, the major part of the gifts proposed to be made under the pending bill would go into public improvements in the countries of western Europe, which have no reference at all to the emergency in which we now find ourselves. I voted for the military-assistance bill when it was before the Senate recently. I voted for it without comment. So far as arming our allies is concerned, that is an entirely different matter. I am not talking about that. I hope no one will get the idea that I am talking about that. My remarks are directed solely and exclusively to economic assistance to western Europe.

Mr. MARTIN. Mr. President, will the Senator yield further?

Mr. KEM. I am glad to yield.

Mr. MARTIN. Is it not a fact that here in the United States we are away behind in the construction of roads, the improvement of rivers and harbors, and matters of that kind, and that we will need those things badly if we become involved in a total war, in order to attain the maximum of agricultural, mining, and manufactured products, necessary for the conduct of a total war?

Mr KEM. I believe that to be true beyond question. We are now draining the Zuider Zee in Holland at the expense of American taxpayers. I think that is costing in the neighborhood of $37,000,000. We are building extensive multilane highways in many countries of western Europe. We are building great viaducts and aqueducts. We are building a great hydroelectric plant in Italy. A few days ago one of our colleagues told me that he was in Rome last summer and saw a great railroad terminal under construction. He inquired where the money came from and was told that $4,000,000 came from the Marshall plan. And so it goes.

Mr. President, I yield the floor.

INCLUSION OF SPAIN IN ASSISTANCE PROGRAM

Mr. EASTLAND. Mr. President, I desire to call to the attention of the Senate and the country a news item from Madrid, dated July 16, by the International News Service, which appeared this morning in the public press. I quote the article:

FRANCO REVOKES ALL ARMY LEAVES

Usually reliable sources said tonight that Generalissimo Franco has ordered all military leaves canceled and set the stage for the calling up of four army classes. Franco and his cabinet devoted most of their meeting Friday to a discussion of the Korean war and its effect on the international situation.

Mr. President, that is a news item which is enough to make the so-called liberals sick. This country has refused to aid and assist Franco. This country has refused to aid and assist the peoples of western Europe who oppose communism, and who, by the use of military force, will oppose the sweep of communism over western Europe.

Today western Europe is a void, a vacuum, because the United States has not allied herself with the two keystones, Germany and Spain, to prevent the spread of communism. Consistently, at the behest of the left wing, we have refused to arm and to assist them.

Mr. President, we find that although we called on the United Nations for military assistance in the form of ground troops in Korea, up until last night none of those countries had agreed to assist. Yet we find Spain, a country which does not even belong to the United Nations, holding Cabinet meetings and calling up four classes of her army to meet the international crisis.

Mr. President, if we had a trained army of Germans and a trained and equipped Spanish army, five of those divisions would be equal to 250,000 Chinese Communists. If this country is to live, it must build up its defenses, and it must ally itself with and assist the peoples of the world who will really take up arms to oppose communism.

In Europe Spain has been the bulwark against communism, and I say that our conduct toward her should be viewed with shame by the American people. It should shame our leaders, who are willing further to temporize with communism. They weaken this country when they do not assist Spain, but in order to appease certain left-wing pressure groups, certain radical elements of this country, we go ahead with a senseless policy which will cause many American boys to lose their lives.

I say it is a shame. This country must be mobilized, and we must cooperate with and ally ourselves in Europe with Spain and Germany, the two great peoples there who must be the bulwark in the defense system of western Europe. I trust the significance of this news item will not be lost on our leaders. I know its significance will not be lost on this country.

CALL OF THE ROLL

Mr. LANGER. Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

Mr. RUSSELL. Mr. President——

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Will the Senator withhold his suggestion a moment?

Mr. RUSSELL. I hope we may get on with the agricultural appropriations.

Mr. LANGER. I promised the minority leader, before he left the Chamber, that I would call a quorum before the Senator from Georgia started in with the agricultural portion of the appropriation bill. It seems that some Senators have expressed a desire to be present and hear the distinguished Senator's discussion.

Mr. RUSSELL. Mr. President, I hope the appropriations bill may now be discussed; we have discussed almost everything in the whole gamut of human affairs except agricultural appropriations.

Mr. LANGER. I am calling the quorum for that very purpose, at the request of the Senator from Nebraska [Mr. WHERRY].

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

Aiken	Hayden	Martin
Anderson	Hendrickson	Maybank
Brewster	Hickenlooper	Millikin
Bricker	Hill	Morse
Bridges	Holland	Murray
Butler	Humphrey	Myers
Byrd	Hunt	Neely
Chapman	Ives	O'Conor
Chavez	Jenner	O'Mahoney
Connally	Johnson, Colo.	Pepper
Cordon	Johnson, Tex.	Robertson
Darby	Kem	Russell
Donnell	Kerr	Saltonstall
Douglas	Kilgore	Schoeppel
Dworshak	Langer	Smith, Maine
Eastland	Leahy	Smith, N. J.
Ecton	Lehman	Stennis
Ellender	Lodge	Taft
Ferguson	Lucas	Thomas, Okla.
Flanders	McCarran	Thomas, Utah
Frear	McCarthy	Thye
Fulbright	McClellan	Tydings
George	McFarland	Watkins
Gillette	McKellar	Wherry
Graham	McMahon	Williams
Green	Magnuson	Young
Gurney	Malone

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. STENNIS in the chair). A quorum is present.

Mr. RUSSELL obtained the floor.

DISCUSSION OF HYDROGEN BOMB ON MEET THE PRESS PROGRAM—CORRECTION

Mr. McMAHON. Mr. President, will the Senator yield for an insertion in the RECORD?

Mr. RUSSELL. I yield.

Mr. McMAHON. Mr. President, a news story today quoted me as saying yesterday on the Meet the Press program that a site to test the proposed hydrogen bomb is now being selected.

This is in error. I made no such statement.

Incidentally, there are some other misstatements in the story to which I have referred.

Below is a transcript of the questions and answers from the broadcast, which, of course, demonstrate beyond a shadow of a doubt that I said no such thing.

Mr. MCNEIL. In any event, is it not likely that they won't be able to even test an "H" bomb for 18 months?

Senator MCMAHON. Mr. McNeil, I suppose one of the most top secret things that we are dealing with is the rate of progression of our atomic armaments. I truly believe that that rate of progress should be guarded as well as we are able to guard it.

Mr. MCNEIL. Well, now, this two-hundred-and-sixty-odd million that the President asked for, that's for some entirely new plants separate from any thing that AEC has got now.

Senator MCMAHON. Yes; that is true.

Mr. MCNEIL. And they haven't picked a site for that yet, have they?

Senator MCMAHON. It's in the process of being selected.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to have printed in the RECORD at this point a transcript of the broadcast, in question-and-answer form, which will be a permanent record, to be the source of correction of the errors which were made in the news story, and which have caused me some embarrassment.

There being no objection, the transcript was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

ANNOUNCER. From Washington, D. C. NBC brings you America's Press Conference of the Air, "Meet the Press," with todays guest, Senator BRIEN MCMAHON, Democrat of Connecticut. Senator MCMAHON is the chairman of the Joint Atomic Energy Committee and a member of the Tydings committee which is investigating Senator MCCARTHY'S charges of communism in the State Department. Ready for todays unrehearsed spontaneous presss conference are four of America's top reporters. Please remember that their questions do not necessarily reveal their point of view. It's their way of getting a story for you. And now, meet Mr. Marshall McNeil of the Scripps-Howard newspapers, Mr. Lawrence Spivak, editor of the American Mercury magazine, Mrs. Mary Craig of the Portland Maine Herald, Mr. Edward Miller of the Cowles publication and here is our guest, Senator Brien McMahon of Connecticut. Finally, Miss Martha Roundtree, moderator of Meet the Press. That is our news panel for today and our guest. The news conference will begin in just one minute.

MISS ROUNDTREE. Senator, if you will brace yourself I think Mr. Spivak has the first question.

Mr. SPIVAK. Senator, a group of leading statesmen the other day called upon the United States to consider the use of the atomic bomb against North Korea in order to prevent a long and costly war. What do you think of that suggestion?

Senator MCMAHON. I do not think the suggestion is a good one. I believe that the North Korean war is of such a character as to rule out the use of the atomic bomb.

Mr. SPIVAK. Do you think we can win a war with the atom bomb? Do you think the bomb can be decisive?

Senator MCMAHON. Yes, I do believe it can be decisive. It depends upon its use, upon the sources of the power of a striking nation.

Mr. SPIVAK. Senator, do you think we are still sufficiently ahead of the Russians in the manufacture of the atom bomb to place the advantage on our side?

Senator MCMAHON. I feel that we do have a very real lead over the Russians in the atomic field. It's a lead, Mr. Spivak, that I wouldn't be satisfied with because no matter how great it is I still wouldn't be satisfied.

Mr. SPIVAK. What do you mean by that?

Senator MCMAHON. I mean by that that I would only be content with the great preeminence in that field.

Miss ROUNDTREE. Mr. McNeil.

Mr. MCNEIL. Senator, why isn't Korea a good target for the A-bomb?

Senator MCMAHON. Because, Mr. McNeil, as I see the Korean situation you have troops widely dispersed. The atom bomb is primarily a weapon to strike at the sources of power or at troops that would be so massed as to furnish a target.

Mr, MCNEIL. What about dropping it on their capitol. Isn't that a target to fit your——

Senator MCMAHON. No, I do not believe so, the sources of the power of the North Koreans is in being generated in North Korea itself. I doubt if there are any tank factories in North Korea, Mr. McNeil.

Mr. MCNEIL. I think you are right. One of your reasons for opposing the bomb is the fear that it might or the belief that it might start operations.

Senator MCMAHON. No; I just feel that militarily it is not the kind of weapon for use in this kind of an action. I believe——

Mr. MCNEIL. It would kill a lot of people.

Senator MCMAHON. That is true, but there has to be—now I'll tell you Marshall, you know the Russians, the Soviets, have been putting out a lot of propaganda about the atomic bomb as you know. We had it growing out of the Stockholm conference to ban the use of the atomic weapon. I believe the State Department spoke very truly the other day when it pointed out that it was aggression that was the thing that counted and not the kind of weapons that were used.

Mr. MCNEIL. You don't kill anybody graciously.

Senator MCMAHON. That is right, you're just as dead with a gentleman's rifle as with an atomic weapon. Fire bombs are bad too.

Mr. MCNEIL. Pursuing this a minute, one of your old desires—have you ever fulfilled one of your old desires to find out how many of these we got at this point?

Senator MCMAHON. Mr. McNeil, the Joint Committee on the Atomic Energy has not informed itself as to the stockpile of atomic——

Mr. MCNEIL. I'm not talking about the committee, I'm talking about BRIEN MCMAHON.

Senator MCMAHON. As far as BRIEN MCMAHON is concerned, I have been so intimately associated with it that I would be less than bright if I hadn't made what I think is a pretty good estimate of what our stockpiles are.

Mr. MCNEIL. Have we an adequate arsenal now, in your opinion?

Senator MCMAHON. I wouldn't say that our arsenal in anything was adequate to the kind of thing which might happen sometime in the future. That is why I have been saying continuously that we must step up our atomic armament production. I said that at the same time I have been pointing out as well as I could the necessity for calling a great disarmament conference for the purpose of seeing to it that we stop this armament race in which we are engaged.

Miss ROUNDTREE. Mrs. Craig.

Mrs. CRAIG. Recently Senator HICKENLOOPER said that Atomic Energy Commissioner Pike had dragged his feet on the development of the H-bomb. Now, is it true that you would have to divert materials, laboratory personnel, away from the atom bomb in order to produce the H-bomb?

Senator MCMAHON. May, that is a very complicated question. It is true that with a certain amount of personnel and a certain amount of material that if you were going to produce hydrogen weapons you would have to divert some of your personnel and some of your materials to hydrogen production which would result in fewer atom bombs. It is true in my opinion however, that by putting on extra steam and extra effort and recruiting the personnel that we can maintain at least our present production of atomic weapons and on top of that produce hydrogen weapons.

Mrs. CRAIG. Well, there was, was there not, the question of whether we had to fight soon or after a few years. If we had to fight soon, we would need atom bombs and after a few years perhaps the hydrogen bomb. Was there not a decision which had to be made there?

Senator MCMAHON. May, there were many, many facts surrounding the decision to continue at an accelerated pace the development of the hydrogen weapon. That was announced, you will remember, by the President last January. I do not believe that we could go into all of those factors on this program much though I might like to.

Mrs. CRAIG. Yes, well, let me ask you this, is it not true that now what is essentially a war has come upon us that what we got to have soon is atomic bombs.

Senator MCMAHON. May, I believe that we have got to emphasize our atomic production and hydrogen production, something I don't want to do, but I think we got to do it and the President recognized that necessity by request for $262,000,000 more for the program just last week, as you know.

Miss ROUNDTREE. Mr. Miller.

Mr. MILLER. Senator, our military leaders, General Vandenberg, General Collins, and Admiral Sherman, know how many atomic bombs we have produced?

Mr. MCMAHON. Yes, they do.

Miss ROUNDTREE. Mr. McNeil.

Mr. MCNEIL. In any event, is it not likely that they won't be able to even test an H-bomb for 18 months?

Senator MCMAHON. Mr. McNeil, I suppose one of the most top secret things that we are dealing with is the rate of progression of our atomic armaments. I truly believe that that rate of progress should be guarded as well as we are able to guard it.

Mr. MCNEIL. Well, now, this two-hundred-and-sixty-odd million that the President asked for, that is for some entirely new plan is separate from anything that AEC has got now.

Senator MCMAHON. Yes, that is true.

Mr. MCNEIL. And they haven't picked a site for that yet, have they?

Senator MCMAHON. It is in the process of being selected.

Mr. MCNEIL. Your committee last week put out a report on the H-bomb—of course, you are thoroughly familiar with that. It had more doggone unanswered questions in it than any CONGRESSIONAL RECORD I ever saw.

Senator MCMAHON. It was done for the purpose of stimulating thought upon those questions.

Mr. MCNEIL. Stimulate my thought on this one.

Senator MCMAHON. We didn't pretend to know all the answers, we might not know the answer to this one either.

Mr. MCNEIL. Suppose we make the hydrogen bomb, do we now have, or is there on the drawing board an airplane for the delivering of that bomb?

Senator MCMAHON. How do you know it is going to be delivered by airplane?

Mr. MCNEIL. Is there a ship that will take it? Is it deliverable?

Senator MCMAHON. Mr. McNeil, I believe two things. I believe, first, that the H-bomb is a practical proposition, and I think it can be built. I don't say that on my own scientific authority which you know is very, very little. I say it on the assurances of some of the scientists for whom I have a great respect. Now, I believe it will be built and I believe it is practical, and I believe it can be delivered.

Miss ROUNDTREE. Mr. Miller.

Mr. MILLER. I hope it never will be. You hope it will be built, though.

Senator MCMAHON. Yes; and the only reason I hope it will be built, Mr. Spivak, is because I am convinced that the Soviets are working at it and that if we don't build it they would anyway and I cannot for one moment agree that this country—it would be against our traditions to be less well armed than any of the nations in the world especially one that has said so pointedly and so many times that it intends to dominate the earth.

Mr. MILLER. Senator, let me ask you this question, Is there any question in your mind who is behind all this mess? In other words, that the Russians are behind this Korean business. Is there any doubt in your mind?

Senator MCMAHON. If I said that there was I think you could certainly question my intelligence.

Mr. MILLER. In other words, the answer is "Yes."

Senator MCMAHON. The answer is "Yes."

Mr. MILLER. Well, what do you think would happen if we told Russian rulers that we either wanted an end now to this whole business, this aggression, or that we would use the atomic bombs which we have against them. If we are going to have to come to a settlement why not do it now?

Senator MCMAHON. Mr. Spivak, last February you will remember that I made a very honest plea for a disarmament conference at which we would suggest to the world and to the Russians that we would both lay down our arms and that we would take, if they agreed, to a thoroughly good inspection and control system. Mind, you, we didn't do it until they did and until that was in operation, we would take at least two-thirds of that which we saved and put it on what might be termed point 4, developments throughout the world to see if we couldn't put some more food in hungry bellies which are probably the greatest producers of communism. I believe that we should have done that. I hope the day will come. I feel as Winston Churchill expressed himself yesterday when he said that he hopes and thinks that it is time for a settlement with the Russians. He pointed out that in 1948 that it was only memory of the atomic weapons that kept the Russians from, in his opinion, coming to the Atlantic Ocean. I just want to finish this one remark. If they will do this with the atom bombs. Churchill said if they will do this in the Greenwood, what will they do in the dry? Meaning that would they do if they had a great stockpile of atomic weapons. That is something we have got to face. That is something that every citizen of the United States should be thinking about and praying about. What we want to do, of course, above all is keep the peace.

Mrs. CRAIG. I will let you pursue that in just a moment, but let us just pause for a special announcement.

* * * * *

Mr. SPIVAK. Senator, you didn't quite answer my question before. The Russian response to this grand plan was exactly nothing. You never——

Senator MCMAHON. I never got a chance to respond to it because we never issued the call for the conference.

Mr. SPIVAK. Well, you issued the invitation and they never indicated in any way that they were interested.

Senator MCMAHON. Yes they did. During the week after I made that speech in February, Mr. Spivak, they released four dispatches to the New York Times in which they allowed they might be interested but when the news, when the slow boat got from America over to Russia with the reaction of some of the hoodlum press in this country, which suggested that I was out to bribe the Russians, why then of course, they adopted that line. As frequently happens in this country, you will find a certain section of the press that is on all fours with the Pravda declaration, as we find some Senators of the United States who are seven times out of ten in line with the Pravda declaration.

Mr. SPIVAK. But, Senator——

Senator MCMAHON. But I have got a right to comment.

Mr. SPIVAK. Senator, you have had enough experience with the Russians to know that they say one thing and they do another. If they meant at all that they were interested in your plan, don't think that they would have taken the action that they did in Korea. Now we either have a settlement now or we're going to use the bomb. Now, is that what you meant by the talk you gave a little while ago.

Senator MCMAHON. No, Mr. Spivak, I think there are some things that we must do to avoid that dire contingency. I believe that one of the things that we must do would be to immediately adopt the President's suggestion for the $89,000,000 addition to the Voice of America. I think that we can start a program now to rally the free peoples of the world to our side by making known the truth and above all, we must make Herculean efforts to get the truth behind the iron curtain. It is a very difficult thing to do but the stakes are so high that it warrants our best efforts and our greatest ingenuity, because if we can't take the Russian people away from the Kremlin, we can avoid coming to the terrible decision that you have outlined.

Mr. MILLER. In this H-bomb report the committee put out a couple of days ago, it is revealed that it takes an A bomb to trigger an H bomb. What was the point in releasing that information? Isn't it possible that it would be beneficial to the enemy?

Senator MCMAHON. No, not at all. That has been declassified information because it has been known to the scientists of the whole world, Mr. Miller. As a matter of fact, before that report was released it was cleared with the AEC, it was cleared with the State Department. Now, that brings up a subject which I would like to make a comment on. Mr. Miller, there is no use in kidding ourselves or kidding the American people by pretending to hide something that everybody else knows. The answer to that is definitely "No."

Mr. MILLER. How did the Soviet Union get so much information on our atom bomb?

Senator MCMAHON. I suppose that they got it in a number of ways. They have very good scientists themselves, exceedingly good. For instance, they invented artificial rubber with alcohol. That is just one of their achievements. In pure science, in some branches they have been ahead of us. The second way that they probably got some great help was due to the German scientist that they took over after the war ended and the third way was undoubtedly espionage. They undoubtedly got a lot of information out of Fuchs who as you know came into our project under the Manhattan district, not under the Atomic Energy Commission.

Mr. MILLER. Would you point that out?

Senator MCMAHON. I would like to point it out because a lot of people would like to point out something else.

Mr. BREWSTER. Mr. President——

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Georgia has the floor.

Mr. BREWSTER. Mr. President, will the Senator from Georgia indulge me for a moment, to make a comment in connection with the statement just made by the Senator from Connecticut?

Mr. RUSSELL. I am happy to yield to the Senator.

Mr. BREWSTER. Mr. President, I am much interested in the statement the Senator from Connecticut has made. I have been similarly misquoted on the subject, although I am not in a class with the Senator from Connecticut as an authority in that field.

A few days ago I ventured to suggest that the President should give General MacArthur authority, if he deemed it expedient, to use the atom bomb. As very much of an amateur in this matter, I did not venture to express an opinion as to whether or not it was wise to do so.

I read with great interest what was reported as being an experssion of opinion by the Senator from Connecticut, who has given a great deal of study to the matter. I wanted my own position to be quite clear, namely, that I have not expressed an opinion as to whether the atom bomb should or should not be used, but merely that inasmuch as we have spent billions in developing the atom bomb, and inasmuch as at the present time our boys are dying because of an inadequate defense, the President should have authority in his discretion to direct that the atom bomb be used.

GENERAL APPROPRIATIONS, 1951

The Senate resumed the consideration of the bill (H. R. 7786) making appropriations for the support of the Government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1951, and for other purposes.

Mr. RUSSELL. Mr. President, I hope the first amendment under the agricultural section of the bill may be stated at this time. We have been on that section of the bill all day, but the amendment has not yet been discussed.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The amendment will be stated.

The next amendment was, under the heading "Chapter VI—Department of Agriculture—Title I—Research and Marketing Act of 1946," on page 168, after line 3, to strike out:

To enable the Secretary to carry into effect the provisions of section 9 of title I and title II of the act of August 14, 1946, as amended (7 U. S. C. 427, 427h, 427j, 1621–1629), as follows:

For payments to States, Territories, and Puerto Rico for agricultural experiment stations pursuant to section 9 of the Bankhead-Jones Act approved June 29, 1935, as amended by the act of August 14, 1946, $5,000,000;

For the improvement and development, independently or through cooperation among Federal and State agencies, and others, of a sound and efficient system for the distribution and marketing of agricultural products pursuant to the "Agricultural Marketing Act of 1946" (title II of the act of August 14, 1946, as amended), including the objects for which funds are available for titles II and III of such act of August 14, 1946, $6,000,000: Provided, That not less than $650,000 of this amount shall be available for contracts in accordance with the provisions of section 205 of said act: Provided further, That the Secretary may make available to any bureau, office, or agency of the Department such amounts from this appropriation as may be necessary to carry out the functions for which it is made (but amounts made available to the Office of the Secretary, Office of the Solicitor, and Office of Information, shall not exceed those which the Bureau of the Budget, after a hearing thereon with representatives of the Department, shall determine), and any such amounts shall be in addition to amounts transferred or otherwise made available to other appropriation items of the Department: Provided further, That no part of this appropriation shall be available for work relating to fish or shellfish or any product thereof, except for the support of equitable transportation rates before Federal agencies concerned with such rates and for development of foreign markets.

In all, $11,000,000: Provided, That no part of this appropriation shall be used for beginning construction of any building costing in excess of $15,000, except that a poultry breeding house may be constructed at Purdue University at a cost to this appropriation of not to exceed $29,000.

To enable the Secretary to improve and develop, independently or through cooperation among Federal and State agencies, and others, a sound and efficient system for the distribution and marketing of agricultural products under the provisions of title II of the Act of August 14, 1946, as amended (7 U. S. C. 1621–1629), including the objects for which funds are available for titles II and III of such Act of August 14, 1946, $6,000,000: Provided, That not less than $650,000 of this amount shall be available for contracts in accordance with the provisions of section 205 of said Act: Provided further, That the Secretary may make available to any bureau, office, or agency of the Department such amounts from this appropriation as may be necessary to carry out the functions for which it is made (but amounts made available to the Office of the Secretary, Office of the Solicitor, and Office of Information, shall not exceed those which the Bureau of the Budget, after a hearing thereon with representatives of the Department, shall determine), and any such amounts shall be in addition to amounts transferred or otherwise made available to other appropriation items of the Department: Provided further, That no part of this appropriation shall be available for work relating to fish or shellfish or any product thereof, except for the support of equitable transportation rates before Federal agencies concerned with such rates and for development of foreign markets.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment.

Mr. RUSSELL. Mr. President, last week the distinguished Senator from New Mexico [Mr. ANDERSON], formerly Secretary of Agriculture, expressed some concern about the change in the language of the appropriation affecting the funds for the Research and Marketing Act. I had requested the Department of Agriculture to furnish me with a statement as to its construction of the effect of this language. Let me read at this time an extract from that statement:

The action taken by the Senate Committee on Appropriations with regard to the transfer of the appropriation for section 9 of the Research and Marketing Act to the appropriation for other payments to State Experiment Stations in no way changes any provisions of the act or procedures for its administration. The research administrator has had the responsibility of administering the Research and Marketing Act. He retains that responsibility by the committee action since the Office of Experiment Stations is under his supervision. The separate identity of this section is maintained, the authorizations remain the same, there is the same distribution of funds by prescribed formulas to the different States, and the research program remains the same down to the last project. The provisions for regional research in section 9 and marketing research in section 11 remain unchanged. The law provides direct payment to the State Experiment Stations of the funds appropriated under section 9 and the stations have authority to initiate and conduct research authorized by section 1 of the act using such funds. The act itself, in section 9 (c) also states that this section is to be administered by the Office of Experiment Stations and the transfer of section 9 to the Office of Experiment Stations will continue the administrative procedure which has been in effect from the beginning. The committee action is consistent with these provisions of the act and is in the interest of simplifying budgetary, administrative, and fiscal procedures without in any way changing the evident intent of Congress as stated in the act. This action was recommended by the Land Grant College Association and by the Department of Agriculture.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the entire statement may be printed at this point in the RECORD, as a part of my remarks.

There being no objection, the statement was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

STATEMENT OF THE DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE WITH RESPECT TO THE ACTION TAKEN BY THE HOUSE AND SENATE APPROPRIATIONS COMMITTEES RELATING TO SECTIONS 9 AND 10 OF THE RESEARCH AND MARKETING ACT

The Appropriation Committees of both the Senate and House, as well as the Bureau of the Budget and the Department, have had difficulty since the initiation of the program under the Research and Marketing Act in clearly distinguishing between activities carried on under regular funds and those carried on with funds from sections 9 and 10 of the Research and Marketing Act. Because of this, the Congress recommended in April 1949 that the Department study the matter and recommend consolidation where needed. (See Report No. 384, on H. R. 3997 making appropriations for fiscal year 1950, House of Representatives, 81st Cong., 1st sess., p. 3.)

Subsequently, as of July 30, 1949, when the former Administrator of the Research and Marketing Act left the Department, responsibility for administration of the act was assigned to the Agricultural Research Administration. This Administration includes six Bureaus of the Department and the Office of Experiment Stations.

As a result of the recommendation from Congress, the Department and the State Experiment Stations thoroughly studied the questions involved and the Department presented to the agricultural subcommittees of the House and Senate Committees on Appropriations for their consideration in connection with hearings on this bill, statements showing the relationship of work performed under sections 9 and 10 of the Research and Marketing Act, and that carried out under the other research appropriations of the Department. (See Hearings, House of Representatives, on the Department of Agriculture Appropriations for 1951, pt. 1, pp. 153 to 155.)

[The action taken by the Senate Committee on Appropriations ,with regard to the transfer of the appropriation for section 9 of the Research and Marketing Act to the appropriation for other payments to State Experiment Stations in no way changes any provisions of the act or procedures for its administration. The Research Administrator has had the responsibility of administering the Research and Marketing Act. He retains that responsibility by the committee action since the Office of Experiment Stations is under his supervision. The separate identity of this section is maintained, the authorizations remain the same, there is the same distribution of funds by prescribed formulas to the different States, and the research program remains the same down to the last project.] The provisions for regional research in section 9 and marketing research in section 11 remain unchanged. The law provides direct payment to the State Experiment Stations of the funds appropriated under section 9 and the stations have authority to initiate and conduct research authorized by section 1 of the act using such funds. The act itself, in section 9 (c) also states that this section is to be administered by the Office of Experiment Stations and the transfer of section 9 to the Office of Experiment Stations will continue the administrative procedure which has been in effect from the beginning. The committee action is consistent with these provisions of the act and is in the interest of simplifying budgetary, administrative, and fiscal procedures without in any way changing the evident intent of Congress as stated in the act. This action was recommended by the Land Grant College Association and by the Department of Agriculture.

Furthermore, the committee's action is consistent with the actions taken by the House in consolidating the appropriation for section 10 of the Research and Marketing Act with the regular appropriations for the various research bureaus and agencies of the Department.

The Research and Marketing Act was in fact two acts that were tied together for legislative convenience. Title I of the act was an amendment to the Bankhead-Jones Act of 1935, while title II was the "Agricultural Marketing Act of 1946."

The action of the Senate Committee on Appropriations and the action of the House are consistent with the provisions of the Research and Marketing Act and with the intent of Congress. The separate identity of title II, the "Agricultural Marketing Act of 1946" has been preserved in a separate appropriation. Since title I is an amendment of the Bankhead-Jones Act of 1935, the appropriation for section 9 of this title is combined in the same appropriation with other Bankhead-Jones funds for State experiment stations, and the appropriation for section 10 is combined with other Department appropriations financing similar activities. The provisions for advisory committees in the Research and Marketing Act have been retained and the Senate report as well as the report of the House on this bill points out that Congress expects that the functions of these committees shall extend to all research funds in the Department, rather than being limited to the Research and Marketing Act. Likewise, the provisions for contract research under section 10 (a) are retained and this bill provides a specific amount for contracts.

Mr. ANDERSON. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. RUSSELL. I am glad to yield to the Senator from New Mexico.

Mr. ANDERSON. Does the Senator from Georgia feel that the statement he has just read completely guarantees that the Research and Marketing Act funds will be used as contemplated in the original Research and Marketing Act?

Mr. RUSSELL. The Department of Agriculture says so explicitly; and in view of its statement, which is to be printed at this point in the RECORD, it is my judgment that the Department of Agriculture will follow this course.

Certainly, if the Department does not do so, Congress will be in session in January, and it will not be a very difficult matter for Congress to restore the section, so as to make it read in the way it reads at the present time.

Mr. ANDERSON. I am quite sure the Senator from Georgia recognizes that at the time when the Research and Marketing Act was passed, there was a desire to have these funds administered by the land-grant colleges. However, the Congress decided otherwise, and placed the responsibility in the Department of Agriculture. The land-grant colleges have not been completely happy about that decision.

I should like to ask the Senator from Georgia whether he is aware that the Research and Marketing Act Advisory Committee chairmen, meeting in Washington, D. C., on June 20, 21, and 22, studied the Research Marketing Act in its operations, studied this very question, and in their recommendations—I refer specifically to recommendation No. 9, which is carried on page 2 of the report to the Secretary of Agriculture from the Research and Marketing Act Advisory Committee chairmen—said as follows:

> The Research and Marketing Act has done much to stimulate the research, service, and educational work in agriculture.

I call the attention of the distinguished Senator from Georgia to the next sentence, in particular:

> To the maximum extent possible, separate identity of the RMA funds and their application should be maintained.

I wonder whether the Senator from Georgia is a little disturbed over the fact that these men, whose responsibility it is to make sure that the Research and Marketing Act funds are used in ways that are useful to agriculture, take a position opposite to that taken in this connection in the research and marketing appropriation.

Mr. RUSSELL. Mr. President, frankness compels me to state that I have not seen the statement from which the distinguished Senator from New Mexico has just read. It has not previously been called to my attention. It is altogether likely that a copy of the statement reached my office; but we receive so much printed matter that I have not seen it.

I think it very likely, Mr. President, that the Advisory Committee chairman and advisory boards, on whose advice Congress depends largely in connection with the distribution of these funds, has made that statement.

Mr. ANDERSON. I am sure the Senator from Georgia understands my view of this matter, and in regard to his position. As I said twice the other day, the Department of Agriculture has no better friend on the floor of the Senate or in the Congress as a whole than the distinguished junior Senator from Georgia; and I know that the Research and Marketing Act has no better friend in the Senate than he.

Therefore, I am trying to make sure that everyone is put on notice that the Senate certainly expects the Research and Marketing Act to be administered as it has been, and as it was originally conceived.

Let me call attention to the fact that recently, in the set-up in the Department of Agriculture, the Administrator of the Agricultural Research Administration has been given full responsibility for administering the Research and Marketing Act. Although Dr. Cardon, who has been given this responsibility, is an unually outstanding person and a very competent man, nevertheless that action reverses the former tendency, namely, to have a separate administration of the Research and Marketing Act.

I am willing to take at face value what is said in the statement submitted to the distinguished Senator from Georgia by the Department of Agriculture. I am quite willing to assume that this will be administered exactly as the Department has explained the matter to the Senator from Georgia.

I feel that the recommendations of the chairmen of the advisory committees might well be made a part of the RECORD at this point, if the Senator from Georgia will permit me to make that request at this time.

Mr. RUSSELL. Certainly.

Mr. ANDERSON. Then, Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to have printed at this point in the RECORD the recommendations and report of the Research and Marketing Act Advisory Committee chairmen, who met in Washington on June 20 to 22. The recommendations include recommendation No. 9, to which I have referred, in which it is pointed out that the research funds should have separate identity, and should not be merged with the other funds.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

There being no objection, the report was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

REPORT OF THE RMA ADVISORY COMMITTEE CHAIRMAN, JUNE 20–22, 1950, WASHINGTON, D. C.

In the passage of the Research and Marketing Act of 1946, Congress recognized the need for keeping the program close to the people it serves when it authorized the Secretary of Agriculture to establish appropriate committees including representatives of producers, industry, government and science to assist in effectuating specific research and service programs. In accordance with this legislation, the Secretary has established 20 commodity and functional committees to assist in developing and analyzing research and service programs. In addition there have been four State agency committees established to assist in the development of this program.

Members of these committees represent broad groups interested in the outcome of agricultural research and service work. They are familiar with the problems faced by these groups in particular parts of industry or of the country. They are expected to see that the Department becomes fully cognizant of these problems.

Congress in legislative acts has defined the basic objectives and general nature of the Department's program. Personnel of the Department are responsible, through administrative channels, to Congress. However, within the broad framework established by Congress, there is wide latitude for administrative judgment in determining what specific types of work should be undertaken. Advice for well-informed citizen groups provides a sound basis for administrative decisions. It should result in greater returns for money expended and a program consistent with the interests of the public as a whole.

After review of these programs the group of RMA Committee chairmen at their meeting in Washington, June 20–22, 1950, expressed general satisfaction regarding the functioning of the programs under the Research and Marketing Act. The advisory committees are serving a useful purpose in this general plan of research and such committees should be continued. The following recommendations and questions are presented, looking toward further progress and general improvement in the program:

PART I—RECOMMENDATIONS

1. Advisory committees should assist the Department in maintaining a balance between fundamental and applied research. Research should be directed toward practical operating problems as well as fundamental research.

2. There should be some research aimed at providing background data to serve as a basis for broad agricultural policy.

3. Research projects should be specifically outlined by the Department, showing objectives, and committees should be advised of related or similar projects being conducted in the same field by the Department, by State agencies, and, to the greatest extent possible, by industry. There should be complete cooperation between State and Federal agencies and, where possible, between governmental and industrial agencies.

4. Work under contract should be used and expanded as far as practicable to better effectuate the purposes of the act.

5. Projects should be completed and closed when the work is done, or when it is determined after consultation with the interested subject matter committee that the results are not practical, that further work is unnecessary, or would be of little value as fundamental research.

6. There should be an expansion of extension, education, and service work, looking toward wide distribution and commercial application of the results of research and the adoption of findings. Generally much of the research work will become valuable only when it has been applied to the problems of production and distribution.

7. Training programs should be encouraged, particularly by State institutions in the field of marketing and distribution, as well as in other technical fields to develop qualified personnel which will be needed in the growth of research work under this act.

8. All segments of the trade, from the producer to the consumer, should be encouraged to engage as much as possible in needed research with their own funds. This applies particularly to private corporations, trade and producer associations, various State and local commissions and other organizations which should be encouraged to conduct practical research as a supplemental and in addition to the research work being done in the Department.

9. The Research and Marketing Act has done much to stimulate the research, service, and educational work in agriculture. To the maximum extent possible separate identity of the RMA funds and their application should be maintained. Research is a continuing process and it is urged that adequate funds be made available by the Congress to continue and expand the program in accordance with the original provisions of the act.

10. Flexibility in use of funds is essential to provide for emergency situations and to insure maximum efficiency in the application of the funds.

11. Margin studies should include costs in relation to situations or conditions rather than margins alone.

12. With growing responsibilities and scope of work, additional funds for expanded staff work are necessary in order adequately to service the work of the committees and maintain the supervisory and correlative work necessary for maximum efficiency.

Mr. ANDERSON. Mr. President, I should like to ask, also—and I now request such unanimous consent—that the list of members of the Agricultural Research Policy Committee be printed at this point in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the list was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

AGRICULTURAL RESEARCH POLICY COMMITTEE

Dr. John D. Black, professor of agricultural economics, Harvard University, 205 Littauer Center, Cambridge, Mass.

A. A. Brock, director, department of agriculture, State of California, State Office Building No. 1, Sacramento, Calif.

Robert R. Coker, vice president, Coker's Pedigreed Seed Co., Hartsville, S. C.

Dr. John H. Davis, executive secretary, National Council of Farmer Cooperatives, 744 Jackson Place NW., Washington, D. C.

Albert S. Goss, master, the National Grange, 744 Jackson Place NW., Washington, D. C.

Dr. C. G. King, scientific director, the Nutrition Foundation, Inc., Chrysler Building, New York, N. Y.

Albert K. Mitchell, Albert, N. Mex.

James G. Patton, president, National Farmers Union, 1555 Sherman Street, Denver, Colo.

Harry J. Reed, dean and director, School of Agriculture, Purdue University, Lafayette, Ind.

Mrs. Raymond Sayre, president, the Associated Women of the American Farm Bureau Federation, Ackworth, Iowa.

Dean Stanley, president, Stanley Fruit Co., 626 Security Building, Phoenix, Ariz.

Executive secretary: Henry G. Herrell, Agricultural Research Administration, United State Department of Agriculture.

Mr ANDERSON. I am going to say, as I said to the Senator from Georgia, I think a point of order would lie against this change. I do not intend to raise a point of order. I prefer to depend upon the assurances given by the Department of Agriculture in its statement to the Senator from Georgia and his assurances to the Senate that it is the intention to preserve the integrity of these funds and not let them become mixed with the ordinary funds granted to the experiment stations.

Mr. RUSSELL. Mr. President, I shall not discuss the point of order, because that question is moot in view of the statement of the distinguished Senator from New Mexico. I shall express my appreciation of his kindly reference to the Senator from Georgia. I reiterate what I have said before on this floor that the distinguished Senator from New Mexico is one of the outstanding—if not the outstanding—Secretaries of Agriculture since that position was created. I am sure that we share the common hope and desire that the activities of the Research and Marketing Administration will proceed as contemplated by the Congress when the act was passed, and that there will be no change by administrative action in the Department of Agriculture of any part of the functioning of the research work by virtue of this change in language, which we understand is solely to simplify the bookkeeping and budgetary procedures within the Department of Agriculture.

The Senate committee, in its efforts to sustain the Advisory Committee, made quite a lengthy statement in the committee report urging that the Advisory Committee be given greater authority and more information, to enable those from outside the Department who view this matter perhaps from a little different light, because they have not been living so close to it for so many years, to take a larger part in the activities of the Research and Marketing Administration.

Mr. WHERRY rose.

Mr. RUSSELL. Mr. President, I have one other brief statement, after which I shall be delighted to yield to the Senator from Nebraska.

Mr. WHERRY. Mr. President, will the Senator yield for but one question, at this point?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Does the Senator from Georgia yield to the Senator from Nebraska?

Mr. RUSSELL. I yield.

Mr. WHERRY. Is the Senator about to leave this subject and go to something else, or will he continue to discuss this amendment?

Mr. RUSSELL. We are still on the first amendment.

Mr. WHERRY. I shall wait until the Senator is through, if he wants to offer a further observation regarding the amendment.

Mr. RUSSELL. I wish to make a brief observation; yes.

Recently I stated I was disappointed in the results which had been achieved to date in these activities. That language was perhaps too strong. I should have said that I was unhappy because there had not been more outstanding achievements. The Department sent me two booklets dealing at length with examples of the progress which has been achieved under the Research and Marketing Act of 1946. I may say the pamphlets show that great progress has been made, and that Senators who are interested in the subject would find them interesting reading, if they could find time to look into them, because there have been certain accomplishments which have been notable.

Mr. ANDERSON. Mr. President, will the Senator yield at that point?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Does the Senator from Georgia yield to the Senator from New Mexico?

Mr. RUSSELL. I am glad to yield.

Mr. ANDERSON. I am very glad that the Senator from Georgia put that statement into the RECORD. He will remember that the act was passed at a time when it was impossible to get the money which was needed. That was impossible until very recently. I think the men inside the Department of Agriculture, those connected with the land-grant colleges, and persons in private industry have done a very fine job of getting these projects started. I would commend the activities of the Department of Agriculture, certainly those in recent months, for the fine job which has been done. I am particularly happy that independent groups have come forward and made their proposals, thereby making it possible for the Department to coordinate its work with what private industry is doing. I may refer particularly to the great activity of the National Cotton Council for Research in undertaking research in cotton mills. Cotton research was to some extent tied in with the work of the land-grant colleges, and finally with the work of the Department of Agriculture itself.

I am glad the Senator from Georgia has had an opportunity to look at what they have accomplished, because I think it is a rather impressive study—not because of what they have thus far achieved, but becouse of the sound way in which they are planning their work and looking into the future. I have nothing but praise for the work the Department is doing at this time.

Mr. RUSSELL. The Senator has stated it much better than I could. I may further point out that under the act an appropriation of $61,000,000 would have been authorized for the fiscal year 1951. In the great desire for economy, we have only requested appropriations of $19,000,000, which is less than one-third of the authorizations of the act.

Mr. WHERRY and Mr. LANGER addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Does the Senator from Georgia yield, and if so, to whom?

Mr. RUSSELL. I yield first to the Senator from Nebraska.

Mr. WHERRY. Referring to the observation made by the distinguished Senator from New Mexico, the former Secretary of Agriculture, I did not quite catch the significance of his observation when he stated, if I heard him correctly, that he would not raise a point of order against this provision, on the assurance that the act would be administered, as I take it, as explained by the distinguished chairman of the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry. I should merely like to ask a question, through the Senator from Georgia, if I may reach the Senator from New Mexico in that way. Is there any apprehension upon his part that it might not be administered properly? Why the observation? I am as much interested as is the Senator from Georgia or the Senator from New Mexico in seeing to it that the research laboratories are able to conduct proper research. I am wondering whether there is anything in the Senator's mind which even indicates that under this new language of the bill that work might not be done.

Mr. RUSSELL. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that, without my losing the floor, I may yield to the Senator from New Mexico for the purpose of his replying to the question of the Senator from Nebraska.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection? The Chair hears none, and it is so ordered.

Mr. RUSSELL. I yield.

Mr. ANDERSON. I merely want to assure the distinguished majority leader that I saw, as I glanced at the language, as I was examining the bill, that there might be come significance in the fact that appropriations which had been made heretofore to the Department of Agriculture and by the Department then granted to the land-grant colleges were being changed by the fact that the money was now going directly to the land-grant colleges. I wondered whether that meant the termination of the over-all supervision by the Department of Agriculture with respect to this project.

Mr. WHERRY. I may say to the distinguished Senator, I think that is a very pertinent question. It is one of the questions I asked when this legislation came up.

Mr. ANDERSON. I may say to the distinguished minority leader that when the original survey was made of research projects now going on, the Department of Agriculture acquired examples, running into the thousands of pages, of agricultural research then being done in the United States; first of all, by the Department itself; secondly, by the land-grant colleges; third, by the Office of Experiment Stations; and then by private industry. It was found, for example, that in one State the very same problem was being studied that was being studied in another State through the granting of Federal funds. That is not wholly bad. Frequently it is desirable to pursue independently the same type of research in two States. But, very frequently, it is desirable to have somebody at the top knowing exactly what is going on.
